42. Order of Questions Under Debate.

When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but the following privileged questions, which shall have precedence in the following order:

1. To adjourn.
2. For a call of the Senate.
3. To lay on the table.
4. To postpone to a day certain.
5. To commit.
6. To amend.
7. To postpone indefinitely.

43. Motion Not to be Debated Until Seconded and Announced.

No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President or any Senator, and read by the Secretary, before the same shall be debated.

44. Reading of a Paper, if Objected to, Determined Without Debate.

When the reading of a paper is called for (except petitions), and the same is objected to by any Senator, it shall be determined by a vote of the Senate.

45. Amendments and Substitutes—When in Order.

Substitutes may be offered at any time when a bill or resolution is open to amendment previous to engrossment; and when adopted shall take the place of the original bill or resolution, and shall be open to amendment.

46. Amendments and Substitutes Must be Germane.

No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment or substitute.

47. Least Sum and Shortest Time in Filling Blanks.

In filling up blanks, the least sum or number and the shortest time shall be put first.

48. Short of Final Question, Two-thirds Vote Not Requisite on Propositions to Amend Constitution.

When an amendment to the Constitution, or any bill requiring the concurrence of two thirds of the Senators, is under consideration, the concurrence of two thirds shall not be required to decide any question for amendment, or extend to the merits, being short of the final question.

49. Notice of Reconsideration.

On the day succeeding that on which a final vote on any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment has been taken, said vote may be reconsidered on the motion of any Senator; provided, notice of intention to move such reconsideration shall have been given on the day on which such final vote was taken, by a Senator voting with the prevailing side; and it shall not be in order to reconsider on the day on which such final vote was taken. Said motion of reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn; and it shall require twenty-one votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any bill, concurrent or joint resolution has been passed or defeated, and twenty-seven votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been passed or defeated. No notice of reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day of the session.

50. Reconsideration of Bills Sent to Assembly.

When a bill, resolution, amendment, order, or message upon which a vote has been taken shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate and been communicated to the Assembly, a motion to reconsider shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the same, which last-named motion shall be acted upon immediately and without debate, and if determined in the negative, shall be a final disposition of the motion to reconsider.

51. Secretary, Upon Notice of Reconsideration, Not to Report Bill to Assembly.

If a Senator gives notice that he intends to move a reconsideration, the Secretary shall not report the bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment, to the Assembly till the reconsideration is disposed of, or the time for moving the same has expired, unless the bill or resolution has been transmitted to the Assembly.

52. Motion to Reconsider May be Debated.

A Senator, after a notice of motion to reconsider is given, as provided in Rule 49, may, at the reconsideration thereof, present the main question in his argument thereon, and the same may be debated by the Senate, provided that the subject-matter is debatable.

53. Amendments to Original Question.

1. An amendment may be laid on the table without prejudice to the bill. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

2. If the question in debate contains several propositions, any Senator may have the same divided; except a motion to strike out and insert shall not be divided. But the rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition, nor shall it prevent a motion to simply strike out, nor shall the rejection of a motion to strike out prevent a motion to strike out and insert; but pending a motion to strike out and insert, the part to be stricken out and the part to be inserted shall each be regarded, for the purpose of amendment, as a question. And motions to amend the part to be stricken out shall have precedence.

54. Final Question on Second Reading of Bill—No Amendment on Third Reading, but May Commit.

The final question on the second reading of every bill originating in the Senate, and requiring three readings previous to being passed, shall be: "Shall the bill be engrossed?" And no amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of such bill, to move its commitment under special instructions to amend.

55. Special Orders.

Any subject may, by vote of two thirds of the Senators present, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate

56. Form of Previous Question—Call of Senate.

The previous question shall be put in this form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the Senators present upon division; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the Senate to a vote on the subject under discussion. On a motion for the previous question, and prior to a vote being taken by the Senate, a call of the Senate shall be in order.

57. Ayes and Noes; Members Must Answer—No Vote After Announcement of Vote.

When the ayes and noes shall be called for by three members present, every member within the bar of the Senate at the time the question was put shall declare openly, and without debate, his assent or dissent to the question. In taking the ayes and noes, and upon the call of the Senate, the names of the Senators shall be taken alphabetically. When the ayes and noes shall be taken upon any question in pursuance of this rule, no Senator shall be permitted, under any circumstances whatever, to vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

58. Rules in Senate and Committee of the Whole.

The rules of the Senate shall be observed in Committee of the Whole, so far as may be applicable, except limiting the number of times a Senator may speak, and except that the ayes and noes shall not be taken.

59. Suspending and Changing Rules.

No standing rule or order of the Senate shall be rescinded or changed without a vote of two thirds of the members-elect and one day's notice being given of the motion therefor; but a rule or order may be suspended temporarily by a vote of two thirds of the Senators-elect, except that portion of Rule 27 relating to the final passage of bills. All proposed amendments to these rules shall be referred to the Committee on Rules, without debate.

60. Executive Session.

On a motion, made and seconded, to close the doors of the Senate on the discussion of any business which may, in the opinion of the Senate, require an executive session, the President shall require all persons, except the Senators, President of Senate, Secretary, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Doorkeeper to withdraw, and during the discussion of said motion the doors shall remain closed; and every member and officer of the Senate shall keep secret all such matters, proceedings, and things whereof secrecy shall be enjoined by order of the Senate.

61. Messengers—When Introduced.

Messengers may be introduced at any stage of business except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, while the ballots are being counted, or while a Senator is addressing the Senate.

62. Smoking.

No smoking shall be allowed within the Senate Chamber.

63. Cases Not Provided for, Cushing to Govern.

In all cases not provided for by these rules, the Senate shall be governed by the laws and practice as laid down in Cushing's Law and Practice of Legislative Assemblies.

Amendment to Rule 49 (adopted March 6, 1905, as follows:)

Amend Rule 49 of Senate rules, by adding the following: "Provided, there shall be but one reconsideration, even though the action of the Senate after reconsideration is the opposite of the action of the Senate before reconsideration."

On motion of Senator Leavitt, the following Biennial Message from the Governor was read and ordered printed in the Journal :

SECOND BIENNIAL MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR GEORGE C. PARDEE.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
SACRAMENTO, January 7, 1907.

To the Senate and Assembly:

GENTLEMEN: It becomes my constitutional duty, before retiring from the office of Governor, to communicate to you such knowledge as I have respecting the condition of the State, and to present such recommendations for your consideration as appear to be necessary for the public good.

The material condition of the State, as a whole, was never better than at present nor perhaps ever before so good. California is enjoying its full share of the remarkable prosperity of the whole country, and all business enterprises are being amply rewarded. This favorable situation of our State appears truly remarkable when it is remembered that the disaster of April 18, 1906, resulted in a destruction of property values of at least half a billion dollars and in a temporary suspension of all business in the commercial metropolis of the Pacific Coast. For six weeks the banks were closed, and yet they have now so well recovered the lost ground that the clearings for the past year have been greater than for the year which preceded it. The settlement of insurance losses soon will have replaced nearly one half of the direct losses from the great fire, and San Francisco is already well started upon a new career of prosperity which will eclipse all that went before. San José, Santa Rosa, and other cities which suffered seriously are displaying life recuperative powers. Meantime, the general progress of the State has been unaffected, except that it appears to have been accelerated, rather than retarded. Our farms and our mines have yielded their golden returns to industry; the lumberman, the manufacturer, and every other producer who has been called upon to aid in replacing the waste of the late disaster finds the demand for his products larger than he can meet, and 1906 will pass into financial history as a banner year for California, in spite of the unparalleled calamity which came so unexpectedly.

The outlook for the future is now far different from what it seemed last June, when I called the Legislature together in extraordinary session. At that time the problem was to provide such legislation as would tide the State safely over a period of impending distress, and the measures demanded and adopted were those of pressing temporary expediency. Now the dangers which threatened, and which were so ably met by the Legislature at that special session, have passed away, and the Legislature can again take the long look ahead and frame its policies on the lines of permanence.

I congratulate you, gentlemen of the Senate and Assembly, upon this happy deliverance of the State from serious perils, and I bid you godspeed in the important tasks you are called upon to undertake.

REFORM OF THE REVENUE SYSTEM.

It affords me pleasure, as I am about to retire from the office of Governor, to be able to announce that a good beginning has been made in the direction of a reform of our system of State taxation—an important subject which I called to the attention of the Legislature in my inaugural address in 1903 and again in my biennial message in 1905. On both of those occasions I referred to the glaring deficiencies of the existing system, which, though supposed to be founded on equality, operates most unequally and unjustly. The Legislature of 1905 gave the matter serious consideration, with the result that there was created a State Commission on Revenue and Taxation, composed of two members of the Senate, two of the Assembly, the Governor, and an expert appointed by him. The members representing the Senate were Hon. M. L. Ward and Hon. J. B. Curtin, and the members from the Assembly were Hon. W. H. Waste (who soon resigned) and was succeeded by Hon. E. F. Treadwell, and Hon. H. S. G. McCartney. Prof. C. C. Plehn, of the University of California, was appointed expert.

The Commission so composed organized soon after the Legislature adjourned and has prosecuted its important task with due diligence during the past two years. It has collected a mass of valuable information respecting the operation of the present revenue laws, which only serves to reveal more plainly their imperfections, and it has agreed upon the basis of a new system which it is believed will avoid the most serious objections to the old and will come much nearer doing justice to all interests and classes. With whatever difference of views the six members of the Commission may have entered upon the study of the subject, they were in entire agreement in the conclusions ultimately reached, and which were embodied in a preliminary report published last August. The final report, now completed, which will be laid before the Legislature, differs from the preliminary report only in minor details so far as affects the measures proposed and in presenting, in greater detail, the information collected.

A New System Outlined.—In my former message to the Legislature I advocated the separation, so far as it could be accomplished, of State and local taxation as being the necessary first step toward the reform desired. This is the conclusion reached by the Commission, and it has devised a form of separation which it believes will be both practicable and equitable. Briefly stated, it consists in taking for the exclusive use of the State all the taxes to be derived from certain classes of corporations; also the poll tax, inheritance taxes, insurance taxes, franchise taxes, and fees collected by State officers. If the product of all these taxes, at the rates suggested by the Commission, shall be retained by the State, it is estimated that there will result a revenue for State purposes of from $9,000,000 to $10,500,000, which would be sufficient to meet all demands upon the State treasury at the present rate of expenditure, including the support of the public schools. For the support of county, city, town, and other local governments there would be left the entire product of the taxes upon real estate and personal property, which they are now compelled to share with the State government. One of the greatest advantages to accrue from such a division of the different sources of revenue between the State and local governments would be that it would at once end all of the causes of dissatisfaction arising out of the equalization by a State board of the assessments of the different counties. Each county and each city or town could then have a high or a low assessment of property values as might best suit local conditions, without the possibility of doing injustice to other communities.

The inauguration of such a system as this can only be accomplished by amendment of the Constitution, and the proposal made by the Commission on Revenue and Taxation is that the present Legislature shall submit to the people, to be voted on at the next general election, a constitutional amendment legalizing the suggested change. The method proposed for the taxation of public service corporations and also of insurance companies is that of exacting a percentage of their gross earnings. Thus, it is proposed that all railroad companies, including street railroad companies, shall pay on their gross receipts earned within the State of California not less than four nor more than five per cent (the precise rate to be fixed by the Legislature); all sleeping-car, dining-car, drawing-room car, and palace-car companies, and refrigerator, oil, stock, fruit, and other car-loading and other car companies, not less than four nor more than five per cent; express companies, three per cent; telegraph and telephone companies, three and one-half per cent; gas and electric companies, not less than four nor more than five per cent. Insurance companies are to pay two per cent upon their gross premiums received on business done in the State, and banks and trust companies to pay one per cent upon the book value of their shares of capital stock. It is also proposed that all corporations shall pay to the State a tax of one-twentieth of one per cent upon their authorized capital stock.

An Estimate of Probable Revenues.—Assuming the adoption of this plan of taxation, the revenues, old and new, for the support of the State government will be about as follows:

Old Revenues Retained or Only Slightly Changed:

1. The poll tax.....	$500,000
2. The inheritance tax.....	300,000
3. Insurance taxes and fees.....	300,000
4. Official fees, sundry offices.....	250,000
5. Collections by State boards and institutions..	225,000
6. Earnings of State property and investments..	1,000,000

New Sources of State Revenue:

1. Railroads, including street railroads.....	$3,800,000
2. Express companies.....	120,000
3. Car companies.....	75,000
4. Telegraph and telephone companies.....	210,000
5. Light, heat, and power companies.....	600,000
6. Franchises	500,000
7. Banks	1,500,000
	6,805,000

These amounts are computed on the lower of the two rates suggested for railroad and other corporations, and if the higher rates are adopted the total estimated income for State purposes is increased to $10,500,000. It is proposed to insert the rates of tax in the Constitution, subject to the power of the Legislature to change them once in six years.

The rates suggested by the Commission have been computed with a great deal of care after very full investigation. The effect of their adoption would be to compel the corporations named to pay, in nearly all instances, more taxes than at present, and in some cases much more. Yet it is not believed these rates would do an injustice to the corporations, which could well afford to pay something additional in consideration of the advantage of always knowing just what their taxes would be in proportion to their income and being relieved of all fears of unexpected and possibly unjust assessments.

That the plan proposed would solve the revenue problem for the State government can not be doubted by any one who will carefully investigate. Our public-service corporations are growing rapidly, and the revenue derived from taxing them upon their gross receipts will increase to meet the increasing needs of the State. This has been the experience of other states which have adopted this plan of taxation in whole or in part. Only recently it was announced that the State of Wisconsin had found it unnecessary to levy any State tax because the revenues from indirect taxation were ample to meet all needs. Several other states have adopted a plan similar to that proposed by the Commission.

I urge upon the Legislature that it give its serious attention to this subject; that it review the work of the Commission, and determine the exact percentages of gross income tax to be levied, and that the constitutional amendment, when perfected, be submitted to the voters at the election two years hence. The people can be trusted to settle the question wisely. It has now been under discussion for four years, and when the discussion shall have extended over six years surely every intelligent citizen of California can be trusted to form his own opinion.

Our present law of taxation is antiquated and thoroughly discredited. Every State in the Union having one like it is dissatisfied and trying to effect an improvement. The plan suggested by the California Commission on Revenue and Taxation is along the lines which have been followed in the most advanced states and those whose revenue systems are now in the most satisfactory condition. There will be no more auspicious time than the present to refer the issue to the people, and by doing this the present Legislature can earn the gratitude of all citizens who are groaning under the unjust burdens of the present system, and praying for a better one.

PRIMARY ELECTION AND CONVENTION REFORM.

By a general consensus of opinion, the time has arrived when the citizens of California should proceed to effect certain needed changes in the methods by which candidates for office are nominated; and since the primary election lies at the root thereof, it is quite natural that there should be a demand that the reform shall commence at that point. Thus we find both of the old parties pledged by their latest State platforms to the inauguration of what is known as the direct primary.

This term does not appear to mean the same thing in all of the several states which claim to have direct primary laws, but in its most radical form the direct primary implies the nomination of all party candidates, State, county, and municipal, by direct popular vote. It would also follow from this that party committees, if still continuing to exist, would be of greatly diminished importance. In other words, this very thorough-going remedy for the admitted evils of conventions and of State and county committees consists in the practical annihilation of the system of which they are the principal parts.

But in certain states where the direct primary idea has found lodgment it has been applied in a modified way, conventions being retained but the voters being given the privilege of indicating on their ballots their choice of candidates, and the delegates being bound by the popular choice up to a certain point. The states of Oregon and Wisconsin have adopted the direct primary in its pure and unmodified form; Minnesota has done the same as to all local and district officers, but not as to State officers, who are still nominated in conventions; Illinois and North Dakota retain the conventions along with direct popular vote for candidates. In Iowa the Legislature has given serious consideration to a law of the latter type, but has not yet adopted it.

The Operation of the California Law.—There is little if any doubt that in its unmodified form the direct primary would be, at present, unconstitutional in California. At the general election in the year 1900 the Constitution was amended in the supposed interest of primary election reform, but the language of the amendment appears to exclude any primaries except those for the election of delegates to conventions. The statute of 1901, following the amendment, throws around primaries for the election of delegates the same safeguards as are provided for general elections; but the law makes these legalized primaries compulsory only in the twelve most populous cities of the State, and leaves it optional with the voters of other communities to adopt the system if they care to do it. They have not cared to do it, and, in consequence, in the greater portion of the State, delegates to conventions may be chosen in any manner desired by the party committees.

In most instances delegates to conventions which are to nominate county or municipal candidates are chosen at informal primaries, but very often in the cases of State and district conventions, including those which nominate Congressmen, Railroad Commissioners, Members of the Board of Equalization, and Judges of the District Courts of Appeal, the delegates are appointed by the county committees. The present law permits this thoroughly unrepresentative practice, and that is one of its greatest weaknesses. By such methods the people are prevented from taking any effective part in the making of nominations which concern them most vitally, and the way is opened for boss and corporation control.

To comprehend the full meaning of the system it is necessary to bear in mind that if a handful of politicians denominated a committee can appoint the delegates to a convention, they can usually perpetuate their power, because the convention thus composed appoints the new committee, which can in turn appoint the next convention. In other instances conventions composed of delegates elected at informal primaries name the delegates to State and district conventions, and this is better, because more nearly representative, than the appointment of delegates by committees; but this plan of indirect election is itself often very unsatisfactory and can not be entirely commended.

If the convention system is to be retained, as seemingly it must be until the Constitution is amended, the primary law should require the direct election by popular vote of all delegates to State and district, as well as county, conventions. Only by being kept in close touch with the people can a party organization be representative, and when it ceases to be representative it immediately becomes dangerous. That party control should be based upon the will of the party voters is universally admitted in principle, but in practice the principle is easily lost sight of, and though at first no evil result may be apparent from the acceptance of unrepresentative practices, a party organization which gets out of close relation with the mass of voters will cease to work in their interest; instead of being an instrumentality to give effect to the will of the people, which is the only rational function of an organization, it tends to become a means of thwarting and defeating it.

More Truly Representative Committees.—Direct popular election of delegates would do much to improve our nominating conventions by making them more representative, but at the same time equal care should be taken to secure representative committees to manage party affairs. I am of the opinion that State and county committees should never be named by or during conventions, but that the members should be chosen directly by the voters at the same time that delegates are elected. A member of a governing committee usually exercises more influence in the direction of party control than a delegate to a convention, and if there is ground for holding that the latter should be chosen only by popular vote, much more should that be the case with the committeeman. And when a State or county committee has been chosen by the party voters, the law should not permit such committee to be set aside, on the specious pretense of creating a State Executive Committee, or a Campaign Committee, or any other kind of committee devised and fathered by politicians. In former times, before political bosses had become so fertile in expedients, a State Central Committee was the governing body of the party in the State at all times when a convention was not in session; but to-day a State Central Committee is, at least in that party which is usually in a majority in California, no more than a meaningless name. Most voters do not realize this, but it is a fact. Real control is exercised by a body called a State Executive Committee, which is not a sub-committee of the State Central Committee, nor appointed by it, but is entirely independent of it and is a creation of the one-man power; it is appointed after the convention by the chairman of the latter, or, as has sometimes happened, by the candidate for Governor. When an election campaign is on the State Central Committee holds no meetings; it does not even elect its own president and secretary, for the officers designated for the State Executive Committee become those of the State Central Committee, which is thus captured, or dominated, by the body appointed to supplant it. The only function which appears to be left to the once-powerful State Central Committee is to meet once in two years and decide when and where the next convention shall be held.

A New Political Encroachment.—As if this perversion of party organization were not bad enough, the past year has witnessed another departure more surprising than any which preceded it. In the State convention of the majority party there was adopted, without debate, and seemingly without a thought, the strange proposition that henceforth the retiring State Executive Committee shall appoint the temporary chairman of the coming convention. Whatever may have been the motive with which this innovation was proposed, it is easy to see to what it will lead. A clique which may happen to be in control of the old committee will have it within its power to program the State convention through the temporary chairman, who is the only important chairman, because he appoints the committees on credentials, on organization, and on platform. When the State Central Committee was unhorsed by the State Executive Committee the party's governing body ceased to be representative of the people; the proposal to deprive the State convention of the power to organize itself is an extension of the same kind of politics and is an attempt to prevent the party voters from having any effective representation in State conventions. If one could really persuade himself that a State convention made up of intelligent citizens of California would actually permit itself to be denied the exercise of the right to organize and govern itself, there would be the strongest of justifications for joining with those radical reformers who demand the abolishment of conventions at once and forever.

Abuses in the Convention System.—But whether or not the next Republican State Convention shall surrender its right of self-government, it is only fair to admit that the convention system as now conducted develops some evils for which misrepresentation of the people is not wholly responsible, although the evils are greatly aggravated thereby. By far the worst of these evils is the making of combinations whereby nominations cease to represent the honest preferences of a majority of the delegates and become a mere matter of "trading" or worse. The adoption of this practice in State conventions is the prolific parent of innumerable abuses, but in particular it facilitates domination by bosses and corporate interests. If these interests can succeed at the beginning in controlling absolutely only a small minority of the delegates, they may hope, by making a series of trading combinations, to capture the more important nominations and even to dictate for their own benefit the selection of judges for our highest courts. Further than this political demoralization could hardly go while keeping up even a pretense of self-government by the people.

Nevertheless, the genesis of this evil, as of most evils of politics, is in the people themselves, who are frequently so anxious to promote the success of local candidates that they do not stop to think of the ultimate consequences of setting in operation the dangerous system of trading combinations. They begin trading to secure what they believe to be a worthy object, and in the end they are traded out of control of the party and out of decency and self-respect. The special misfortune of the convention system is that it furnishes such a fertile field for the cultivation of this alarming abuse, and it is difficult to see how it can be remedied without either some essential modification of the convention or its abolishment, as many advocates of the direct primary propose.

Opinions Concerning the Direct Primary.—The direct primary, in one form or another, now exists in Oregon, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Mississippi, and Texas, and, in the hope of ascertaining how far it is a practical working success, I addressed inquiries to the Governors of those states. In response I received letters generally affirming the success of the experiment, but admitting a few objections or suggesting certain changes. Thus Governor Chamberlain of Oregon wrote that the effects in his State had been salutary, that the direct primary tends to eliminate bosses and machine politics, and that it will in future be still more beneficial, because the voters will understand better the responsibilities devolved upon them. The principal objection found in Oregon was the large expense imposed upon candidates, who were compelled to make, practically, two campaigns. To remedy this Governor Chamberlain proposes a legal limitation of the amount of such expenditures.

Governor Johnson, in his reply, conceded that there are defects in the Minnesota law, which applies to city, county, and district nominations; efforts have been made to extend its operations to State nominations, but they have failed because, as Governor Johnson believes, no feasible plan has been presented. In the main the new method of making nominations has proved itself to be an improvement upon the convention plan, and it is a great promoter of independent voting.

Governor Davidson of Wisconsin wrote that the law in that State proved itself upon the first trial to be "very satisfactory" and that "nothing but words of commendation of it" were heard. Nevertheless, the Wisconsin law is admittedly imperfect as it stands, Governor Davidson saying: "What appears to me to be one of the chief faults in the statute is the opportunity it gave Democrats in Wisconsin to make the Republican nominations. The Republican party * * * is almost supreme in Wisconsin. Very few votes were cast for Democratic candidates here on September 4th, that party generally preferring to make the Republican nominations." This would indicate that a direct primary, to be conducted fairly, must go hand-in-hand with a strict party registration law which will render it impossible for a voter to participate in any primary contest except that of the party to which he professes to belong.

A Compromise Law in Illinois.—The Illinois law represents a compromise, which was adopted principally because it was feared that the direct primary pure and simple would lead to the making of many nominations by such small numbers of voters that such nominations would be as unrepresentative as the work of the worst convention. Therefore, while conventions were abolished in the making of municipal nominations, they are retained in all other cases. But when the voters cast their ballots for delegates they also vote for candidates for the various offices, including United States Senator. Moreover, it is left optional with counties to abolish conventions in making county nominations, if they choose to do so. Delegates are required to cast at least one ballot for the candidates who received a plurality vote in their respective districts; the law releases them after the first ballot in order to prevent a deadlock, but the theory seems to be that when there has been an explicit expression of the popular choice, or anything resembling it, delegates will not be likely to go far wrong. Governor Deneen asserts that the Illinois plan has worked well and believes that, with a few modifications, it will be superior to either the Minnesota or the Wisconsin method. He concedes, however, that there is still a strong feeling in his State in favor of a more uncompromising direct primary law.

It is not necessary to quote the replies received from other states, which present no points of special significance differing from the foregoing.

It will be observed that the direct primary, particularly as a method of nominating State candidates, has not yet advanced beyond the experimental stage, the existing laws being conceded by their makers to call for amendment. The objections oftenest urged against a direct primary law which dispenses with conventions are that it tends to a multiplication of candidates and hence to the making of many nominations by small fractions of the electorate; that the largest centers of population in a State and the largest towns in a county will dictate most of the nominations, because their votes will be more concentrated than those of the rural districts; that the expense to candidates, already too great under the old plan, will be largely increased; that without conventions there will be no good way of making party platforms, the Wisconsin plan of having the candidates meet after their nomination and frame the platform being open to objection. On the other hand, it is argued that the new system will naturally be improved and that all of the objections before mentioned can be overcome; also, that the voters could well afford to put up with a good many disadvantages to get rid of the evils of convention nominations effected by trading and of unrepresentative party committees. As to whether the direct primary will abolish bossism opinions differ considerably, but in fairness it must be conceded that if the boss is not destroyed by direct nominations, the most profitable field for the exercise of his arts will be removed with the passing of the convention.

Conclusions From the Foregoing.—To sum up, I have pointed out that the present method of making nominations in California is susceptible of marked improvement; that the direct election by the people of all delegates would be a long step in the right direction; that the Illinois primary law, which permits voters to vote for candidates as well as for delegates, might be added to our convention system with beneficial results, as might probably be done without constitutional amendment; that the reform of the party committee organization is also a necessity; that if it be decided not to attempt to reform the existing methods but to cast them aside and establish the direct primary in its full vigor, there is at least a fair probability that the new plan would be successful, although a constitutional amendment would be needed to accomplish it, and therefore we should be compelled to wait two years before results could be obtained.

I recommend the careful and conscientious attention of the Legislature to this matter, as demanded by the party platforms and the people of the State.

STATE FINANCES.

On assuming the duties of Governor, four years ago, I found the condition of the General Fund such that, in order to meet the expenses of the State government, it became necessary to borrow from other funds $1,368,000. In order to restore to the funds thus borrowed from, it was necessary to increase each of the tax levies for the years 1903-4 and 1904-5 nearly six cents above what would have been necessary had it not been for the deficiency in the General Fund.

The State Treasurer has been able to meet all demands upon the General Fund up to the close of the calendar year without touching a dollar of new taxes, and has a surplus of $1,000,000 for meeting appropriations to be made by the incoming Legislature. This condition has resulted from making a sufficient tax levy each year during my administration, and from a more abundant yield from certain special forms of raising State revenue than conservatism had reckoned on.

Therefore, while economy should characterize all appropriations, it will not be necessary for the incoming administration to be parsimonious in approving appropriations for meeting the real needs of public institutions and the legitimate requirements of public expenditure, a necessity that was imposed upon me when I took office by reason of the depleted condition of the State treasury.

The disaster of April 18, 1906, and succeeding days, wrought great destruction to taxable property, but the splendid prosperity enjoyed by our State has well nigh made good to the State tax roll the taxable value destroyed. The total assessed valuation of all property in the State for 1905 was $1,624,991,742. For 1906 it was $1,595,897,411; a difference of $29,094,331. There is no doubt that this deficiency has been much more than made good by increase of wealth since the last assessment was made.

Had it not been for the necessity for adding six cents to the tax levy for the first two years of my administration, in order to make up the deficiency I found in the State's funds, the average State tax rate during my four years' term would have been lower than that of the preceding administrations, except Governor Markham's. As shown above, there is, instead of a deficiency, a surplus of $1,000,000 now in the State treasury.

Betterments.—A growing population and the consequent increasing demands on our public institutions tend steadily to increase taxation. It is only when taxation begins to trench upon productive enterprise that real injury is inflicted, provided, always, that public moneys are so expended as to give a dollar's worth of value for each dollar taken from the pockets of taxpayers.

In obedience to the views above expressed I have, during my administration, been as liberal in approving appropriations designed to meet real needs of public institutions as it seemed the tax-paying power of the people could meet without hardship, and I think that the following comparisons of appropriations made for permanent improvements during my own administration and the three preceding ones will bear out this conclusion:

Markham administration.....	$1,443,764 57
Budd administration.....	1,140,375 27
Gage administration.....	826,743 83
	$3,410,883 67
Pardee administration.....	3,191,372 79

Of the above amount credited to my administration only $306,500 was appropriated by the extraordinary session of 1906.

This very substantial gain in betterments was accomplished without making an excessive tax levy. The average tax levies on each $100 of assessed valuation under the three preceding administrations were as follows:

Markham administration.....	48.7 cents
Budd administration.....	52.8 cents
Gage administration.....	49.0 cents
Pardee administration.....	51.5½ cents

Legislative Expenditure.—Although excessive legislative expenditure is not under Executive control, yet the administration is, in the public mind, somewhat chargeable with it, and the dominant party can not escape responsibility for it. I therefore beg leave to call the attention of the Legislature to an instructive comparison of legislative expenditure during eight legislative sessions, exclusive of legislative printing:

No. Session.	Contingent Senate.	Contingent Assembly.	Cost of Session.
Thirty-first	$55,500 00	$63,359 19	$196,409 59
Thirty-second	46,714 69	70,000 00	203,300 16
Thirty-third	35,431 09	24,707 53	170,629 57
Thirty-third, extra.....	1,351 87	3,000 00	31,881 87
Thirty-fourth	35,996 00	47,247 39	198,233 48
Thirty-fifth	51,950 00	59,922 30	225,493 42
Thirty-sixth	62,497 82	83,687 86	258,354 69
Thirty-sixth, extra.....	2,737 40	4,000 00	25,477 54

While excessive legislative expenditure does not, of itself, entail so heavy a burden upon taxpayers, the spirit that prompts it tends to excessive appropriations in other directions and it tends to destroy public confidence in the legislative branch of government and has been a strong factor in the refusal of the voting public to grant the Legislature time enough in which to perform the work which a growing State imperatively requires. No matter how sincerely disposed a Legislature may be to do so it can not, in a sixty days' session, give to public business the attention which it demands. Economy in legislative expenditure is a necessary first step toward the granting of a longer time in which to legislate. Unwelcome as the thought may be, it is lack of public confidence in legislative bodies that prompts the voter to confine legislative effort within such narrow moles and bounds, and gives such insistence to the growing demand for direct legislation.

Custody of Public Funds. In my message to the Legislature two years ago I pointed out the necessity for placing public funds in banks at interest on average daily balances, the banks to furnish unquestioned security for the loan and to hold the money subject to call. The Legislature, acting upon this suggestion, enacted a law, approved March 20, 1905, providing for making such deposits. But, being in doubt as to the constitutionality of the measure, the Legislature also submitted a constitutional amendment to the people providing for the deposit, not only of State funds, but also of county and municipal funds in like manner.

This amendment was adopted by the people, and I respectfully recommend to the Legislature such supplementary legislation as shall enable the purposes of the constitutional amendment to be fully carried out. I do this, not only in the belief that the policy commended will result in idle moneys producing large earning capacity, but also in the belief that the carrying out of this measure will prevent an unnecessary contraction of the volume of circulating medium to the injury of business. With the purpose of this amendment put into full operation, tax-paying time will thereafter produce almost no stringency in the money market.

Insurance of State Property. I desire again to call the attention of the Legislature to the fact that no provision has as yet been made either for insuring State property or for creating a State insurance fund out of which losses may be paid without waiting for a session of the Legislature to make appropriations therefor. The State has so far been more fortunate than prudent with regard to fire losses. It has no buildings that are strictly fire-proof, and no way is furnished institutions for making extensive repairs caused by fire without great delay and inconvenience.

A State tax levy of five mills on each $100 of assessed valuation, imposed for the purpose of creating a fire indemnification fund, would yield something like $75,000 a year, and would, in a few years, create a fund quite sufficient for the purpose, replenished from time to time by direct appropriation where losses are made good out of it. This fund might well be placed in the custody of the State Board of Examiners for investment in negotiable securities, to be sold as moneys are needed for making losses good. The State can insure its own property more cheaply than it can hire it insured, and prudence dictates that it create an insurance fund of its own.

The Five Per Cent Land Fund.—The old adage that there is never a great loss that is not attended by some small gain was seldom better exemplified than in the recent procurement from the United States Government of five per cent on the gross amount realized on the sales of public lands within the State. Many other states were allowed and paid this fund years ago, and there was never more than a purely technical reason why the claim of California had not long since been paid. The great disaster of April 18, 1906, and the increased activity of the California delegation in Congress moved the heart of Congress to respond to the appeal, and legislation was at once had making the five per cent fund available. The State Treasurer has already received upon this account the sum of $425,712.50, and a warrant for $2,559.02 in addition has been drawn in favor of the State, but has not reached the State Treasurer. It is believed that this fund will reach $1,000,000 when all allowances have been computed. As required by our State Constitution, this fund will be covered into the permanent State School Fund, which fund, no matter how large it may become, will still be inadequate for meeting the growing requirements of public education.

THE PRISON SYSTEM OF CALIFORNIA.

No fact in connection with the penal institutions of the State stands out with greater distinctness than the rapid growth of the prison population. Between June 30, 1900, and June 30, 1906, the number of inmates of our two prisons increased from 2,130 to 2,633, or 24 per cent. This increase in a period of six years was much greater than the increase during the ten years which preceded. In 1890 there were 2,057 prisoners in the two prisons; so that between that year and 1900 there was a total increase of but 73, as compared with an increase of 503 in the last six years. It is as difficult to explain the smallness of the increase during the preceding ten years as it is the magnitude of it in the last six years.

The Legislature of 1905 appropriated $168,000 for the construction of a prison wall and new cell-house at Folsom Prison, and $310,000 for the extension of the prison wall at San Quentin Prison and the erection of new cell-houses. None of this money was made available before July 1, 1905, and then in sums ranging between $20,000 and $40,000 each half year, extending, in the case of Folsom, to January 1, 1909, and in the case of San Quentin, to July 1, 1909.

At San Quentin it was necessary to execute a large amount of grading before construction work proper could begin, and there have been delays due to the necessity for securing the consent of the United States Government to the filling of an arm of the bay, to the San Francisco fire, and to other causes; in the case of Folsom the State Board of Prison Directors did not feel like commencing construction until after there should be a reasonable assurance that the State would not lose the benefit of the water power which was the principal reason for establishing a prison at that place. Work is now progressing at both prisons as rapidly as it can be performed with convict labor. Nevertheless, it will be several years before San Quentin and Folsom can be put in good condition for the discipline and proper care of even the present number of prisoners, and, owing to the increase in the prison population, the construction work provided for will no sooner have been completed than the State will again be face to face with the problem of more cells. The lack of a sufficient number of cells to permit the segregation and classification of prisoners has all along been the worst feature in the situation and largely explains the failure to develop a proper prison system in California.

Parole and the Indeterminate Sentence.—There are two good ways of lessening the congestion consequent upon having too many prisoners and too few cells to put them in, aside from constructing additional prison quarters for them. One of these is the extension of the parole system, and the other is to enact a prudent indeterminate sentence law. Both of these will require additional legislation to put them into operation.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, 48 prisoners were paroled out of the two prisons. During the year ending June 30, 1906, there were 53 paroled. In all since the parole law went into effect, in 1893, only 304 prisoners have been paroled. Of these 27 violated their parole, and of those who violated it 18 were returned to serve out their unfinished sentences, leaving only 9 to win their liberty by their perfidy, and these have the danger of apprehension perpetually hanging over them.

To make the parole system effective there must be a parole officer connected in some intimate way with each prison. He must know the prisoners, not only as prisoners but as men, and must make himself familiar with their pre-prison history. Then he must follow, helpfully, those who need help while out on parole. There are doubtless many men in our prisons who are well deserving of being paroled, if only the Board of Prison Directors had time to reach their cases, which, being busy men of affairs, they have not yet had.

That some punishment is due those who violate the law, merely as a vindication of the law, most penologists admit. It will not subserve the interests of justice to turn such men loose upon society merely because they are sorry they have done wrong as soon as they are sorry, no matter how sorry they may be. There must be a degree of punishment that will prove a deterrent factor in the conduct of the criminally disposed. This attained by a minimum sentence, the best thought of prison discipline should be to return the prisoner to society as soon as may be with due regard to social safety. This the indeterminate sentence permits to be done by allowing the prisoner to work out his own liberation by good conduct and remedial effort.

There are those who have felt that the indeterminate sentence could not well be put in operation until the new cell-houses are constructed, but it does not appear that the operation of that law need wait for cell-houses. The sooner it is put in operation the less congested those cell-houses will be when completed.

It costs California $138.70, besides interest on the investment, to keep a man in prison, and if one can be set at liberty, either on parole or by indeterminate sentence, so that he can, by his service, earn $500 a year, it is immensely profitable to open the gates to such men as soon as they can be opened with due regard to the dignity of the law and the safety of society. This does not so much depend upon reformatory work as it does upon setting men at liberty who are not really criminals, but good men who have done bad things, as many good men do; but some of the bad things done by good men are, fortunately, not so very bad. There are prisoners enough who are criminals at heart to keep our new cell-houses full, and many such should never come out because thoroughly case-hardened. I think it time to inaugurate the indeterminate sentence system in California, almost as much for the relief of the State as for the relief of the prisoners who would be the sooner liberated by it.

More Work Needed in the Prisons.—Of 2,633 persons undergoing punishment in our prisons, 676, or a few more than one fourth, had undergone imprisonment before. It is noticeable that most of the atrocious crimes against life, as incident to onslaughts upon property, are committed by recidivists. This is partly because the confirmed criminal is a natural recidivist if ever allowed his liberty, and partly because the effect of prison life, as our prisons are conditioned, is to demoralize rather than to reform. When California shall come to the establishing of a true reformatory more redemptive work may be accomplished than can now be hoped for, and yet if more educational work were done in our prisons, and if the waking hours of prisoners were more fully occupied, we might look for less demoralization if not for more positive reformation.

Tasks unrelieved by any hope of personal gain are seldom educative into habits of sustained industry. California needs to have more profitable work for its prison population to do, and as soon as it can be brought about industries should be established at both prisons for the manufacture of such commodities as the State institutions require. If, then, in addition to a certain specified task to be completed on State account, the prisoners were given an opportunity to earn something for themselves, be it ever so little, they would learn to perform sustained labor before they knew it, and there are few men in prison who have been habituated to sustained labor.

I am more than ever persuaded, however, that not all the prison reforms we need are likely to be fully realized until our entire prison system of control shall have undergone a considerable reorganization. It is my judgment that the executive head of the prison system should be a General Superintendent of Prisons and Reform Schools, who shall be a specially trained man, and who shall be allowed to select such subordinates in his own office as he may need, and select the wardens of the State prisons by and with the consent of the Board of Prison Directors. Such an officer must necessarily give his whole time to the work, and the whole time of one competent official is worth several times more to the State than the spare hours of many busy men engrossed in private affairs, no matter how able and interested they may be.

STATE HOSPITALS FOR THE INSANE.

The provision made by the Legislature of 1905 for the maintenance of the five State hospitals for the insane aggregated $2,013,055, without counting appropriations made for permanent improvements or acquisitions of new properties, and this sum will all be used before the termination of the fifty-eighth fiscal year June 30, 1907.

At the beginning of the fifty-sixth fiscal year, July 1, 1904, there were in the five State hospitals, 5,774 patients. On November 30, 1906, the population of these institutions was 6,091, a gain of 317; but as a result of the great earthquake of April 18 last, 101 patients at Agnews Hospital were killed; otherwise the total patient population of the five hospitals would have been 6,192, making the increase of patients 418, or about 14 per month. Projecting this ratio of increase forward for the ensuing two years it will be necessary for the Legislature to appropriate $2,156,235 to sustain our hospitals for the insane during the fifty-ninth and sixtieth fiscal years, an increase of $143,000 for the two years. This does not exceed the most reasonable anticipations, inasmuch as the increase in patient population during the next two years is likely to be as great as 500 persons.

There is a growing conviction among hospital authorities the country over that better work ought to be done toward effecting permanent cures of patients suffering from mental ailments. Our hospitals have been taking good physical care of patients intrusted to their charge, but they have all been overcrowded and have not been supplied with up-to-date appliances for the proper treatment of the patients. There is not a State hospital in California to-day that is fully equipped. All of them should be, and I respectfully commend to the Legislature the wisdom, economy, and humanity of making appropriations for each of the five institutions sufficient in amount to build and equip suitable cottages for the care and effective treatment of acute cases. The hospitals at Napa and Mendocino have funds in hand for one such cottage each, but each should have another, and the other institutions should each have two. It costs the State in the neighborhood of $3,000 to maintain each insane patient during the expectancy of hospital life. If by expending $500 or $1,000 in the most improved efforts to effect a permanent cure during the early stages of the disease such cures can be effected in any considerable number of cases, it will warrant the State, on purely economical lines, in making a very considerable expenditure for that purpose. It goes without saying that the humane considerations are at least as important as the economic.

For the care of chronic incurable patients the State should have recourse to cheaply constructed buildings upon agricultural lands where the labor of such patients as can labor should be profitably employed, and where all may be made happier by a freer and more wholesome out-of-door living. This will make room in the existing institution buildings for the accommodation of such patients, other than those already described, as may be committed from time to time. No new hospitals should be built until those we now have shall each contain 2,000 patients.

Agnews State Hospital.—This institution merits special consideration. It was totally wrecked by the earthquake of April 18, as the cost of salvage practically equaled the value of the material saved. The loss is estimated at about $800,000, and 11 officers and attendants and 101 patients were killed and many injured. The earthquake was very severe at this point, but had the workmanship and superintendence of construction been what they should have been it is not likely that many, if any, lives would have been lost. It is impossible that so severe a lesson as that taught by the Agnews disaster shall fail of impressing its importance upon future public construction in this State. Temporary accommodations have been made for 800 patients still retained there with which they can be made reasonably comfortable until reconstruction work can be done. The situation is not all that could be wished for, but is at all events eligible. It is near to one considerable city and not far from the bay district of California with its rapidly increasing population. Its location is one that makes it especially adaptable for the care and treatment of special phases of insanity. The reconstruction of a modern institution at Agnews, upon lines that will insure safety of the officers and patients and make the security of the buildings probable, will involve the expenditure of possibly nearly $1,000,000. If the construction work be extended over a period of four years, and it is not probable that it can be well done in less time than that, this appropriation can be made without seriously embarrassing the finances of the State.

Home for the Feeble-Minded.—Included in the estimates for the maintenance of the State hospitals is the maintenance of the California Home for the Cure and Training of Feeble-Minded Children, at Eldridge, in Sonoma County. This institution has taken good physical care of the unfortunates in its charge, but has fallen far short of accommodating all who are proper subjects for admission to it. I therefore respectfully commend to the Legislature the need for enlarging this institution to meet the legitimate demands made upon it. It is doing good work, and its ability to take care of the feeble-minded ought to be adequately extended.

A Colony for Epileptics.—There are probably as many as two hundred epileptic insane persons scattered through the five hospitals of this State, and there are probably half as many in the Home for Feeble-Minded, but there are scores of epileptics throughout our State who are neither insane nor feeble-minded. Our State should make reasonable provision for the care and treatment of this class of unfortunates.

This will not require the creation of a new institution. At the Home for Feeble-Minded there is abundant land, and a single board of managers will suffice for every purpose of both institutions. In my judgment, the Legislature should make provision for establishing an epileptic colony at the Home for Feeble-Minded. In this way many patients now improperly in our insane asylums would be given care and attention which they can not receive in the asylums. It is time for California to be moving in this direction, especially as it may be done with such comparative inexpensiveness.

DEPENDENT AND DELINQUENT CHILDREN.

During the eight years ending with June 30, 1906, California has paid out toward the support of dependent children the sum of $3,664,408.03. Of this sum $2,856,751.51 has been devoted to the sustaining, in part, of an average of 5,567 children in orphanages, and $807,656.52 to sustaining 2,341 children aided through boards of supervisors outside of orphanages, mainly by allowance to the surviving parent, or other relatives, in their own homes. During the last four years the number maintained in orphanages has dropped from 5,907 in the fifty-fourth fiscal year to 5,277 during the fifty-seventh, and the amount paid to the forty-odd orphanages has dropped from $375,857 in the fifty-fourth year to $337,955.22 in the fifty-seventh. In outside aid, dispensed through the boards of supervisors of the several counties, the number has decreased from 2,539 during the fifty-fourth fiscal year to 2,062 during the fifty-seventh, and the sum paid for this form of aid has decreased from $114,442 in the fifty-fourth year to $103,338.68 during the fifty-seventh.

This latter form of expenditure, commonly called out-of-door relief, has a rather constant tendency to increase, owing to a prevailing predisposition of county boards of supervisors to proceed in such matters along lines of least resistance, because they can pass their expenditures up to the State for reimbursement. There are some counties, however, which have their charities so well organized that their benefactions under this law are bestowed with great discrimination.

The comparative economy secured recently in the distribution of the moneys supplied by the State is the result of a more careful inspection of claims and more thorough visitation of applicants for relief. It is along the line of establishing the fact of dependency that the greatest reform in the administration of this fund is to be looked for, and this fact should be established by the juvenile court, and not otherwise, before any child shall become a State charge. It is now established by the managers of orphan asylums and by the supervisors of the several counties; and it is almost certain that a considerable percentage of children drawing State aid are not, or need not be, dependent on the State. No matter how conscientious the orphanage people may be, they can not have the same opportunity that a court would have for ascertaining all the facts in an inquiry conducted under oath. In order to prevent an unnecessary humiliation of deserving applicants, such examinations might well be held in chambers, at the discretion of the judge.

The money that the State gives our forty-four orphanages constitutes only one half to three fifths of the total cost of their maintenance. They are maintaining over 1,300 children for whom they receive no State aid at all.

Delinquent Children.—The number and atrocious character of crimes committed in this State by youths, and the steady growth of California's prison population, bring home to us all the tremendous importance of the problem of child delinquency. The advantageous point of attack for this evil is at its incipency, and this is when truancy first manifests itself. It is with truancy that delinquency almost invariably begins. Truancy and parental schools should be established where needed, and the compulsory education law should be more strictly enforced. Every considerable city in the State should have one or more special schools for backward children, and nearly every county should maintain a truancy or parental school and at least one school attendance officer to make the law and the school effective. A more general provision should also be made for the addition of manual training to our common school course. We should not only strive to compel children to attend school, but also do all in our power to interest them in their studies when they are there. Nothing contributes more certainly to this end than manual training.

The State is maintaining juvenile reformatories at both Lone and Whittier. The school at Lone, known as Preston School of Industry, is maintaining an average of about 210 students at a per capita annual cost of $247, or a total of $51,870 per year. The permanent investment in this institution now amounts to about $325,000, including equipment. The school is doing good work, especially since a system of manual training has been introduced and since real work has been undertaken in building enterprises. However, there is room for improvement along the lines of educational work in mechanics and agriculture, and in commercial work for advanced pupils.

The State School at Whittier has been maintaining an average attendance of about 280 boys and 35 girls at a per capita annual cost of $311.79, or about $110,000 a year for salaries and maintenance. The school work per se has been good, but there has been wanting a keener spirit along the industrial side of the training given, and manual training has not as yet been established. The farm of 160 acres is in good condition, but the sanitation is and has been bad and something like an epidemic of typhoid has resulted, very likely from that source of infection. The State's investment in this school is about $350,000, not counting repairs and betterments made from time to time with current and contingent funds.

Neither of the schools above mentioned is maintaining parole officers. I regard this as an error, and strongly recommend that the Legislature not only require the maintenance of such officers, but provide therefor in a financial way.

I commend these institutions to the favorable consideration of the Legislature.

Placing Out of Children.—The State should be the guardian of every child within its borders, especially the dependent children, but that guardianship has not heretofore been properly asserted. There is no question that the best place in which to rear a dependent child is in the home of some good, childless family, but there is no department of charitable work that needs to be carried on with more tactfulness, and with more unselfish motives than that of the placing of dependent children in homes other than their own. California has, as a State, exercised no such function of guardianship. Associations and individuals, with no official authority, have undertaken this work, but it is time that proper legislative action were taken in this regard. It should be made the business of some department of State government to investigate and license such placing-out agencies as are entitled to public confidence, and prohibit the activities of such as are not.

States which undertake to discharge the guardianship of dependent children maintain systems of visitation and inspection to all homes in which dependent children have been placed, and the welfare of such children is thus assured, their education enforced and their personal and property rights protected. The work here outlined is usually performed by State Boards of Charities and Corrections, and it would be well to confer this function upon this board and equip it properly for that purpose. It is not improbable that as many as one thousand such children are now drawing State aid who should be placed in homes to be reared, thus saving the State anywhere from $75,000 to $100,000 a year in appropriations for dependent children.

STATE BOARD OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS.

The duties by law imposed upon this Board are "to investigate, examine, and make reports upon the charitable, correctional, and penal institutions of the State, including the State hospitals for the insane, of the counties, cities and counties, cities and towns of the State, and such public officers as are in any way responsible for the administration of public funds used for the relief or maintenance of the poor in public institutions or of any of the inmates of said institutions." While this field of utility is a broad one, and abundantly justifies the continued existence of the Board, I think that it may well be further broadened to include a Children's Home Bureau, whereby every dependent child placed in a home other than its own may be visited, watched over and protected, and whereby homes may be found for such children as are free and fit to be placed in homes. Such a service should prove of incalculable advantage to dependent childhood, and an important source of economy to the State.

The management of county and municipal institutions is of scarcely less importance to the State than the management of State institutions. It has, in other states where prison management has far surpassed that of our own, been held to be true that the jails of counties and cities manufactured criminals faster than the State reformatories and prisons could redeem them to reputable living. The burden of pauperism in California, comparably rich and sparsely settled though the State is, is becoming grievous to be borne. It is as essential to the welfare of the commonwealth that local institutions and handling of public functions be looked after as that State institutions and public functions shall be, and I know of no agency better adapted to this service than the State Board of Charities and Corrections, being, as it is, non-partisan in character and entirely outside the main currents of political life.

CALIFORNIA AND THE EXPOSITIONS.

During the last four years this State has participated in two great expositions held in St. Louis and Portland, respectively. In each instance the display made was creditable and profitable to the State. At St. Louis the expenditures by the California commission were $129,148.13, being $851.87 less than the sum allowed by law to be expended. However, there were certain salvages, interest, and miscellaneous sources of income which enabled the commissioners to return to the State treasury the sum of $5,762.97 in cash. Besides this credit to the exposition fund, there were left in the hands of the commissioners, available for use at the Portland exposition, materials and fixtures of an estimated value of $12,480.85. In this exposition, as at Portland, California received a great number of grand prizes and gold and silver medals.

The fortunate results from the display made at St. Louis in 1904 prompted the Legislature to make an appropriation for the Lewis and Clark exposition in 1905. The amount appropriated for the former exposition had been $130,000, and for the latter $90,000 was provided. The law made the Governor sole commissioner, and as my assistants I selected Messrs. J. A. Filcher and Frank Wiggins, who had been the commissioners for the St. Louis exposition. The display of products made was admirable and challenged favorable comparison with displays made by any and all other states. Although the accounts in connection with the State's participation in this exposition are not quite all settled as yet, there will be a balance of about $4,000 to be turned back into the State treasury, and, besides, there are materials and fixtures left for use in some future exposition of the approximate value of $10,000. No scandal and no serious controversy marred the success of the State's participation in these two great expositions.

The Jamestown and Seattle Expositions.—At Jamestown, Virginia, during the present year there will be held a national and international exposition as an observance of the ter-centennial of the first settlement of this country. The United States Government and the governments of many states have arranged for participation in this exposition, which will possess many features of historic and industrial interest, and California has been urgently invited to provide for proper representation of her material products and of her contributions to the progress of civilization. The exposition management has set apart space for California, and it remains for the Legislature to say whether the State shall avail itself of the opportunity presented. Believing that in the past the exhibitions made of our resources and products have been profitable to the State, as well as gratifying to the pride of all its citizens, I recommend participation in the Jamestown exposition and suggest the making of a suitable appropriation.

Another exposition will be held upon the Pacific coast in the year 1909, when, in the City of Seattle, the Alaska-Yukon exposition will throw open its gates. Although not fully informed concerning the plans for this exposition, I believe it will be important, and both for reasons of material profit to be anticipated and as a matter of courtesy to the State of Washington, I would urge participation by California. To that end I suggest some form of declaration of intention by the present Legislature, and also such an appropriation as will cover the cost of preliminary preparation. A further appropriation can be made by the Legislature of 1909.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH.

There is no department of State government that better deserves legislative support than the State Board of Health. The work it is now doing is of inestimable importance to the welfare of the people of the State, and yet it is doing but a small part of what could be done by it for the public good. Until recently there had been no adequate record kept of births, deaths, and marriages in this State. If for any reason it has been desirable to look up the antecedents of any person, or to trace any person to his grave to know of a certainty that death has taken place, it has been next to impossible to find a reliable record for the purpose. If the present Bureau of Vital Statistics shall be maintained, as it should be, both a full and an exact record can be found regarding births, deaths, and marriages. In the settlement of estates these records are invaluable.

The Board maintains a hygienic laboratory at Berkeley, by means of which pathological specimens are examined by experts for the benefit of physicians and health officers, making it possible to diagnose contagious diseases and so prevent epidemics and consequent sickness and death. Through its Secretary, other officers, and members, the Board has carried on an important public educational work throughout the State, has organized one State and two district health officers' associations, and has vitalized public interest in affairs which concern the physical well-being of the people. Much time and effort and a little money have been expended in keeping the streams of the State as free as possible from contamination, and so securing sources of pure water supply.

A pure food department is one of the imperative needs of the State Board of Health if it is to safeguard the public from fraud and from consuming deleterious substances. To make such a department effective California should enact a State pure food law supplementary to the National pure food law. With Nation and State working together for a common purpose, there is reason to hope for the doing away with an evil of gigantic proportions and lamentable consequences.

California needs, associated with its State Board of Health, a sanitary engineering office, with a competent sanitary engineer at its head, to whom may be referred all subjects connected with the sanitation of cities and towns and State institutions. As time passes systems of sewage disposal and sources of healthful water supply become increasingly important, and, unless competent advice can be furnished in such cases, mistakes will be made that will prove costly. Opportunities for educative work of incalculable value are here presented, and it is the proper province of the State to lead in educative work of this character.

Educational work is also needed along the line of remedying the physical deficiencies of children during the school age, and especially in relation to the deficiencies of dependent children cared for in orphanages. Many of these are handicapped for life for want of simple treatment given at the right time, and, for the lack of such treatment, paupers, criminals, and human failures abound where self-respecting and self-sustaining citizens would otherwise have resulted.

The profitability of the expenditures here recommended to legislative attention may not be immediately visible in a decreased tax levy, but we may be sure that those profits will be realized along lines of lessened inefficiency, pauperism, and crime. I commend the needs of the State Board of Health to the attention of the Legislature.

PUBLIC EDUCATION.

There has been a large increase in school census children in our State since 1904. The total for that year was 407,398 between the ages of five and seventeen years. For 1906 the total reached 440,917. The gain of attendance at school, either public or private, does not keep pace with the increase in the number of children. During the year 1904 the number of those who had attended some school during the year was 355,746. The report for 1906 increased this number to only 364,950, a difference of only 9,104. This would seem to show that California is receiving additions to its population from people who do not appreciate the advantages which education affords.

The number of school census children who had attended no school at all during the year 1905 was 75,965, while two years before it was 71,652. If we say of the larger number that four twelfths are either between five and six years old, and therefore under school age, or between fourteen and seventeen, and therefore above the age of compulsory school attendance, we still have in California more than fifty thousand children who ought to be in school, but are not there.

This is sufficiently startling to challenge attention, and yet it has only to deal with those who have not at any time during the year enrolled themselves in any school, public or private. When the crucial test of average daily attendance comes to be considered, the case becomes astounding. The average daily attendance at the public schools reported June 30, 1905, was 217,873. That year the number of school census children was 418,315. If we deduct from this the number accredited to private schools, 12,092, and assume that they all went to school every school day, we still have 376,223 to account for. Out of this number only 217,873 averaged as being in school, while 158,350 averaged out of school every day in the school year. In brief, only 58 per cent of the children accredited to the public schools in California are in school continuously.

It is not by the amount expended in school houses, or the sum annually expended in teachers' salaries, or in apparatus and supplies, that the value of a school system is to be determined. The supreme test is that of efficiency, and with the parents of 50,000 children utterly disobeying the compulsory education law, and the parents of 108,350 more children disobeying it partially, the standard of efficiency for 1905 was certainly not one to satisfy this State. I recommend legislation requiring incorporated cities and towns to maintain one or more attendance officers, for it is probably in cities and towns that the most serious dereliction of school duty lies.

The new law for the apportionment of State school money works well. In six counties out of fifty-seven it has wrought a decrease in the amount of State school moneys apportioned, but inasmuch as the loss sustained in such counties was effected by cutting off allowances for children who were never inside a school house, the injustice inflicted was more apparent than real. Of the $4,092,691.59 of State funds apportioned during 1906, the sum of $2,141,691.59 was apportioned on a basis of average daily attendance and $1,951,000 on a basis of the number of teachers allowed by the school census. The weaker counties and communities have been helped, and the stronger ones can not complain of being injured, for the reason that no injustice has been done them.

It will be of interest to note the effect of State aid upon the high school system of the State. The total number of high schools entitled to receive State aid June 30, 1903, was 143. June 30, 1906, the number was 159. The enrollment for 1903 was 17,473. For 1906 it was 28,075. The average daily attendance for the year ending June 30, 1903, was 13,689. For 1906 it was 21,397. The number of teachers employed in 1903 was 741. For 1906 it was 1,137. The number of graduates in 1903 was 2,074. For 1906 it was 2,813. The total expenditures for 1903 were $1,229,500.39. For 1906 they were $2,118,849.15. The total investment in high school property in 1903 was $3,353,646. In 1906 it was $5,093,014. State aid has increased the strength and efficiency of high schools rather than created a multiplicity of them, and it has helped a good work all along the line. It should be continued.

The University of California.—Our State University is a noble monument erected by the people of this State to the cause of education. It is the realization of the ambitions of the Pioneers of '49, who planned, even before California was admitted to the Union, in our first State Constitution a system of free public schools crowned by a great university. It is an institution of advanced learning, where the poor and the rich, the high and the low, can, and do, meet on terms of equality. With its free instruction, many poor young men and women, whose efforts will more than repay the State, in good citizenship and in dollars and cents, all the University has cost or ever will cost us, have been able to secure an education.

California, with only two millions of people, supports—one entirely and the other partially—two of the greatest of the educational institutions in the United States: the University of California and the Leland Stanford Junior University. No other State can boast of an equal self-sacrifice on the part of its people.

Some twenty-five hundred of the sons and daughters of California attend our State University, and the great cost of their instruction is cheerfully borne by the taxpayers. Yet, the buildings at Berkeley can well and conveniently accommodate only one half the number of our sons and daughters actually in attendance at the University. And many of the buildings in use are mere, cheap makeshifts, which the Board of Regents, bending to stern necessity, have been compelled to put up to house, even inconveniently and crowdedly, the army of young people whom the people of the State have put into its charge. Many of these buildings are rickety firetraps, housing collections, instruments, and apparatus which cost much labor, knowledge, and money to acquire. Yet, until now, the finances of the State have never been in such condition as to warrant sufficient enlargement of University quarters. Now, however, with the great increase in taxable property in this State, with a million dollars surplus at its command, I am of the opinion that, in addition to the many other calls that will be made upon its resources, the State treasury can find the means, without increasing the burdens of taxation beyond the normal, to make an immediate addition to the beginning made by the erection of California Hall toward properly housing our University. Private benefaction has done more than the State toward the realization of dignified, convenient, and proper educational domiciles for our University young people. The magnificent Mining Building, the gift of Regent Hearst, the Doe Library, the Harmon Library and Gymnasium, and other smaller but no less appreciated gifts to the University, testify to the high esteem in which, by generous individuals, our institution is held. Only California Hall, among the many buildings erected by legislative appropriation, is now worthy of this great State and that great University.

One of the first buildings erected at Berkeley ought to be a building in which to house the College of Agriculture. California's wealth, prosperity, and fame rest largely upon her agricultural and allied interests. And these are important enough to warrant us in adding to the Davisville University farm and the Kearney farm, near Fresno, a great and necessary building at Berkeley devoted to agriculture and all that goes with it.

I therefore recommend to the Legislature that the sum of $500,000 be appropriated for the erection of a proper Agricultural Building at Berkeley.

University Farms.—The University farm at Davisville and the Kearney gift at Fresno should both receive the support of the State. Neither is unnecessary for uses to which they both may be put in the practical teaching of agriculture and all the industries connected with it, such as pomology, viticulture, dairying, and livestock raising, all so necessary to the State's prosperity. To properly equip these two farms will require the erection of suitable buildings on each, the acquiring of machinery, tools, stock, and equipments of various kinds, as well as the employment of instructors, mechanics, and laborers. All this should be done intelligently, liberally, and well. I therefore recommend to the Legislature the appropriation of at least $400,000 for these purposes. No better use of public money can be made.

University Salaries.—I desire, while speaking of the University, to call attention to the fact that the salaries paid to the teaching force at Berkeley are, in many cases, only to be designated as niggardly, and in but very few even approaching a satisfactory standard. The limited funds at the disposal of the University and the great number of students who present themselves for instruction compel the Board of Regents to pay instructors and assistants, most of whom have spent years of time and thousands of dollars in qualifying themselves to teach California's sons and daughters, salaries that are, compared with the wages of mechanics and other skilled workmen, to say nothing of those occupying private positions of even less responsibility and importance than those who teach our young people, shamefully small. Many such men at Berkeley, men of standing and reputation in the world of letters, known throughout this country and Europe for their attainments, are paid eighty, ninety, one hundred, one hundred and fifty dollars a month. Such salaries as these are totally inadequate to recompense those to whom they are paid, nor can those who receive them live upon them in these times and enjoy those comforts of home and family which such people are, in simple justice, entitled to.

Even the professors and heads of departments in the University are not adequately paid. Comparisons with the professional salaries paid at other, but no better, universities than ours show how poorly paid, as a whole, our professors are. Harvard's minimum professorial salary is $4,000; and for each five years of service this minimum is increased $500, until a maximum of $5,500 is reached. Columbia and Chicago pay their professors $5,000 each, with $7,000 in exceptional cases. Stanford pays $4,000. Our professors receive $3,000, $3,500, and $4,000. Taking the difference of living expenses into account, Harvard's $4,000 is equivalent to at least $5,000 here.

It is a high tribute to the devotion to their professions of the men whom we have at Berkeley, and a high compliment to the standing and reputation of our University, when men of world-wide reputation, such as our professors are, will stay with us when, at other universities, they could receive equally honorable positions and higher salaries. California, in her present time of prosperity, is able to pay the University teaching force somewhere near adequate salaries; and, being able, she ought to do it. I therefore recommend to the Legislature that the appropriation for the salaries of the teaching force at the University be increased at least twenty-five per cent.

Public School Teachers' Salaries.—The members of the faculty of the University are not the only people connected with our educational system who are underpaid. For the teachers in our public schools, who receive from sixty to eighty or ninety dollars per month, are very much underpaid.

We should have, for the teachers in the public schools, the very best talent obtainable. Teaching, like the practice of medicine, law, or theology, is a profession, and its practitioners should be trained as doctors, lawyers, and preachers are. This training requires years of time and large sums of money to acquire; and, like all other professional people and those who learn trades, our teachers should regard their work as a life work. Now no person should be expected to take up a life work which will, as in the case of our teachers, yield a maximum salary of only ninety or one hundred dollars per month.

Almost any active, intelligent man or woman can earn more money in private employment than our teachers do. The natural result is that too many of our best teachers, especially men, are deserting the schoolroom for other employments. We need more men teachers, and all our teachers ought to be more contented with their positions than they can be with the salaries we pay them. In almost all private businesses there is an opportunity to gain better salaries by closer application and years of service. The opportunities to do this in the school department of this State are not very many; and, when gained, the rewards are not very great.

I therefore recommend to the Legislature the amendment of the school law so that the pay of teachers shall increase a certain fixed sum, say ten dollars per month, at intervals of, say, five years of continuous service. By this means long service will give promise of greater returns, and, in this way, better inducements will be held out for the ambitious to take up and remain in the profession of teaching as a life work.

SALARIES OF STATE OFFICIALS.

On several occasions I have called attention to the totally inadequate salaries paid to State officials. Even the Governor, with $6,000 per year, a house to live in and $2,500 per year toward its support, and traveling and other funds at his disposal, is unable to make both financial ends meet. But a State Treasurer, whose bond alone is $100,000 and costs $300 per annum, is paid but $250 a month as recompense for the great responsibilities he has to assume. The Secretary of State, with the many and varied duties of his most important office, is also paid but $250 per month. The State Controller, also a very important and necessary official, receives a like salary of only $250 per month. The Attorney-General, the legal counselor and adviser of the State, with its vast and multifarious interests, is paid, like all the others, only $250 per month. So, also are the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the head of our great public school system, and the Surveyor-General. In private businesses, much smaller than that of the State of California, similar positions are accompanied by salaries twice, even thrice, as great.

It is true that it costs a large sum, a very large sum, of money to run this State government. But its great cost does not arise from the salaries paid its elective officers.

I desire, also, to call the attention of the Legislature to the fact that it is already very difficult, and rapidly becoming impossible, to secure and retain efficient skilled, or even unskilled, help at the hospitals and other State institutions. When the mechanic, even the unskilled laborer, receives, at private employment, three, four, five, six, and eight dollars per day, the State can not expect to retain the services of skilled and competent persons for one, two, or three dollars per day. I therefore recommend that sufficient money be appropriated to secure, at the State institutions, by means of better pay, the willing services of skilled and competent employes.

SAN JOSÉ AND LOS ANGELES NORMAL SCHOOLS.

The main building of the State Normal School at San José was rendered wholly unfit for use by the earthquake of April 18, 1906. This building, utilized for the Normal School proper, was of brick. The children's training school is of wood and has been put in a thorough state of repair and safety at an expense of about $5,000. Competent architects and engineers have examined the main edifice and report that it should be taken down, discarding even the foundations, and an entirely new structure erected in its place. Such new building should be built of nothing less staunch and durable than a steel framework and concrete curtain walls. It is probable that such a structure will cost as much as $250,000, and I recommend that the Legislature make this appropriation. The school is now being conducted in temporary buildings, and no time should be lost in proceeding to reconstruction work.

The State Normal School buildings at Los Angeles were repaired at a cost of $40,000, and there is no pressing need of replacing these buildings with others. The site occupied by these buildings is of great and increasing value, and it is as valuable for the State to hold as it is for private or corporate ownership. It is only a question of time when the State will desire to erect buildings in Los Angeles for the accommodation of its courts and other offices, and when that time comes no better site can be found than that now occupied by the State Normal School.

THE STATE PRINTING OFFICE.

During the last two fiscal years the State Printing Office was operated at a gross expense of $572,319.21, and if the cost of new equipment be added, the total expenditure has been upwards of $600,000. Of this sum nearly $300,000, or one half, represented the expense of manufacturing school text-books, which, being sold, returned their cost, or a little more, to the State. The printing executed for the different departments of the State government, including the University, cost $180,102.60, and $92,443.66 was the cost of printing for the Legislature. The number of school books manufactured during the fifty-sixth fiscal year was upwards of 400,000, and during the fifty-seventh year upwards of 550,000. Few persons are aware that the State government conducts the largest book manufacturing business on the Pacific Coast and the only large school-book printing establishment west of Cincinnati.

Public printing is a rather serious problem for all State governments as well as for the Federal Government, and one of the most frequent complaints is the excess of cost as compared with private printing. An expert who had made inquiries in different parts of the country asserted recently that public printing cost from two to ten times as much as private printing. The cost of printing done in the California State Printing Office is high, but a comparison with other public printing establishments would probably result favorably to ours. As the best way to reduce the cost of work I have favored the equipment of the office with the most improved machinery in the form of type-setting machines, presses, folders, automatic feeders, and book-binding machines. This has been accomplished, and the office is now so well equipped that in the school-book department the cost of the work has been sensibly diminished, and during the year 1907 it should be possible to further reduce the prices of the school text-books, although they are already lower than retail prices of corresponding books produced elsewhere by private publishers. The apparent assets in the school-book department of the office increased in three years and a half under Superintendent of State Printing Shannon from about $130,000 to approximately $340,000.

The State Printing Office plant is too valuable to be much longer housed in the present unsafe building in the Capitol park; a suitable building should be erected at some other place in Sacramento, nearer to the river and the railroads, so that incoming and outgoing freight may be more cheaply handled.

COÖPERATION OF STATE AND NATION.

In my inaugural address of four years ago I called the attention of the Legislature to the pressing need of protection for the forest and water interests of this State and advised coöperation on the part of the State with the United States in these matters. The Legislature of 1903 appropriated $60,000 to be expended in collaboration with the several departments of the National Government engaged in this kind of work, with the express understanding that the National Government would expend a like sum for the benefit of California, the work to be done by the Government's trained experts. This has been done, even in excess of contractual requirements, and the work is still progressing. The Legislature of 1905 appropriated $76,000 more to be devoted to the same ends. This work has been, and is now being, done mainly along the following beneficial lines:

1. Topographic.—This work has been prosecuted by a department of the United States Geological Survey and has consisted, mainly, in surveying and mapping the physical features of the west side of the Sacramento Valley from Iron Cañon, above Red Bluff, to Suisun Bay. Contour lines have been run at intervals of five feet, difference of level and the work will be completed on the west side by June 30, 1907, and within the present appropriation. The results of this work are being accurately mapped and printed for distribution by the Government at Washington. This work will, by June 30, 1907, have cost the State $50,000, and the National Government an equal sum. It is estimated that it will require four years more and an expenditure by the State of $80,000, to do a similar work covering the east side of the Sacramento Valley. It is of great importance to the State, and I recommend that this expenditure be made and that the coöperative topographical work be continued until the entire State shall have been covered.

2. Hydrography.—The area of land in California suitable for irrigation is easily ascertainable. Not so the supply of water for the irrigation of that land. A part of the coöperative work under consideration has been the making of an exhaustive study in order to determine the quantity of waters in California both above ground and below available for irrigation and the generation of power. Many of our principal streams have been, and are being, carefully gauged. More than seventy gauging stations have been maintained, but the work needs to be extended over a period of years to make the results of permanent value. Careful investigations are being made into the extent and probable permanency of subterranean water-bearing strata throughout the State. The importance of this work may be judged from the fact that two thirds of the irrigated area in Southern California is now being supplied with water by irrigation from wells, and that the single community of Pomona has $565,000 invested in pumping plants. One fifteenth of the entire expenditure of the United States Government for this kind of work is being expended in California. Our State Legislature has appropriated $35,000 to carry on this work for the four years ending June 30, 1907, and it is estimated that it will require $25,000 as the State's share for carrying on the work the next two years, the increase to be devoted to investigations of underground waters. So far, only one third of the expenditure has been devoted to this work and two thirds to investigations regarding surface waters. I earnestly recommend that this appropriation of $25,000 be made.

3. Hydro-Economic Investigations.—The determination of the quality of the waters used for domestic supply for cities and towns, and for manufacturing and irrigation, is of equal importance with that of the available quantity. The State's contribution to this branch of the work has been small, only $1,000 having been set apart for it during the last two years. The United States Government has, in this particular, expended two dollars to California's one, and wholly for California's benefit. It has been found that certain streams are contaminated by certain of their tributaries and not by others, but to trace the source of such contamination to its head is a work of some magnitude, inasmuch as sample waters must be taken from streams each day in the year and carefully analyzed. To prosecute this work effectively the Legislature will be asked to contribute $2,000 a year for the next two years, the General Government contributing a like amount. This appropriation should be made.

4. Irrigation and Drainage Investigations.—This branch of the coöperative work has been undertaken in collaboration with the United States Director of Experiment Stations, and is most important to California. Next to the quantity of water available, and the quality of it, must be ranked its economical use, for only by economy in use can all the arid lands of our State be finally brought under successful tillage. This investigation has covered the wasting of water by irrigating communities and methods of preventing such waste, the duty of water where it is being used economically and otherwise, the rates and conditions governing evaporation and percolation in handling water for irrigation, the cost of pumping under differing conditions and with different appliances and powers, and the drainage of surplus irrigation and other soil waters for their conservation and for the reclaiming and preservation of soils. For this branch of coöperative work the State has contributed $25,000 for the four years ending June 30, 1907, the Government contributing an equal sum for the same work. The Legislature will be asked for $10,000 a year for the next two years for continuing this important work, and I recommend that the appropriation be made.

5. Forestry Coöperative Work.—When this department of coöperative work was undertaken California had no general forest policy and had made no beginning toward having one. Under coöperative endeavor with the United States Forest Service, the forestry resources of the State were carefully surveyed, methods of conserving our forest resources were studied by expert foresters, our best timbers were subjected to scientific tests touching their utility for commercial purposes, and so were trees grown here but imported from foreign lands. The effects of fires and of grazing timbered lands were carefully and even exhaustively noted, and methods were studied and experiments made in reforesting burnt and cut-over areas. Finally, a forestry policy for California was elaborated and presented to the last Legislature, which enacted forestry laws making at least a beginning toward an ultimate forestry system for our commonwealth. This has about completed the coöperative forestry work for California as originally outlined, and no appropriation will be asked for this department of work for the next two years. The total cost of this branch of the work, so far as appropriations have been made during the last four years, has been $25,000.

OUR STATE FORESTRY SERVICE.

The Legislature of 1905 made the Governor, Secretary of State, and Attorney-General ex officio a State Board of Forestry, and authorized the appointment of a State Forester with two assistants. An appropriation of $17,600 was made to defray all of the expenses of the forestry work for the succeeding two years. This was, confessedly, a beginning, and only a beginning, looking toward the ultimate evolution of a comprehensive and efficient forestry service for the State. The forestry act was essentially coöperative in its spirit and comprehended coöperation with the Forest Service of the United States Government so far as practicable, coöperation with the respective counties of California, and coöperation with corporate and private forest owners in a united attempt to protect alike the forestry property of the Nation, the State, and individuals from destruction by fire, in renewing deforested areas, and in generally advancing forestry interests.

There is an increasing demand for reliable information as to the renewal of forests when cut-over, as to feasible methods of making trees grow where they do not now grow naturally, as well as how best to conduct a lumbering business without destroying the reproductive powers of timbered areas. But the resources placed at the disposal of the State Forester are wholly inadequate to the attainment of these ends. His own time, and that of his assistants, is chiefly taken up with routine work in striving to secure coöperation along lines of fire protection rather than tree planting and forest renewal through aiding natural processes. The service needs more money and more technically trained assistants in order to meet demands that are legitimate and insistent. Technically trained foresters can not now be obtained, so great is the demand for them the whole country over, for less than $1,800 per annum.

For forest protection 367 fire wardens have been appointed by the State Forester. Of these 103 were paid by the several counties coöperating with the State Forest Service, 128 are being paid by the United States Forest Service and are mainly forest rangers guarding National forest reserves and parks, and 136 are paid by corporate or individual forest owners, or are serving without compensation and therefore without the best results. During the danger season of 1906 there were reported as many as 120 forest fires, which burned over a total area of 650,000 acres, destroying forest property of immense value. Forest wardens reached and aided in extinguishing 75 of these fires, but there can not be an adequate protection of the forests without the employment, during the season of danger, of at least twenty district fire wardens for the proper organization of their respective districts for coöperative fighting of fires. Such wardens will each cost $90 per month, and expenses, during the danger season, but will save to the tax rolls of their respective districts many hundred times their cost. The price of lumber in the open market is a forceful reminder of the necessity for a more adequate forest protection in this State. During the past season twenty-four arrests were made under the forest laws, sixteen of the resulting court cases have been disposed of, and fines to the amount of $425 have been imposed and the money covered into the State treasury to the credit of the State Board of Forestry. It would be conducive to greater efficiency on the part of counties cooperating if half the amount of fines imposed and collected were covered into the forest funds of the counties wherein such convictions are had.

The present forestry law, and code provisions in conflict therewith, should be so revised by the coming Legislature as to eliminate inaccuracies and ambiguities. It is estimated by the State Forester that an efficient safeguarding and advancing of the forestry interests of California will necessitate an appropriation of $30,000 per year for the support of the State Forest Service, and, in the light of the destruction heretofore wrought in California's forested areas, once regarded as inexhaustible but now sadly depleted, I am of the opinion that the Legislature should make such an appropriation. Not only are our lumber interests involved, but our irrigation and drainage interests as well. A good beginning has been made, but let it not remain merely a beginning. There is too much at stake to permit of any hesitancy on the part of the State.

LANDS REVERTING TO THE STATE.

As a consequence of the present laws in regard to the sale of property for non-payment of taxes, the State is acquiring a great deal of more or less valuable land, and an intelligent policy in regard to the disposition to be made of it is urgently needed. An investigation recently undertaken by S. J. Flinham, of the United States Forest Service, who worked in cooperation with the State Forester, resulted in the discovery that there was in certain counties an aggregate of nearly half a million acres which had not only been sold but deeded to the State for unpaid taxes. The scope of this investigation included only the counties containing forest lands and a few other counties in the south where forest-tree planting is being encouraged. The total area for the whole State is, of course, considerably larger and is being added to annually.

In some counties the removal from the assessment roll for taxes of the great extent of lands which has been sold to the State is becoming a serious evil. As a means of lessening the same the Legislature of 1905 passed an act permitting the acquirement, under certain conditions, by purchasers from the State, of tax-delinquent lands for a sum less than accumulated taxes and interest, but it is a question whether this law does not work an evil by encouraging many persons to let their taxes go delinquent in the hope of buying their property back for less than the taxes would have amounted to. In a good many instances lands sold to the State for unpaid taxes continue to be occupied and used by the former owners, and there are even instances where valuable mines continue to be worked after having been sold and deeded to the State. The temptation to this form of speculation is increased by giving unlimited right of redemption of tax-delinquent property up to the time when the State has actually sold it.

As a beginning for the needed remedy I suggest that the law be amended to terminate the right of redemption six months after the land is deeded to the State. This would still give property owners five years in which to redeem—as a deed to the State is not given until five years after the first sale for non-payment of taxes—and that period is believed to be amply sufficient. A considerable portion of the tax-delinquent lands—more than 180,000 acres—is located within the boundaries of United States forest reserves and national parks, and it is believed that the Federal Government would acquire these lands and give in exchange other lands situated outside of said reserves and parks. But it would hardly be profitable to the State to make the exchange until after our land laws have been so amended as to keep enterprising speculators from snapping up at $1.25 per acre any lands of value which might be acquired by the State in this way. To that end I suggest that there be created a board of control, to consist of the Governor, Controller, Surveyor-General, and State Forester, empowered to appraise, sell, exchange, or reserve, subject to court review, these lands, as may be deemed most advisable in each instance. One of the advantages of such a system would be that timbered lands which ought to be reserved for the benefit of watersheds could then be protected. The Legislature could not have for consideration a more important subject than this, and I respectfully urge action along the lines proposed.

SIXTH DISTRICT AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION.

On August 17, 1904, there was commenced in the Superior Court of Los Angeles County an action by the Sixth District Agricultural Society against a number of individuals, who, it was claimed, were unlawfully in possession of the fair grounds, and claimed the title thereto. The complaint alleges that the Sixth District Agricultural Society holds the title to the fair grounds upon a trust to use them for maintaining agricultural fairs and for public exhibitions of live stock, and that the defendants had associated themselves together for the purpose of asserting ownership to the property and of diverting the rents and profits thereof to their own use.

The controversy thus brought into court had its beginning as early as the year 1883, when some of the defendants in the above-mentioned action and the predecessors in interest of other defendants instituted an action affecting the title to the fair grounds, in which action the Sixth District Agricultural Society intervened, with the result that a judgment was had confirming the title in the Society and ordering certain conveyances to be made to perfect the record.

In the year 1897 a second attempt was made to obtain control of the property by substantially the same group of persons who had made the previous attempt. Having organized an association designated as "District Agricultural Association No. 6," they elected under the provisions of a statute passed in 1895 to have a capital stock and distributed the shares among themselves and others making like claims. The first board of directors of this corporation comprised a majority of the directors of the Sixth District Agricultural Society. Proceeding under the Act of 1895 this new association took possession of the fair grounds, and ever since has exercised ownership over them for the individual profit of its stockholders.

This was the state of affairs when, in the year 1904, new appointments to the board of directors of the Society were made and the control of its affairs came into the hands of a majority disposed to contest the claims of the new association. As stated above, the suit in court to determine the controversy was commenced in August, 1904. A judgment has been recently rendered in the case which establishes the title and right of possession in the Society, and in addition declares that the defendants are accountable to the Society for rents and profits in the sum of $5,584.

Among other things the court finds as follows: "That there is not, and there never was, any such corporation as 'District Agricultural Association No. 6,' and that no such corporation ever in fact or of right issued any certificates alleged to be certificates of stock. That the attempt to form such corporation was without the authority of law, and that the acts whereby the defendants and their associates attempted to form said corporation, and their acts in attempting to create a capital stock and to issue so-called certificates of stock, and their acts purporting to elect directors, and all other proceedings taken by said defendants and their associates in connection therewith, were and are a mere pretense, sham, and wholly without right, and were taken by defendants and their associates as a pretext for and in pursuance of a scheme for obtaining the said property of the said Sixth District Agricultural Association and converting and using it for their own use, profit, and gain, and diverting it from its lawful and proper purpose and uses."

This tract of land, now lying in the City of Los Angeles, is worth several hundred thousand dollars, and the State should intervene strenuously to resist every effort that may be made to take it from her. As shown above, the Superior Court, after a long and exhaustive trial of the case upon its merits, has decided that the property belongs to the State. Only a finally adverse decision of the court of last resort should cause the State to relinquish to any individuals this valuable property. It is more than probable that an attempt will be made at this session of the Legislature to so modify the law under which the State now holds the property as to make it possible for the adverse claimants to gain possession of it. All such attempts should be frowned upon, and nothing should be done or be permitted to be done that will, in any way, weaken the State's title to the land. I commend this important matter to the especial attention of the Legislature.

THE STATE CAPITOL.

At its last regular session, upon the recommendation of architects employed by it, the Legislature made an appropriation of $352,925 to remodel and improve the interior of the State Capitol building. The report upon which the appropriation was based called for the adding of a fourth story by lowering the ceilings of the Senate and Assembly chambers; for new heating, ventilating, lighting, and plumbing systems; for two electric elevators, for the removal of the wooden roof-trusses, and for other extensive changes calculated to render the building more nearly fireproof.

The improvement work is now well on its way, considering the setback caused by the San Francisco disaster, and when completed the building will be as comfortable and convenient as the most modern office structure. This end is devoutly to be wished, the present improvements having been long needed. Although the Capitol was a magnificent building when it was erected, little has been done in the last thirty-five years to replace the original primitive conveniences with more modern ones. The plumbing system, in particular, is bad, and the heating and ventilating facilities are of an antiquated type.

If it be found, upon investigation by the Legislature, that additional appropriations are needed to complete and beautify the interior of the Capitol, I recommend that such appropriation, if possible, be made. With the work still in progress, there can be no doubt that further improvements can be made at the present time with much less expense to the State than at any future time. In comparison with the cost of similar buildings in other states, the expenditures required at this time, added to the original cost of the State Capitol, make a very modest total. The State of California should take pride in having its most important public building reflect the wealth and the refinement of its citizenship.

RAILROAD RATE DISCRIMINATIONS.

The practice of rate discriminations on a wholesale scale by railroads in California has been revealed through an investigation of the transportation of oil which was recently completed by the Commissioner of Corporations of the Department of Commerce and Labor of the United States. This is a serious evil, menacing the very existence of many business interests, and calls for a remedy which at present our State laws fail to supply. One of the worst features in the situation is that most of the discrimination has been practiced in favor of the gigantic trust known as the Standard Oil Company and against competing companies representing California enterprise and capital, many of which competing companies have been already crushed out of existence.

When great oil discoveries were made, a few years ago, in the Kern River and other districts, a large number of companies was organized and capitalized to carry on the production and refining of oil and the allied industries. For a time many of these companies prospered and their enterprising promoters were in a fair way to reap the reward of their efforts. But the Standard Oil Company came into the California field, and since then scores of independent oil industries, as if stricken by a deadly blast, have withered and died. The report published by the Commissioner of Corporations upon his investigations shows how this changed condition has been brought about.

The Standard Oil Company has pursued in California the same practice which it has adopted elsewhere of securing special tariffs and rebates for the double purpose of gaining extraordinary profits for itself and driving its competitors out of business. In this, the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe, and several other railroads appear to have been willing instrumentalities in the hands of the trust.

Some Details of the Discriminations.—A hundred pages of the report of the Commissioner are devoted to a description of the various devices by which injurious discrimination is practiced. The payment of rebates to favored shippers—generally the Standard Oil Company and its allies, the Pacific Coast Oil Company and the Associated Oil Company—has played a large part, and the employment of secret rates has been the next most common practice. The investigation "developed the existence of more than eighty different deviations from published tariff rates on oil in California." A list of all these discriminations is given in the report, from which it appears that many of these discriminations are in rates from Bakersfield, a considerable number from Richmond, and others from Los Angeles and other points.

In California fuel oil is generally sold to manufacturing plants and other large consumers on contracts running for a year or longer, and the margin is so close that even a small difference in transportation rates is likely to turn the scales in favor of one competitor in the trade and against another. But the advantages in rates given to the Standard Oil Company and its allies were not always small ones; they were often large in amount. To quote Commissioner Garfield: "Again and again the bid prices of independent crude oil producers, based on the full tariff rate of freight, indicate that they would have underbid a favored competitor had they been given the secret rates that he obtained." While the published tariff rate of the Southern Pacific Company on shipments from Bakersfield to Redding, Red Bluff, Keswick, and other points in the northern portion of the State was 2 cents per gallon, the Standard Oil was shipping at 1.4 cents. This discrimination amounted to 25.2 cents per barrel, and enabled the Standard to make a handsome profit while shutting its competitors out of the trade.

In one instance the Standard Oil Company contracted to sell oil in Redding for 79 cents per barrel, when for competing companies the freight alone cost 84 cents a barrel. From Richmond, where its principal refinery is established, to Keswick the Standard Oil was given a secret rate of 46 cents per barrel, while from other points around San Francisco Bay where rival refineries had been established the rate was 84 cents. From Richmond to San José, a distance of 55 miles, the railroad company shipped oil for the Standard Oil Company at the rate of $1.20 per ton, while from Stockyards to San José, only 45 miles, a rival company paid $2 per ton. At a time when the Santa Fe Company's published rate on oil from Redondo to Los Angeles was 10 cents per hundred pounds, the Standard Oil Company was allowed to ship for 4 cents, and even this discrimination was afterwards increased. From Bakersfield to San Diego the Santa Fe gave to the Associated Oil Company a rate which meant a discrimination of more than 42 cents per barrel.

Other Devices to Hamper Producers.—The foregoing are a few out of many instances of injurious discriminations in favor of the trust and against the independent producers; but rate discriminations were only one of a number of means employed to harass or destroy independent producers, as demonstrated by the Commissioner of Corporations. One of the most potent means used for their discouragement has been the failure to furnish them cars when needed. Several years ago most of the oil cars in use in California were owned by a subsidiary company of the Standard Oil, and when the latter came into the California field these cars were withdrawn. The railroad company could or would not supply others, and the independent oil producers, being unable to guarantee deliveries of oil, were reduced to distress. The Standard and its allies could guarantee deliveries with little or no fear of car shortage. Some of the enterprising competitors bought or built cars in the East, but the railroads refused to haul them, and compelled the owners to sell or rent them. Evidence is presented to show that when the car shortage was at its worst, large trains of oil cars were standing in railroad yards marked "Hold" or "To be held."

Under such intolerable conditions as these, it is not strange that most of the independent producers and refiners have been driven to the wall, and the only wonder is that so many of them survive as really do. But unless they are given the protection of the law in some better manner than that in which it has been afforded hitherto they will all be reduced to helplessness and the sway of the oil trust in California will become absolute.

Legislation is Needed.—All of the discriminations and other improper practices before described have occurred in connection with commerce within the State of California, and therefore do not constitute a violation of the laws of the United States. It is not within the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission to deal with these particular abuses. But the Legislature of this State can provide remedies, or at least can supply the means to punish those who are responsible for the evil. At present there is a most remarkable absence of statute law on the subject; although the State Constitution contains a stringent provision forbidding just such discriminations as have been described.

Section 21 of Article XII says: "No discrimination in charges or facilities for transportation shall be made by any railroad or other transportation company between places or persons, or in the facilities for the transportation of the same classes of freight or passengers within this State, or coming or going to any other State."

Nothing could be clearer or more positive than that constitutional declaration, but although another section says that "the Legislature shall pass all laws necessary for the enforcement of this article," it has failed to do so in the matter of rate discriminations. The Constitution itself provides no penalty for violation of the prohibition of discriminations, and no statute on the subject can be found. It is true that Section 489 of the Civil Code purports to fix maximum rates, but the Supreme Court has intimated that this is no longer in force, and it does not touch upon the subject of discriminations. Consequently, as matters now stand, any railroad which chooses to do so may, in spite of the absolute prohibition by the Constitution, proceed to practice such discriminations in intrastate commerce as could not be practiced in interstate commerce without incurring the severe penalties of the Federal law. These discriminations may be carried even to the extent of destroying independent business concerns and aggrandizing the trusts, and bring down no legal punishment on the heads of the authors of such acts. There is crying need of a punitive law, and I call the subject to the serious consideration of the Legislature.

TRUST METHODS, AND A REMEDY.

It is not solely by securing unfair discrimination in transportation rates that the Standard Oil Company and other trusts are enabled to destroy competition, and, after having done this, to oppress the great mass of consumers, as they had previously oppressed rival producers. By the very weight of their capital and the extent of their credit they make competition difficult, and when, by the adoption of unscrupulous commercial methods, they push their advantages to the limit, they become a serious menace to many industrial interests. In other states these conditions, some time since, reached the stage which justified government intervention so far as government could intervene on grounds which would be legally and economically sound.

California has had too little development along commercial and manufacturing lines until very lately to call for the attention of trusts and cause them to ask and receive such railroad rate and other discriminations as in the East first created great trusts and then gave them the further power to ruthlessly crush out of existence their business competitors. Our climatic and other conditions are such as to enable our people to produce much more per capita than those of other states and countries. Our first production was gold; our second cereals; our third was, and is, citrus and deciduous fruits. Our manufactures are just beginning to be developed. If allowed to compete on equal terms with those of other states, if given the opportunity, free from the "strangle-hold" of transportation discriminatory rates and other trust methods, our State's manufactures, in the hands of our people, will soon develop into magnificent proportions. The fate of our oil producers, driven to the wall by the foreign Standard Oil Company by means of favorable transportation discriminations, teaches us that we are in danger of having any and all home industries which may assume considerable proportions taken from our people and given over into the hands of foreign trusts by our railroads, which are dependent upon us for their existence and the colossal fortunes which, from us in part, they are making for those who have them in charge.

For these reasons the control and regulation of industrial trusts is a subject which deserves to engage the attention of the Legislature during the present session. In this connection I desire to direct special attention to the anti-discrimination law adopted in Kansas two years since, and which is so entirely sane and evidently just that it appears to be a model for California and other states. It is directed against one of the most common practices of the trusts, consisting in selling the same products at high prices when no competition exists, and at other times, or in other places, at prices so low that competition is speedily crushed out. The law in question provides that it shall be adjudged "unfair discrimination" and a penal offense if any person, firm, or corporation shall intentionally, for the purpose of destroying the business of a competitor in any locality, discriminate between different communities by selling a given commodity at a lower rate in one place than in another, after making due allowance for difference in cost of transportation or manufacture. The offense of unfair discrimination thus created is made punishable by a fine of from $500 to $5,000, and contracts made in violation of the law are declared void.

It is not conceivable that such an act as is above described would do injury to any legitimate interest in California, and it could be made to put an end to some of the competition-wrecking operations which the trusts are accustomed to carry on. In the oil investigation conducted by the Commissioner of Corporations, it was learned that the Standard Oil Company resorted to discrimination in prices as a weapon against its strongest competitor, the Union Oil Company, and the latter was forced into an agreement to sell to its rival all the refined oil it should make and cease to compete in that branch of the business. This is an example of the iniquitous trust practices which can not be punished by any law now on our statute books, but could be reached and stopped by such a law as is here proposed.

THE STATE RAILROAD COMMISSION.

The regular biennial report of the State Board of Railroad Commissioners will be laid before you, and from it you may be able to determine whether the usefulness of this branch of the State government is great enough to justify the expense it involves. It is a matter of common knowledge that for a good many years the amount of business transacted by the board has been small and that few persons who consider that they have suffered grievances at the hands of the railroads manifest a disposition to submit them to that tribunal. I have caused an examination of the minutes of the board to be made, and from this it appears that during the last two years about a dozen more or less trifling complaints were all which were brought to the attention of the Commissioners; the authors of these complaints generally dropped them when called upon to make a formal showing, and in all that time there has not been a single contested case calling for the taking of testimony and the hearing of arguments. In short, the board has, practically, done no business, because it has no business to do. Its main function is supposed to be the fixing of transportation rates, but it has fixed no rates, unless it be upon an agreed basis, for a long time past. Even the compilation and publication of the railroad statistics of the State, which was formerly done with some thoroughness, has been abandoned in recent years, and when, not long since, one of the leading railroad companies asked for a compilation of railroad laws and decisions in California, the Commission answered that it could not be furnished because of lack of funds.

The railroad commissions of some of the other states are kept continuously busy with a variety of useful work, though in most cases they have less power in regard to the fixing of rates than has the California Commission. They are charged with such duties as regulating grade crossings, inspecting the trackage, bridges, and equipment of railroads in the interest of public safety, investigating the causes of disasters in which loss of life occurs, and examination of railroad accounts. The New York and Massachusetts Boards of Railroad Commissioners, for example, are required by law to keep informed on such matters and be prepared to make recommendations concerning the physical condition of all railways and their equipment and the degree to which their train service affords reasonable accommodation to the public. They are also required to investigate all accidents involving loss of life, if in their judgment an investigation is needed.

By the framers of our Constitution it was doubtless expected that the California Commission also would be a busy, working commission, and an administrative authority, rather than a court of appeal; but they failed to assign to the board these additional duties imposed on other state railroad commissions, and it is at least questionable whether the field of duty defined by the Constitution can be enlarged by statute. But it is plain that if the California Commission can not be made more useful than it is it should be abolished, and I recommend that the Legislature consider the advisability of submitting a constitutional amendment to that end.

REGULATION OF INSURANCE COMPANIES.

The experiences of many of those who held insurance policies on property destroyed by the fire of April 18 to 21, 1906, teach us that some legislation is necessary in order to protect the insured in this State from the dishonest methods which certain insurance companies adopted in the settlement of their losses. The paying of premiums ought to insure the payment of the losses which the insurers contract to pay. The average insured has no means of ascertaining whether or not the insurance company which solicits his risks is financially sound or conducted by honest men. The State should protect the insured by insisting that all companies doing business here shall pay any losses that may occur under their policies. Too drastic legislation, however, will defeat the very thing aimed at; it will so hamper business as to keep out of the State many solvent, honest companies.

It has been suggested that the State shall require the deposit of a large sum of money as an evidence of good faith and ability to pay. To be of any real protection in cases of great catastrophe, when protection is especially necessary, would require a very large deposit. Other states may make the same requirement, with the result that most, if not all, companies would be able to do business in not more than one or two states. The more insurance risks are distributed, the less apt is bankruptcy to follow a localized catastrophe.

Any legislation, therefore, which will tend to limit the field of activities of insurance companies would be undesirable. If, however, the Insurance Commissioner of California were empowered by law to refuse to admit to this State any company which does not keep on deposit, in the hands of a trustee, on conditions imposed by this State, a sufficiently large sum, either in money or bonds, the objections to the requirement of a deposit in this and any other states might be overcome, and, at the same time, a reasonable guarantee might be secured. If this trustee were some well-known and safe financial institution, not necessarily in this State, and if the conditions imposed by this State concerning the purposes and uses of this deposit were such that it would protect, not only California, but other states, it is not at all improbable that the other states in which the depositing company does business would, by law, accept such a deposit as a means of also protecting their citizens.

One thing, however, that seems absolutely necessary to protect the insured in this State is a standard policy form, which should be simple, concise, and exact. Such a standard policy should not contain any provisions which will in any way enable the company issuing it to rid itself of its obligations on account of the indirect effects of "an act of Providence." A fire loss resulting as the indirect or even the direct result of an earthquake should not lessen the claim of the insured upon the insurer; nor should the immaterial injury by any cause of any insured property lessen the responsibility of the insuring company.

If it be considered necessary to permit the addition of "riders" to the standard form of policies, it should be provided that the form and wording of these additions to the policies should receive the approval of the Insurance Commissioner and be printed in the policy in red ink and in antique style type not smaller than small pica, and, finally, in order to become effective, should be signed by the insured, thus making him a presumably willing and cognizant party to the contract thereby created.

Whatever may be said in favor of mutual insurance, which, ordinarily, must be local in its character and extent, it is safe to say that had San Francisco fire risks been carried in such companies there could have been no fire losses paid in that city. For all, or a large proportion of the insured, who would also have been the insurers, having lost all their insured property, the ability to pay the losses would have been destroyed. Any mutual insurance legislation should take cognizance of this lesson taught by the San Francisco disaster, and should provide that risks shall not be assumed where such massed losses may occur.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Experience in all the wars that this country has ever had teaches that it is necessary to have either a trained citizen soldiery or a large standing army. The latter, for many reasons, we do not want, and, if it be possible to avoid it, we must not have. Recognizing the necessity for a serviceable National Guard from which to recruit its armies in time of war, the Government of the United States annually appropriates large sums of money toward its equipment and training. But in order that this governmental aid shall be continued, to say nothing of being increased, it is necessary that the State shall do its part toward properly sustaining our National Guard, which is composed of our young men, who, without personal recompense, spend their own time and money in learning military drill and tactics.

I again call the attention of the Legislature to the service rendered by the National Guard of California during the time of San Francisco's great distress. I also call legislative attention to the need of the National Guard for proper armories, which other states, recognizing the necessity for their state troops, have erected. The money now spent in renting armories for our National Guard amounts to a high rate of interest on the money it would cost the State to erect them.

I therefore strongly recommend to the Legislature the appropriation of sufficient money for the erection of suitable armory buildings in all the cities in this State where there are two or more companies of State troops.

In addition thereto, I also recommend, in accordance with the request of the Adjutant-General, the appropriation of sufficient money to properly maintain the National Guard of California.

LABOR AND SOCIAL STATISTICS.

The twelfth biennial report of the Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics shows a large amount of conscientious investigation and compilation, although the material accumulated prior to April 18, 1906, was destroyed by the fire and it was necessary to reproduce it so far as possible. The scope of the operations of this Bureau was considerably enlarged by the legislation of 1905 which required the collection of statistics of marriage and divorce and of crime. Some very valuable data on these lines will be found in the report, which also includes a mass of statistics on wages, strikes, lockouts, child labor, Chinese and Japanese competition, farm labor, and rehabilitation work in San Francisco. In addition to its statistical work, the Bureau has rendered good service in enforcing the child labor act of 1905, which has proved effective for the purpose for which enacted.

COMMISSIONERS VERSUS COMMISSIONS.

I am impressed with the conviction that the good results attained through legislation providing for the abolishment of the State Board of Horticulture and the substitution thereof of a single Horticultural Commissioner with power to organize his assistant forces so as to make them responsible directly to him, and himself responsible to the chief executive office, is worthy of imitation in other departments of the State government. It seems to me that the United States Government, with its executive and administrative functions organized under departments, each having a single head and an undivided responsibility, is a good model to follow. State governments should not be the last to benefit by a process of concentration of effort and responsibility that has proven so advantageous to all other enterprises of large magnitude. State and institutional boards are neither very efficient nor economical, and can not be, because the responsibilities of their members are so divided. Division of responsibilities never makes for efficiency in the conduct of either public or private affairs, and I am strongly of the opinion that if most of our State boards and commissions were abolished and departments substituted, each being under a responsible head, holding office at the pleasure of the chief executive, with the executive strictly responsible to the people, a marked degree of improvement in efficiency and economy in the dispatch of public business would result.

TULARE LAKE LANDS.

There are some 300,000 acres of valuable agricultural lands now lying under water in Tulare Lake. It is not improbable that a succession of seasons of deficient rain and snow may cause their emergence again, nor is it improbable that they will again be inundated when the snows of winter and the showers of spring again fill the incoming streams to overflowing. Meantime these lands will continue to be of uncertain value and will contribute inconsiderably to the productive power of the State. For many years there has been desultory talk of the construction of a canal down the trough of the San Joaquin Valley for the double purpose of carrying away flood waters and for aiding the drainage of adjacent irrigable lands at ordinary stages of water. It may be questioned whether it would prove of public advantage to precipitate these waters into the San Joaquin River, and thereby complicate the reclamation problem along the lower reaches of that river; but it may be possible to construct a canal of such carrying capacity and length that it will not only furnish drainage for the trough of the upper valley, but irrigation for the west side of the lower part of the valley.

I commend this to the serious attention of the Legislature, coupled with the suggestion that provision be made for a careful survey of the territory concerned for the purpose of ascertaining the most practicable method of reclaiming that large body of valuable land. Also, I would suggest that a method for the proper financing of such an enterprise be made a part of the report made to the succeeding Legislature.

REPORT OF STATE MINERALOGIST.

The report of the State Mineralogist shows that for some years past California's mineral products have been increasing in value at the very satisfactory rate of $2,000,000 per annum. This fact alone would demonstrate that mining, the State's oldest industry, and one of its most important, is enjoying a high degree of prosperity; but additional evidence of this is found in the figures of total production, which exceed $43,000,000 for 1905 and represent forty different mineral substances. I am glad to be able to report that the new law for the suppression of illegitimate mining companies, which, by means of misleading advertising, preyed upon the public, has worked well, and the dishonest promoters have generally sought other fields for their operations.

Acting upon information furnished by State Mineralogist Aubury, the United States authorities recently instituted an investigation of the charges that fraudulent land locations of large extent have recently been made in the counties of Butte and Plumas. It appears that approximately 500,000 acres of land, most of it covered with valuable timber, have been located under the placer laws, and certain of these locations have also been made over the claims of miners who have long been in peaceable possession. This matter is one of immense importance, and the result of the proceedings taken by the Government of the United States will be awaited with deep interest.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGINEERING AND ARCHITECTURE.

Since the office of State Engineer was abolished, a good many years ago, the engineering work of the State has been divided between several different boards and commissioners. The Commissioner of Public Works, the Highway Commissioner, and the Débris Commissioner all have their duties, the boundaries of which are not very clearly defined, and oftentimes it is merely a question of convenience to whom or to what department a given piece of work shall be assigned. In the construction of public buildings the board of trustees, or of managers, of each institution usually selects its own engineers and architects, and each engineer or architect works along lines laid down by himself, with the result that the lessons learned from experience in the construction of one building profit nothing in the building of the next. Better results could be secured by a centralization of authority. It would be well to merge the engineering department of our State government into one department of engineering and public construction, with a single engineer at its head, who should be held responsible to the executive office and should be empowered to associate with him an expert architect, and such other experts along special lines as his work may from time to time require. It should be the duty of this office to procure or make plots of the grounds of all institutions, locating thereon all sewer and other pipe lines and drainage systems, and no alterations or enlargements of any public building should be made without first having obtained the consent and coöperation of this department of public construction.

California is a growing State, and it is inevitable that a great deal of public building must be done, roads constructed, dams built, and reservoirs excavated, and, besides, there is a world of overflowed lands to be reclaimed and arid wastes to be redeemed from drought. Of all such enterprises the fullest records should be preserved and the work be done under a continuing policy that shall begin somewhere and end at some definite goal, instead of being a patchwork beginning and ending nowhere.

It would be wise to centralize and systematize the constructive work of the State under a single head in a single office, with the purpose of procuring uniformity of effort coupled with economy of expenditure.

THE STATE AGRICULTURAL FAIR.

This State institution, properly conducted, can be made, as it once was, of great value to the agricultural and allied interests of this State. The exhibition of 1906, shorn of the objectionable features which characterized some of its predecessors, proved, by the attendance at, and interest shown in, it by exhibitors and others, that a real State agricultural fair, either in districts or at one central place, can be made worthy of State patronage.

In many of the other states such exhibitions are considered, as ours should be, of the greatest interest and value, and are visited by, literally, hundreds of thousands of people.

I would therefore recommend to the Legislature the appropriation of sufficient money to properly equip and maintain the State agricultural fair and to remove from the Capitol grounds the present eyesore of a pavilion, and erect, on the fair grounds, a respectable, convenient building for the purposes of such exhibitions.

PUBLICATION OF OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

I desire to commend to the Legislature for its special consideration the recommendation made by the Attorney-General that authority be granted for the compilation and publication of a volume to be made up of the more important opinions written in the Attorney-General's department during past years. Many such opinions which have been furnished in response to requests from different State officers and boards are of great value, and if made easily accessible would greatly facilitate the transaction of State business. A modest appropriation will be needed for this purpose.

Another important suggestion is made by the Attorney-General, who renews a recommendation first presented two years ago, that his office be relieved of the duty of passing upon applications to sue in the name of the State, and that the function of granting or withholding such permission be left with the courts, where it seems more properly to belong.

RIVER IMPROVEMENT, NAVIGATION, RECLAMATION, DRAINAGE, IRRIGATION.

The people of this State who are directly interested in preserving the navigability of our rivers, in the reclamation and drainage of the vast bodies of very fertile land which lie in our river basins, or in irrigation of those other vast bodies of fertile land which require only the irrigating ditch to make them most productive—the people who are directly interested in these matters are beginning to realize that all four of these important projects are inseparably connected the one with the other, and that each and all of them are dependent for their final perfection upon the improvement of our rivers.

The navigation of our rivers is of the utmost importance to all who occupy the great valleys through which they flow. The six million acres of level land lying between Bakersfield and Redding, together with the four million acres of rolling arable land lying tributary to these valleys, will one day easily support, in affluence and comfort, five million people. The open waterways of our great rivers will, if they be kept navigable, furnish cheap and easy transportation to the great commerce created by this dense population, as the presence of these navigable rivers will do much to keep down freight rates on the railroads. It behooves the State and the Government to see to it that the navigability of these rivers be not only kept as it is, but greatly improved. There should be fifteen feet of water in the San Joaquin as far up as Stockton and in the Sacramento as far up as Sacramento City, and nine feet above these points.

It is a well-known fact among experts that if the waters of a river be kept within its banks it will scour out its bed and deepen itself. The Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers have had many, and still have some, crevasses, or breaks, in their banks, through which the water escaped and still escapes when the rivers rise. The full scouring effect of the water was and is thus lost, and consequently the rivers are not so deep and their navigation, therefore, is more difficult than ought to be the case.

Improvement of Navigation.—Four years ago the Legislature appropriated $200,000 for river improvements, putting its expenditure into the hands of the Auditing Board to the Commissioner of Public Works and the Governor. It was determined to use this money, first, in the closing up of the largest and worst breaks in the river banks, thus confining most of the water to the channel and securing the scouring effect, and, second, to securing certain threatened points of the banks against erosion and other breaks. It was also determined, when possible, to require the owners of lands on which breaks in the river banks were or were threatened, to cooperate with and pay dollar for dollar with the State for the prosecution of the work. Under this system of cooperation several bad breaks have been stopped, other threatened breaks have been prevented, and the rivers have been greatly improved, so that navigation is much easier than it had been for a long period of years. There is now a tide of several inches at Sacramento, a thing unknown for many years before, and river steamers have no difficulty in reaching this city even at the season of lowest water.

The State appropriation, by means of this cooperation, has been made to do duty for four years. It is now about exhausted. The work on the rivers should be continued. I therefore strongly recommend that another appropriation of a like sum be made, to be expended under like conditions.

With a better river, reclamation work is made easier, cheaper, and more certain. The water, confined to the river and not allowed to escape into the basins and attack cross and back levees in the rear, is much more rapidly, easily, and cheaply prevented from inundating reclaimed lands. Navigation and reclamation go hand in hand; both being dependent upon the carrying capacity of the river channel.

The surface of lands along our rivers lying behind levees is generally lower than the high-water surface of the rivers. It is, therefore, more or less troubled by seepage water, and the rain that falls on it can not be readily drained off. The higher the bottoms of the rivers are, the more serious and expensive becomes the problem of taking care of the seepage and rain waters. The deeper the rivers, the better is navigation, the cheaper, more certain and less expensive is reclamation and drainage. The latter is, therefore, like navigation and reclamation, dependent on river improvement.

A Vast Area for Irrigation.—About ten millions of acres in and adjacent to the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys will, if irrigated, raise, in prodigious quantities, almost everything from potatoes to oranges. With proper storage reservoirs in the upper reaches of the rivers and streams of these valleys and the proper use of the countless millions of gallons of water that every year go to waste, this land will support, on irrigated and intensively cultivated farms, a family to every ten acres of its vast expanse. Upon these farms, and in the towns and cities that will grow up and be dependent on them, there can live, as I have said, five million happy, prosperous, and contented people.

The water with which to irrigate these ten million acres must be taken from our rivers and their affluents. The necessary storage reservoirs and the water for irrigation purposes can be much more easily and cheaply utilized if the rivers themselves are improved and their channels deepened so that the water may be confined therein and not allowed, as it has been, and, to a far too great extent, still is allowed, to burst the river banks, inundate the surrounding country, and play havoc with reclaimed lands. Thus, deep rivers will, as has been shown, aid navigation, reclamation, drainage, and irrigation. And these four things will add much, very much, to the wealth of this State and the prosperity of its people. With these four things provided for, north and south of the Tehachapi, our two million people will increase by leaps and bounds, and our one hundred million acres will harbor twenty-five or thirty million people.

The Legislature can, in my opinion, make no better use of the public funds than to provide for the continuance of the work of river improvement.

CALIFORNIA'S HARBORS.

With a north and south coast line of something like eight hundred miles, California has but four natural harbors of sufficient size to safely accommodate a large ocean commerce, viz: at Eureka, San Francisco, San Pedro, and San Diego. Upon these avenues to the ocean California is dependent for the exit and entrance of all the ocean commerce which may be directly or indirectly hers. Upon their proper improvement and use the prosperity not only of the cities lying on these harbors, but also of the whole State of California, to a very great extent, depends. If the shores of these harbors shall be monopolized by a single, or a few, transportation companies, that healthy development of trade and competition, upon which the prosperity of cities, states, and countries depends, will be greatly hampered and the whole State will suffer in consequence thereof.

San Francisco Bay, on its Oakland side, is an example of the paralyzing effect of such monopolization. Here, when the town was first organized, all the water front was given over into private ownership. This ownership finally passed into the hands of the Southern Pacific Company.

San Francisco's water front, thanks to the farsightedness and patriotism of some of her early citizens, has been saved to the State and is being used by and for the State. But San Francisco's water front is only part of the Bay of San Francisco. On the Oakland side is also a water front which is also of great importance to this State. It is of almost equal importance, even to San Francisco, with that portion of San Francisco Bay and its shores which lie in the City and County of San Francisco. For, through Oakland and its neighboring cities is the natural, easy, and convenient access of transcontinental railways to San Francisco Bay and city. The more railroads that terminate on San Francisco Bay, the better it will be for San Francisco. And the easier it is for these railroads to get to San Francisco, the more of them will come.

The Water Front of Oakland.—The Oakland water front, however, has been monopolized by the Southern Pacific Company and its predecessors in ownership. By means of this ownership the Southern Pacific is endeavoring to keep other and competing railroads from acquiring an easy and convenient access to the bay and San Francisco. The struggle of the Western Pacific to break through the Southern Pacific's water-front barrier is an example of what difficulties competing roads must encounter in their endeavors to get to San Francisco. That city and the whole State of California would be better off if this impediment to the approach of competing railroads did not exist.

Oakland's water front, which has passed into private ownership, consists, according to the decision of our Supreme Court, in the strip of land lying within the boundaries of the original town of Oakland and bounded by the lines of high and low tides, as they existed in 1852. Below that line of low tide, both in the estuary of San Antonio and in the Bay of San Francisco, the land lying beneath the water belongs to the State of California. Over it, however, in the interest of navigation, the United States has certain jurisdictions, which are bounded by the so-called bulkhead and pierhead lines, already established by the Government, the names of which explain their purposes.

In my first biennial message to the Legislature I called attention to the fact that certain transportation companies had already built moles and piers over this State land, and that, if not regulated by law, either the companies already occupying portions of it or others coming in hereafter, might monopolize, to the exclusion of still later comers, the whole extent of this State land. This sort of a monopoly dwarfs that portion of California's commerce passing to and from San Francisco.

Section 478 of the Civil Code requires the approval of the Surveyor-General, which approval is open to review by the courts, before a railway corporation may acquire a right of way over public lands of this State. The Legislature of 1903 passed a bill leaving out the provision that the courts may review the approval of State officers of such applications for rights of way. I vetoed this bill on the ground that the interests of the State would be much better conserved if such matters were to remain subject to court review.

Section 475 of the Civil Code provides that grants of rights of way for railroads over public lands, as provided in Section 474, do not apply to any lands of the State within the corporate limits of towns and cities, or within three miles thereof. The Legislature of 1903 passed a bill repealing this Section 475 of the Civil Code. I vetoed this bill on the ground that no particular inconvenience had resulted from this restriction; that railroad companies had had apparently no particular difficulty in gaining access to and across the lands described in Section 475; and that public improvements have not suffered to any appreciable extent because of the provisions of this section.

Section 474 of the Civil Code grants rights of way to railroads over swamp, overflowed, or other public lands of the State, not exceeding two hundred feet in width. The Legislature of 1903 passed a bill which removed the limit of width for railroad rights of way over such public lands. I vetoed this bill on the ground that it is not sound public policy to allow unlimited width for railroad rights of way across the public lands.

Occupation of State Lands.—On the Oakland side of the Bay of San Francisco, extending beyond and below the line of low tide, and, therefore, occupying State lands, are the mole and pier of the Southern Pacific and the pier of the Key Route. These two structures cover many acres of State lands. Under Sections 475 and 478 of the Civil Code as they now stand, these two structures have been built without any authority of law. Had the proposed amendments of 1903 become laws, these lands could have been granted to the railroads and could have been widened indefinitely until they monopolized, to the exclusion of other railroads, the land of the State opposite the Oakland water front and for three miles to the north of the town of Berkeley and three miles to the south of the city of Alameda. Soon after I became Governor I asked the opinion of Attorney-General Webb as to how railroad companies could obtain rights of way across public lands lying within incorporated cities or towns within three miles thereof. His answer may be summed up in the following quotation from it:

"There is no procedure laid down in the codes of California by which a railroad corporation may acquire a right of way for the location and maintenance of roadbeds, tracks, wharves, piers, slips, or terminal facilities over submerged lands beyond the corporate limits of the City of Oakland, which limits are the ordinary low-tide line, and the only method left for such a corporation to pursue is to obtain a special grant from the Legislature."

In my message to the Legislature in 1905, in commenting on this opinion of the Attorney-General, I said as follows:

"If this state of facts obtains as to Oakland, it must also obtain as to any other city or town which is placed as Oakland is, and the need of a State policy in respect to water fronts appears to be indicated. Such a policy should be carefully considered, in order that laws framed in accordance with it may be liberal enough to encourage enterprise and yet conservative enough to prevent monopolization of valuable privileges and to protect the rights and interests of the State in water-front property. Commercial opportunities are beneficial only as they are utilized, and the building of wharves, piers, and docks promotes the general welfare. There should, therefore, be some well-guarded law under which the right to occupy submerged State land, within or near, incorporated cities for these purposes may be facilitated and regulated.

"As the lands under navigable water are held by the State only in trust, for the promotion of commerce, it can never entirely alienate such lands, and it is a question to be determined by the State government what the tenure of the occupants shall be. Some states, like the State of Washington, on this coast, and the State of Massachusetts, on the Atlantic coast, grant leases for long terms of years and charge rentals. If legislation should be had on this subject, and it should be determined that the leasehold policy is the most expedient one for California, the rentals should not be fixed so high as to deter enterprise. The primary aim should be to develop commerce; the collection of revenue from this source, while desirable in itself, is secondary."

I renew my recommendation that a well-guarded law be passed, under which any railroad company may be allowed to lease from the State a sufficient, and only a sufficient, portion of the public submerged lands lying within the limits of incorporated cities, or within three miles thereof, to enable them conveniently to carry their traffic to navigable water. This law should be carefully guarded so as not to remove it from court review and so that only portions of the public domain not more than two hundred feet in width shall be leased to any corporation. The greatest care should be exercised to keep out of such legislation a repetition of the attempt of 1903 to put it into the power of a single corporation, or even a few corporations, to monopolize, to the exclusion of competing roads, public lands, the proper use of which is of such great value to all the people of this State.

Such lands, in limited quantities, ought to be leased to the corporations desiring to use them; and the terms of the leases should be such that the rental to be paid shall be determined at intervals of not longer than ten years. While the yearly rentals should, in no case, be large enough to hamper trade or put any onerous burdens upon the lessees, the privilege to be enjoyed is valuable enough to call for the paying of a reasonable rental. And in this rapidly growing State there would be no hardship in providing that the rental should be fixed every ten years.

Safeguarding of State's Interests.—All these observations apply not alone to the Bay of San Francisco. They are equally pertinent to Humboldt Bay, to San Pedro, and to San Diego. The City of Los Angeles is especially interested in the port of San Pedro; and the rights of the State to the lands in that harbor should be jealously guarded, lest the metropolis of the south suddenly wake up to the fact that her sea trade and commerce, having fallen into the hands of a monopoly at the shore, are seriously hampered and her prosperity greatly interfered with.

I especially call the serious attention of the Legislature to this matter of the protection of our few harbors, upon which depends, to a very great extent, the future prosperity of this State and its people.

In regard to the Oakland harbor, or that portion of San Francisco Bay lying opposite or contiguous to Oakland, I can not refrain from again calling the attention of the Legislature to the vast importance of so safeguarding it that it may be open to the approach and use of all railroads that desire to get to deep water. I have called attention to the fact that upon its proper safeguarding and use the future prosperity of San Francisco, to a very large extent, depends. For, as is apparent, San Francisco's future prosperity depends, very largely, upon competing railroads obtaining easy and convenient access to her; and that access is easiest and most conveniently obtained over the State lands lying in front of and contiguous to Oakland.

But San Francisco is not the only portion of this State that is vitally interested in the protection from monopolization of these State lands and their use by competing railroads. The counties lying in and contiguous to the great Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, in fact all the counties lying north of the Tehachapi, are also vitally interested in the preservation and the proper use of this property of the State. For over it must pass much of the trade and commerce coming from and going to these counties; and the railroads, steam and electric, transcontinental and intrastate, which we hope will, ere long, gridiron our valleys in every direction, will center at the Bay of San Francisco and will, if it be possible for them to do so, gain access to deep water across the State lands lying in front of or adjacent to Oakland. The whole State, certainly every county north of Tehachapi, is interested in seeing that these lands be not monopolized by one, or even a few, transportation companies, but that they be kept for the use of all who desire to utilize them.

A Commission of Inquiry.—In line with this is the taking over by the State of the actual improvements, for trade and commerce, of these lands, as the water front of San Francisco has been taken over and improved by the State. I recommend that a commission, to consist of the President of the Board of State Harbor Commissioners for San Francisco, the Mayor of the City of Oakland, and the State Commissioner of Public Works, be authorized to examine into the State lands lying in front of and contiguous to the City of Oakland and plot and map a system of improvements thereof, in the interest of commerce and trade, and report the same to the next session of the Legislature; and that, in order that this work be expeditiously carried out, the sum of $75,000 be appropriated by the Legislature for the employment of engineers by and the necessary expenses of the said commission.

I also recommend that similar commissions, for similar purposes, be constituted for Humboldt Bay, San Pedro Harbor, and San Diego Bay, and that adequate appropriations for the use of these commissions be made.

In this connection, I call particular attention to the report of the Harbor Commissioners for the Bay of San Diego, which represents that there has been extensive encroachment upon the State's tide lands in that harbor, and that to prevent the ultimate loss of much valuable property the boundaries of the State-owned lands should be definitely ascertained and clearly established as soon as possible through surveys and the production of other evidence. This is an important suggestion, and no doubt it applies with as much force to San Pedro and other harbors as to San Diego.

Wharves and Docks in San Francisco.—The wharf and dock facilities at San Francisco are by no means sufficient for the purposes of the vast commerce which is passing through its portals. For a long time previous to the catastrophe of April, 1906, it was evident that the growing commerce of the port of San Francisco required immediate extension of its facilities. And, therefore, the Legislature of 1903 proposed to the people that they vote the State's credit for two millions of dollars in bonds for that purpose. This legislative proposition was submitted to the people two years later, as the law directs, at the election of 1904. The people voted the bonds, but owing to an adverse opinion of the Attorney-General of the State concerning their legality, it became necessary to submit the matter to the Supreme Court. That tribunal decided, late in 1905, that the bonds had been legally issued. The Harbor Commission thereupon, following the red-tape provisions of the law, proceeded to ask for and accept bids, and award contracts for part of the necessary work, and had decided to award a contract therefor on April 19, 1906. The catastrophe of April 18th, however, compelled a postponement of the work for several months. It is now under way.

It will thus be seen that the delays in the prosecution of this work have been from two sources: first, three years as required by law and necessity; second, six months on account of the catastrophe of April 18, 1906, and the days following.

The destruction of the City of San Francisco has suddenly increased the work put upon the harbor facilities. The much larger importations of building materials, which have suddenly increased one hundred per cent, to say nothing of other supplies, together with the destruction of a portion of the already insufficient docks and wharves, have demoralized the trade of the port.

Another thing which has added to the confusion is the fact that, owing to the bad condition of the streets, the capacity of teams for moving freight from the docks has suddenly decreased one third at least. That is to say, a team that was able to move three tons before the fire, is now able to move but two tons. The result of this is that it has become impossible to remove freight from the wharves as fast as it is unloaded from the vessels; and, therefore, on account of the incumbered docks, it is impossible to unload vessels so expeditiously as they should be. Add to this the fact that the warehouses of the city have been, in great part, destroyed, which renders consignees loth to remove freight from the covered wharves, and we have a still further, and not inconsiderable, increase in the causes which lead to San Francisco's present distress in regard to her wharfage facilities.

Charges Imposed on Shipping.—The claim is often made that the port of San Francisco is the most expensive port in the world. As a matter of fact, however, the port charges of San Francisco, that is, those that are fixed by and controlled by the State, are lower than those of any other organized port in the world. Similar charges in other ports, such as Sydney, in Australia; Hamburg and Bremen, in Germany; London and Liverpool, in England; New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Portland (Oregon), Seattle, and Tacoma, in this country, vary from $7\frac{1}{2}$ cents to \$1.50 per ton, according to kind, for freight which, in San Francisco, pays a uniform toll of 5 cents per ton. Pilot charges, towage, water, ballast, stevedoring, and supplies of all kinds may be higher in San Francisco than they are in other ports, but these charges are not fixed by the State. I repeat that instead of being higher in the port of San Francisco, the port charges which are fixed by the Harbor Commission under the State laws are lower than those of any other port in the world.

The dockage charged by the State at San Francisco is 2 cents per ton for vessels up to 208 tons register discharging cargo; three quarters of a cent for each additional ton; half rates for vessels receiving cargo or discharging or receiving ballast or lying idle. European dockage charges vary from $5\frac{1}{2}$ to 34 cents per registered ton for vessels entering or leaving the docks. Besides this there is a discharging expense of $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 8 cents per ton. There are many ports also in which, in addition to these charges, there are town dues on goods ranging from 7 cents to \$1.25 per ton of freight passing over the wharves. Our wharfage charges are a uniform rate of 5 cents per ton passing over the wharves.

Only about one half the revenue received by the State is derived from tonnage and dockage. The other half is derived from the belt railroad, rents of the ferry building, etc. And only about sixty per cent of the wharfage, of 5 cents per ton, is collected from the freight of ships lying at our docks. The remainder, forty per cent, of our wharfage receipts is collected from the freight which arrives, by ferry, in the railroad cars which pass over the water front.

The method of administering the State's property at the port of San Francisco has long since outlived its usefulness. Already decrepit, its absolute inability became apparent when the great catastrophe suddenly threw upon it a large amount of extra work for which it was not prepared. When the business of the port was much smaller, its affairs could be readily managed by a commission of three members, none of whom need be or can be, under the law, expert in such matters. A commission appointed every four years, as this one is, and composed, as this one has to be under the law, of men whose business is not connected with ships, shipping, wharves, or salt water, must necessarily fail, as the Harbor Commission has, slowly, but surely, deeper and deeper into the pool of politics, until it is looked upon, from Siskiyou to San Diego, from Del Norte to Riverside, as a convenient place in which to take care of political workers and incompetents of all kinds. This is no new thing. It has grown up during the years, until the pressure from the politicians upon the commissioners is too great to be entirely resisted, and the San Francisco water front is looked upon as a fair haven into which shall be towed the political derelicts of the whole State. It would be cheaper, far cheaper, for the State to pension off on full salaries a large percentage of the employees of the water front and employ in their place competent and industrious men. Under such circumstances, the work could be better, more expeditiously and more economically done with two thirds or one half as many employes.

Competent Persons Who Are Debarred.—I said above that the law prevents the appointment, as Harbor Commissioners for the port of San Francisco, of men whose business is connected directly or indirectly with ships, shipping, wharves, or salt water. In support of that statement I quote from the law, as follows:

"No person shall be appointed to any office by virtue of this article, nor be employed in the service of the board, unless he be a qualified elector of the State, nor shall any person be so appointed or employed who is interested in any vessel sailing or plying in and out of or on the inland waters of the Bay of San Francisco, as owner, mortgagee, or otherwise, or a stockholder or in any company owning such vessels, who is a consignee, the general or freight agent or manager of any such vessel, or agent or other employé of the owner of any such vessels, or who is engaged in the business of marine insurance, or of procuring such insurance, or who is engaged as a stevedore, in loading and discharging such vessels. No person not a citizen of the United States shall be employed either as a contractor or laborer on any work done under this article. And eight hours shall constitute a legal day's work, whether performed directly for the State or for the person or persons receiving a contract under this article." (Sec. 2545, Political Code.)

It will thus be seen that any Governor who obeys the law in the appointing of Harbor Commissioners, must overlook all those who, by business training, are best capable of administering and looking after the affairs of a great port. But worse than this, worse because even those who are not trained by previous business experience to be Harbor Commissioners can, with reasonable intelligence and assiduity, become expert in the duties thereof—worse than this, the term of office of the commissioners being four years, no sooner do incumbents become acquainted with the duties of their positions than they are displaced by others, who, as their predecessors were, are compelled to learn their duties, to be, in turn, displaced, when they have accomplished the task. Worst of all, however, is the notion, which has become an unwritten law of custom, that the first duty of a Harbor Commissioner is to take care of political delinquents, without regard to fitness, competency, or industry, except in political campaigns.

The salaries paid commissioners are also entirely inadequate to secure the services of men of large experience and business fitness as Harbor Commissioners. No man whose previous business training would fit him to successfully manage such an immense and varied business enterprise as is transacted on the water front of San Francisco can afford to give all his time, as the President of the Board must, for $300 per month, even if the position were secure for a longer period than four years. And to expect competent men to give their whole time, or any great portion of it, as associate commissioners should, to the State for $250 per month, is worse than an absurdity.

The System Wrong in Conception.—The whole system upon which the administration of the San Francisco water front is based is wrong, radically wrong. Instead of there being three commissioners, there should be one commissioner, whose term of office should be dependent only upon his rendering efficient service and who should be paid a salary commensurate with the value of the service rendered to a business of the magnitude of that transacted on the San Francisco water front. Under this commissioner should be various departments, each headed by men selected by and responsible only to the commissioner. The subordinates of these department chiefs should be selected by and be responsible to, and only to, their chiefs. Efficiency and competency should be the only criteria of employment or retention. But while the executive functions, for the sake of a more energetic administration, should be thus concentrated in one person, it might, and probably would, be found expedient to associate with the commissioner an advisory board, in about the same way in which the State Commissioner of Public Works has associated with him, for certain purposes, an auditing board. In this way, and in this way only, can the water front of San Francisco be put into shape to properly take care of the business passing and to pass over it.

Whether such a state of affairs shall be brought about depends upon the Legislature, in whose hands is the power to initiate and to bring about the necessary changes in the law.

Progress of the Construction Work.—There has been a good deal of complaint because the destroyed portion of the San Francisco water front has not been more expeditiously restored and new wharves built. That material for the restoration of private edifices in San Francisco has not been available in sufficient quantities, everybody knows. The State is in no better position in this regard than individuals. It has been absolutely impossible for the State to secure lumber and material, either in proper sizes or sufficient quantity, to more expeditiously replace its destroyed property. It would, for instance, be worse than foolish to use green, or uncreosoted, piles in the teredo- and limnoria-infested waters of San Francisco Bay. Such piles have a life of only about two years, and wharves built upon them would hardly be more than completed before their supports, eaten off by the marine worms, would require the entire replacement of the piling. Not only would this be an absolute waste of public money, but it would require that such wharves shall be thrown out of commission, pending repairs, about every two years, and this should not be permitted even to relieve the present water front distress. The only way in which wharves can be made to live ten years or more in the Bay of San Francisco is to creosote the piles or build the superstructures on cement or metal piers. At present it is utterly impossible to secure creosoted piles, and the building of cement or metal piers requires a long time, a longer time, probably, than will be required to secure and use creosoted piles.

When it is realized that private permanent work in San Francisco, meeting, as it does, the restraints of want of material and the means of its transportation, is slow in beginning, it is not to be wondered at that public work, meeting the same obstructions and the red tape required by the law, is also slow, but no slower than, if as slow as, private work.

But a properly organized administrative and executive force is not the only thing necessary for the proper expansion of the shipping facilities of the port of San Francisco. To build the necessary wharves and docks will require many millions of dollars and years of time.

The State's Duty Regarding Harbors.—San Francisco harbor and water front is the property of and should be administered by and for the benefit of the people of the State of California, of which San Francisco is only an important part.

While the improvement and expansion of the facilities at San Francisco are of direct benefit to that city and, as I have shown, to the whole upper part of this State, and also of indirect benefit to the rest of California, it must not be forgotten that there is a good harbor at San Diego, another at San Pedro, and a third at Eureka, in the improvement of each of which many of our people have a direct, and all of us have an indirect, interest. Let it not be forgotten, also, that, on the eastern shore of San Francisco Bay there is a water front which is of nearly equal value to San Francisco and the rest of the State as that which lies in the City and County of San Francisco. Therefore, when the people of California are asked to pledge the credit of the State for the extension and perfection of the shipping facilities for the water front of San Francisco, those who ask it should not forget that, while it should improve that water front, the State of California, for its own protection and future prosperity, should also see to it that the shipping facilities at San Pedro are taken in hand by the State, to the end that the great and growing City of Los Angeles and the country surrounding be not left to the tender mercies of private monopolies. The ports of Eureka and San Diego, for similar reasons, should not be longer neglected by the State. Nor should San Francisco and the counties lying north of the Tehachapi permit, for reasons before spoken of, the monopolization of the water front lying on the eastern shore of the Bay of San Francisco. And if the harbors other than that of San Francisco be not looked after and taken care of by the State, it will be difficult to persuade the people of California to vote the State's credit for the improvement of San Francisco water front.

In other words, let the efforts of those who are interested in the improvement of our harbors be directed toward a broad, patriotic, comprehensive plan looking to the improvement and the saving to the people of the State of all our harbors. Let there be no selfish, localized plan; let it be State-wide.

BETRAYALS OF TRUST BY PUBLIC OFFICIALS.

Two years ago California was humiliated by the trial and conviction of two of her State Senators for bribery. A third member of the Senate fled, and is now a fugitive from justice. The Senate is to be congratulated on its prompt action in expelling, after an exhaustive trial and before their conviction by juries, the Senators who, by their dishonest acts, brought shame and disgrace upon California and cast a stigma upon our boasted republican form of government.

The recent developments in the City of San Francisco, which seem to indicate a state of affairs at least as bad as that which existed in New York City under the regime of Tweed, ought to shame every person who claims to be a Californian. That official corruption could go to the extreme which seems to have existed in the metropolis should concern every person who loves this country and desires to see its free institutions perpetuated. For, if unchecked, this official corruption will so poison the whole body politic as to cause the sure death of public spirit and private patriotism.

The official who betrays the trust imposed in him commits a crime against his fellow citizens that is blacker, more despicable and more to be detested than even cold-blooded murder. The latter is a crime against an individual, or, at most, against a very few. But the former is a crime against many and disturbs the very foundations of our free institutions. The bribe-taker is, however, no greater criminal than the bribe-giver. Both should be scorned of all men; both should be punished for their crimes against the State. He who betrays the people in times of peace is no less a traitor to his country than he who betrays it in time of war. There are, to our shame, be it said, Benedict Arnolds still among us.

I commend to the careful, patriotic attention of the Legislature this subject and hope that some method will be devised whereby detection and swift conviction may be made more certain than, to our disgrace, be it said, appears now to be the case.

Technicalities in Our Criminal Procedure.—Another thing that is engrossing the attention of all thinking men in this State is the way in which, by juggling with the technicalities of the law, justice is defied and our courts and laws made laughing-stocks by cunning lawyers. California ought to blush when it remembers how our criminal procedure permitted the notorious George D. Collins to juggle with justice, defy the courts, roll up needless expenses for the public purse to bear and, worse, far worse than this, implant still deeper in the public mind the suspicion that our laws and courts are made and conducted not for the purpose of doing but hampering justice. And no one has forgotten how, only a short time ago, another attorney, in suing for a fee, publicly set forth how, by means of dilatory motions and an endless trickery with the machinery of the law, he had so delayed the bringing of his client into court that the matter had become outlawed.

The San Francisco officials who have been indicted for crimes against the public good are either innocent or guilty; and in the interests of public morality, that innocence or guilt should be quickly established, and justice, either in vindication or severe punishment, should be swiftly and surely meted out to the accused. Yet we see the courts blocked and day after day, week after week, spent in the interposition of dilatory motion upon dilatory motion, followed by time-consuming argument after argument, until it would seem almost as if there was some truth in the public suspicion that the courts are sieves whose meshes are large enough to let through those with sufficient money and influence.

It is a serious matter, one that appeals to us all, that justice may be thus laughed at, the courts mocked, and the protection of our laws against criminals and criminal acts thus defied. No one of us is safe, either in life, liberty, or property, if those accused of crime may thus stave off trial until witnesses forget, are bribed or disappear, or until, by the very bedevilment of the record, some error is made upon which the technical courts of appeal may hand a reversal of conviction.

I commend this whole subject-matter also to the careful and patriotic attention of the Legislature, hoping that such changes in our criminal procedure will be made at this session as will prevent the spectacles that have, within the past two years, brought disgrace upon our laws and placed a premium upon dishonest, shameful, and indecent trickery. Be the fault where it may be, at the bar, in the trial courts, or in the Appellate or Supreme Courts, let the proper remedies be applied, so that those accused of crime shall be compelled to go to trial within a reasonable time; and let that trial be upon the merits, not the fine-spun technicalities, of the case and the law. Let a crime be quickly followed by punishment and not by judicial legerdemain and wearisome justice-refusing technicalities.

THE IMPORTANCE OF GOOD ROADS.

A living, concrete example of the benefits of good roads is afforded by conditions now existing in the City of San Francisco. Since the 18th of April, 1906, the streets of San Francisco have been, as a result of the great catastrophe, in bad condition. As a result of this, teams that could formerly handle loads of three tons can now draw but two tons. In other words, the cost of teaming, from this item alone, to say nothing of the greatly increased wear and tear on horses, harnesses, and vehicles, has increased about 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ per cent. No more eloquent sermon on the benefits of good roads could be preached.

California has done comparatively little toward inculcating into the minds of its people the benefits of good roads. Road-building has been left almost entirely to the cities and counties, and the result has been that, with comparatively few exceptions, our counties have gone on, year after year, squandering money in turning up dirt roads in the spring, which in the winter become quagmires. The reason for this is a dual one. In the first place, those who have the making of roads in charge know little or nothing about either its theory or its practice; and, in the second place, it costs less to turn up a dirt road than it does to build a good road. The cost of the good road is, of course, less, much less, in the long run, than the summed-up cost of the yearly turning up of the dirt roads, to say nothing of the saving of money in horse flesh, harnesses, wagons, time, draught power, etc., on the good road as compared with the poor one.

Most of us in California seem to think that a road is pretty good if the natural dirt, be it sand, loam, or adobe, is thrown up in the center and smoothed a little. And it is generally considered a sort of luxury if, in addition to this, gravel is put on, to sink in the mud beneath and disappear. It is only in a very few counties that macadamized roads are at all in vogue, and they, in most localities, have been put in against the protests of those who benefit most by them.

But the macadamized road is not the best road that can be built in these days of crude oil. Nor is it the cheapest to build or maintain, the properly built oiled road being cheaper, and better, than any other road that can be constructed in California except, perhaps, in localities where rock is cheapest and oil dearest. But while it is the fact that crude oil properly applied to our various soils—sand, loam, gravel and adobe—has, in many places, made first-class, substantial roads, at a cost even as low as $150 per mile, it is also a fact that, in many other places, crude oil, improperly applied at a much greater cost, has resulted in failures and has, therefore, been abandoned as a road-making material.

The State Commissioner of Highways, Hon. N. Ellery, has made an especial study of oil as a road-making material, and has given the result of those studies in his report for 1906. Copies of this most excellent document may be had by applying to him; and I call to it the especial attention of the members of the Legislature and all those interested in good roads.

Effect On Land Values.—Not only do good roads make the products of the farm more valuable because they enable the farmer to deliver them more cheaply, but, conversely, they make the land on which those products are raised also more valuable, because the products themselves are more valuable. Just as the railroads make land more valuable because its products can be delivered more cheaply and quickly than by team, except under certain conditions of short haul and good roads, and just as the cheaper rivers can beat the railroads, so the good roads make the farmers' products and farm more valuable and bring into productive and remunerative use lands that, with poor roads, can not be utilized at a profit. By this increase in value of its lands, to say nothing of the greater prosperity of its people, the State and all its political subdivisions are greatly benefited. Smaller farms replace the great holdings, the great wheat fields give way to intensive cultivation, school houses spring up in all directions, free rural delivery, with the daily paper, and the periodicals, and the telephone, all follow fast upon the heels of the good road. It humanizes, civilizes, brings prosperity, luxury, and affluence to the farmer's door, and enables the former lonely dweller in the country to have and enjoy many of the comforts of the city.

The student of political economy sees the dangers that always have resulted and always will result from the overweening growth in wealth and population of the cities at the expense of the country. No nation has ever long survived, and no nation ever can survive, the corrupting, weakening influences that result from such a state of things. Among the healthy, vigorous, clean people of the country is found the greatest patriotism. Upon them depends that watchful care upon which in turn the perpetuity of our country depends. We have only to look at our stricken metropolis of San Francisco to see the menace to our institutions, our very liberty, that will follow the depopulation of the country brought about by the migration of the country people to the cities. The country must increase in population as do the cities to keep the balance of power and wealth from passing to the latter. The good road will do more, far more, than any other influence, to bring this about. The good road leading to the electric railway will bring the dwelling place of him who lives fifty miles from town almost within its suburbs, and will thickly dot those fifty intervening miles with villages and the homes of happy and contented people.

Time for California to Act.—But, as I have said, California has done but very little toward encouraging the building of good roads. European countries, with centuries of experience behind them, knowing the necessities thereof, maintain good roads as we maintain sheriffs and policemen. And some of the states of our country, like New York, are spending millions of dollars to aid in the building of these necessary adjuncts to and spreaders of population and civilization. The time is ripe for California, toward which are now turned the eyes of all the world, to follow the example of her older and more experienced sister states and the guidance of the still older and more experienced nations of the Old World and do her part toward aiding and encouraging the advancement of good roads.

I invite the careful attention of the Legislature to this important matter, and would recommend that a sufficiently large sum of money be appropriated, to be expended, under the supervision of the State Commissioner of Highways, in cooperating with counties and abutting landowners, in building good roads throughout the State. These State-aided good roads should be State-selected main arteries, built to State-made specifications and State-approved surveys. And toward their construction the State can well afford to pay at least one third the cost.

Oiled roads, as I have said, are cheap and good, when properly constructed. The cooperative sharing of the cost by the State would put a comparatively small expense upon the State treasury or the cooperating counties and individuals. The benefits would, however, be very great to the State, the counties, and the individuals; and the example of her older and good main highways would soon lead to the building of similar roads by the counties themselves. The State can well afford, I think, to pay at least one third of the cost of such highways, if for no other purpose than to insure, by its supervision of the work, good roads in California. And for this purpose I recommend the appropriation of at least $250,000. This sum, in cooperation with counties and individuals, should build at least one thousand miles of good oiled roads in this State and save at least an equal sum in decreased wear and tear and increased efficiency of horses, harnesses, and wagons; besides which it will greatly increase the assessed valuations of the lands tributary to the roads thus built and soon bring back in taxes the money spent upon them.

BUILDING AND LOAN INVESTIGATION.

Whether or not the Building and Loan Associations, or any of them, have been guilty of practices which can not be defended under the law or correct business methods has not been, I believe, authoritatively proven. In view, however, of the uneasiness in the public mind concerning these associations, or some of them, I am of the opinion that an investigation, by some competent authority, legislative or other, into their methods, and the enactment of legislation which will correct any evils that may be found to exist, are both timely and necessary.

Building and loan companies have been of great benefit to thousands who have availed themselves of their privileges. Honestly and well conducted, they can be of still more benefit to the home-builder of small means. And as there has been no advance in legislation to keep up with the development of the building and loan companies, I recommend to the Legislature a thorough investigation of the whole subject-matter, to the end that abuses and weaknesses, if any there be, in the laws governing these companies may be remedied and provided against.

THE STATE LIBRARY.

Within the last two years the State Library has been more thoroughly organized by the Board of Trustees, who have applied the principles of the merit system by adopting a graduated scale of salaries and arranging for regular promotions from the lower to the higher grades based on experience and proved ability. At the same time the library service has been extended in a number of directions and its usefulness greatly increased. I desire to call the attention of members of the Legislature to the valuable assistance they may expect to receive in their work by consulting the legislative reference department which has been established for their convenience. Through the establishment of the traveling library system, the benefits of the State Library, heretofore confined largely to the capital city, have now been extended to all parts of the State, but more especially to the small communities which do not enjoy the advantages of public libraries of their own. There are at the present time no less than three hundred and twenty-five traveling libraries, located in as many different places, in fifty-six counties. Thus, the residents of even the smallest village may have brought to their doors, practically without cost, the advantages of a great modern library. Moreover, the State Library is rapidly becoming a storehouse of rare and valuable books, documents, and manuscripts upon the history of California.

THE JAPANESE QUESTION.

It is safe to say that the President, when he penned that portion of his annual message upon the opening of Congress in which he refers to the treatment of the Japanese in the San Francisco schools, was not aware of the conditions on this Coast, especially in California. In common with the people of the East, who have had no experience with the unassimilable people of Japan and China, the President does not understand the racial differences between the Japanese and the Chinese and people of Caucasian blood. Coming in contact only with a few educated and intelligent individuals of these two races, the people of the Eastern States do not understand that to permit the immigration of only a small fraction of the whole number of these people means the monopolizing by them of such pursuits as they may engage in. This monopolization would not militate against the public good were the monopolizers capable of being absorbed into the body politic, and, in this generation, or even in the next, becoming integral parts of our cosmopolitan people.

Unfortunately, however, neither the Japanese nor the Chinese appear to be capable of absorption and assimilation into the mass of our people. Neither race has, apparently, any desire to renounce allegiance to its mother country and become, in the true sense of the word, citizens of the United States. Our laws and customs regard intermarriage with them as miscegenation. All their energies are bent toward acquiring a competency here to enable them to live in comfort and affluence in their own countries. They collect in colonies, either in the cities or in the country, do only such business as necessity compels with any but those of their own people, and have no close relations of any kind with our people. Being able to live on a small fraction of what seems necessary to support Caucasian people, being, furthermore, clannish in the extreme and evincing neither desire nor ability to mingle with our people, the lower classes of these two nations are not, in any sense of the word, desirable immigrants to, much less citizens of, this country. There are Chinese and Japanese, especially the former, who have lived in this State many years, some of them half a century, and in no essential particulars have they acquired our manners and customs. They are, practically speaking, as much foreigners, in manners, customs, habits of thought, and loyalty to their mother countries as they were when they came here. The great mass of them make no investments in this country, have no interest in its institutions and no sympathy even with our civilization or modes of thought; they make no attempt to accommodate themselves, even in dress, modes of living, or customs to those surrounding them, and, in fact, desire only to gain sufficient wealth to enable them to return to their own countries to live out the rest of their lives.

The Causes in the Races Themselves.—It is beside the question to say that they show these peculiarities because of the inhospitableness of our people. Were the racial differences in civilization, thought, manners, and customs not insuperable between these Asiatics and the Caucasians, whatever inhospitableness our people might show toward them would insensibly disappear and there would be, in spite of all attempts to the contrary, signs of Americanization, in the best sense of the term, among them. Such, however, does not appear to be, in any sense, the result of their residence here. The Chinese among us are still Chinese; they wear, for the most part, their national costumes and queues; they live strictly in quarters by themselves, and preserve their national customs inviolate. The Japanese also have made no attempts to disassociate themselves from their fellows and become individuals among us. They, like the Chinese, congregate together, not in quarters, as the Chinese do, but still apart by themselves. They wear, it is true, American clothes, but they preserve the Japanese customs. And they, even more than the Chinese, refuse to do business, when it is possible to avoid it, with Caucasians.

It is useless to expect that people with such different racial characters, of such different civilization, can ever mix with our people and become absorbed into our body politic. They can not become good American citizens; it is useless to attempt to make them such.

But while the Caucasian can not reconcile himself to the Asiatic, it must not be forgotten that the Asiatic can not reconcile himself to the Caucasian. While the Caucasian looks askance at the Japanese and Chinese, both the latter have an equal, a greater, contempt for the Caucasian. To the Asiatic the Caucasian is an inferior, with whom it is little short of degrading to closely associate.

This condition of affairs exists not only in this country, but also in Japan and China. Both Europeans and Americans have lived for many years in both of these countries, yet there is no mingling of the races even there, no intermarriage, no assuming, on terms of equality, amity, and unconscious friendliness, of the dress, manners, customs, mode of living, or religion of these countries by the Caucasians living there. There, as here, each race looks upon the other as inferior.

Reasons for Separate Schools.—Under these circumstances, it is not at all strange that there is an aversion to the mingling of the children of the two races. And, therefore, California has decreed that, whenever it is so desired, the local school authorities may provide separate schools for the Chinese and Japanese children, in which they shall be taught as Caucasian children are, and by equally capable teachers.

In the case of the Japanese this separation seems to be the more necessary, because many of the Japanese who desire to attend our schools are much older than the Caucasian children with whom, on account of their deficient learning, the Japanese must be enclosed. It is not at all desirable that youths, even Caucasian youths, of eighteen years or more of age, should be associated in the schools with children of tender ages. The reason therefor is sufficiently explained by its mere statement.

The laws of California require, when the local school authorities so decree, the separation of the Chinese and Japanese scholars from the Caucasian. And, as I read it, the treaty of the United States with Japan does not require that the Japanese shall be put in classes with our children. To give them as good school facilities more than complies with the treaty. Therefore, it would appear that San Francisco, in providing separate schools for the Japanese, is acting strictly within the letter and spirit of the laws of this State and is in no way acting in contrariety to the treaty with Japan.

The State of California, a sovereign state of the United States of America, has no quarrel with the government of either Japan or China. On the contrary, California has the greatest respect for these two countries, and deprecates equally any indignities which may be put upon Americans in Japan or China, or upon Japanese or Chinese subjects in this country. We realize thoroughly that it is only the irresponsible and vicious in China and Japan who insult and injure American citizens; we know equally well, and we hope that the Japanese and Chinese governments also know, that it is only the irresponsible and the vicious who, in America, insult and injure the subjects of these two great nations. All good Americans frown upon such indecencies here, as all good Chinese and Japanese frown upon them in their own country. But, nevertheless, until the courts of this country shall have declared that California has no right to do so, this State reserves to itself the prerogative and privilege of conducting, under the law, State, National, and treaty, its schools in such manner as seems best to us; and this without the slightest disrespect toward the Government of the United States or the subjects of any foreign nation.

THE DEATH OF CONTROLLER COLGAN.

The State has met with a serious loss in the death of Edward Power Colgan, State Controller, which occurred on the 20th day of last November. When last the Legislature was in session, so recently as the month of June, 1906, Mr. Colgan was present, apparently in his usual health, and rendered, as usual, valuable service, aiding in solving the financial and other problems arising out of the great disaster of April 18, 1906. Almost immediately following the close of the extraordinary session his health began to fail, and for many weeks before his death it was evident that the end could not be far off. Happily, Mr. Colgan, who had served the people of California faithfully in his important office for nearly sixteen years, lived long enough to know that his fellow citizens had honored him by re-electing him for a fifth term by the largest majority ever given to a candidate seeking their suffrages for a State office. The public career of Controller Colgan was one of high honor, and in private life he was greatly beloved. I suggest that it would be in order for the Legislature to testify in some fitting manner its appreciation of the distinguished public services of Mr. Colgan.

GEORGE C. PARDEE, Governor.

APPENDIX—LIST OF ORDERS EXTENDING EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY.

The number of orders extending executive clemency during the four years of my administration is as follows: Commutations of sentence, 100; pardons, 10; reprieves of sentence, 18; restorations to citizenship, 13. The total number of applications for clemency which were granted is therefore 141. The number of applications for clemency of all kinds received and passed upon exceed five hundred, so that the cases where favorable action was had constitute only a little over twenty-five per cent of the total number considered.

The pardon orders were issued in cases where it was clear that the prisoner was not guilty of the crime of which he was convicted, which accounts for the small number granted. The grounds upon which the commutations of sentence were made are various, including all cases where it was shown that mitigating circumstances had been uncovered and undue hardship or injustice done.

In nearly all cases the orders of commutation were granted upon the condition that, if the prisoner were ever again convicted of felony, he shall be compelled to serve out the remainder of his original sentence, in addition to the sentence imposed for the new offense. The efficacy of this condition as a deterrent of further crime on the part of the released prisoner has been demonstrated, and in several cases, where the condition was violated, the offender has been made to suffer the added penalty.

Following is a list of clemency cases where favorable action was had, with a brief synopsis of the facts of the case and the reasons for extending clemency:

PARDONS.

March 4, 1905. Benjamin Wright, convicted in Santa Clara County in January, 1905, of misdemeanor and sentenced to pay a fine of $150 and to imprisonment of ten days in the County Jail. It was represented that Wright had paid his fine and that he had been amply punished for his infraction of the law. The pardon was issued upon the recommendation of the following officers of the town of Mayfield: A. B. Clark, C. Ducker, L. Distel, P. Towne, Alexander Peers, all members of the Board of Trustees; W. H. Myrick, Clerk; Frank Forshay, Marshal; F. W. Weishaar, Treasurer; W. A. Beasley, Attorney.

December 21, 1905. Thomas W. Kelly, convicted in Fresno County in November, 1891, of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to life imprisonment. At San Quentin State Prison, on October 6, 1905, in the presence of the Warden and the Chaplain, Frank Woods, condemned to death and then about to mount the scaffold, confessed that it was he and not Kelly who committed the murder for which Kelly was imprisoned. After searching investigation, the prison officials certified that they could discover nothing to indicate collusion between Woods and Kelly. In addition the following persons who were familiar with the facts of the crime, state that they have always entertained grave doubts as to the correctness of the verdict, and all urged the release of Kelly, who had served a term equivalent to a sentence of twenty-two years, viz: W. D. Tupper, then District Attorney; H. H. Welsh, the Assistant District Attorney; Frank H. Short, and J. M. Hensley, then Sheriff.

July 21, 1906. Narcisso Mariotti, convicted in Sacramento County in November, 1904, of assault with a deadly weapon, and sentenced for two years. Mariotti, who was then confined in Stockton State Hospital for the Insane, was pardoned upon the report of Dr. F. W. Hatch, General Superintendent of State Hospitals, which was in part as follows: "I am convinced of his insanity at the present time and am of the opinion that the developments in the case go far to confirm our opinion that he was not sane at the time of the commission of the crime." This report was supplemented by a statement signed by Judge E. C. Hart and District Attorney A. M. Seymour, which is in part as follows: "It is our sincere belief that he was insane, and we are of the opinion, as a matter of law, that he committed no crime."

November 20, 1906. James Dowdall, convicted in San Francisco in October, 1906, of robbery, and sentenced for fifty years. Dowdall was pardoned because of the confession by John Siemsen and Louis Dabner that they committed the crime for which he was imprisoned. The confession was so circumstantial and accurate in its details as to leave no doubt of its truth. Dr. T. B. W. Leland, the prosecuting witness, acknowledged that he was mistaken in identifying Dowdall, and recommended his pardon. The papers were referred to the Justices of the Supreme Court, who recommended pardon, saying: "We are satisfied from an examination of the papers accompanying his application that his conviction was due to mistake of identity."

December 6, 1906. Edward Pincus, convicted of vagrancy in the Police Court of Los Angeles City in March, 1903, and sentenced for six months in the County Jail. The judgment was entered upon the failure of Pincus to appear, and after his bail of five dollars had been forfeited. It was represented that sentence was passed without the knowledge of Pincus, and that, although it was never set aside, there had never been any effort on the part of the Los Angeles officials to take him into custody, though nearly four years had elapsed and he had lived openly and decently in said city. He was pardoned on the recommendation of W. H. Savage, John W. Stetson, Dr. H. J. Daniels, and others familiar with the facts.

COMMUTATIONS OF SENTENCE.

January 7, 1905. Rosie Alameda, convicted in December, 1904, of vagrancy before the Police Court of the City of Oakland, and sentenced for a term of six months in the City Prison. It was represented by Anita C. Whitney, Secretary of the Associated Charities; Warren Olney, Mayor of Oakland; J. W. McClymonds, City Superintendent of Schools, and other workers in charitable organizations, that the associations in the prison would thwart all effort to reform said prisoner, and that her extreme youth (sixteen years) rendered it possible to effect her reformation by means of proper influences and surroundings. Having served one month in prison, which, under the circumstances, was ample punishment, she was released.

January 18, 1905. Joseph Bryan, convicted on two charges of burglary in Sonoma County, in April, 1896, and sentenced for a term of twenty years. His term was commuted to expire January 23, 1905. It appears that a rumor current at the time of the trial to the effect that Bryan was concerned in a still more serious crime, lately committed, contributed to the severity of the sentence. This rumor was afterwards found to be without foundation. Bryan's petition was indorsed by S. K. Dougherty, who presided as Judge at the trial; Emmett Seawall, the District Attorney, who prosecuted the case; A. G. Burnett, A. B. Lemmon, J. A. Barham, and other prominent citizens of Sonoma County. A majority of the Justices of the Supreme Court also recommended clemency in this case.

January 23, 1905. John E. Serton, convicted in El Dorado County, in January, 1900, of extortion, and sentenced for a term of two years. His sentence was commuted to expire January 30, 1905. Counting the time spent in the County Jail awaiting trial and appeal. Sexton had served all but one month of his full sentence. In passing upon Sexton's case the Supreme Court said, "Owing to the peculiar circumstances of the case, and the character of the evidence relied upon to support the verdict, we think the law would have been well satisfied with a judgment finding the defendant guilty of a misdemeanor." It was these considerations which were urged by citizens of El Dorado County and elsewhere to warrant Sexton's release, among such citizens being C. E. Peters, District Attorney; G. J. Carpenter, W. F. Bray, James W. Keys, W. C. Van Fleet.

May 2, 1905. Thomas Cody, convicted in Los Angeles County in December, 1901, of grand larceny, upon two separate informations, and sentenced for a term of ten years. His term was commuted to expire July 1, 1905. The recommendation for Cody's release was signed by the State Board of Prison Directors and by B. N. Smith, the Judge who presided at the trial. The resolution of the Board recites that Cody's offense consisted in the stealing of two bicycles, and that the sentence was disproportionate to the crime committed. It also certified that his conduct as a prisoner was exemplary and that he had rendered faithful and valuable services to the State.

May 2, 1905. Charles H. Parks, convicted in Solano County in September, 1900, of rape, and sentenced for a term of twenty years. His term was commuted to expire on the first Monday in May, 1906. Clemency in this case was granted upon the recommendation of the trial Judge, A. J. Buckles, and upon a statement of the case showing extenuating circumstances. There was also presented a sworn statement by the prosecuting witness exonerating Parks from complicity in the crime.

May 9, 1905. Frank Kelly, convicted in Sacramento County in April, 1897, of burglary in the first degree and prior, and sentenced for a term of fifteen years. His term was commuted to expire May 15, 1906. It appears from the statement signed by Max P. Fisher, the arresting officer; E. C. Hart, the committing Judge; F. D. Ryan, District Attorney at the time of the trial, and A. M. Seymour, present District Attorney, that Kelly was not the leader in the crime, and that after his conviction he imparted valuable information to the officers, which assisted materially in obtaining other convictions. At the time of his release he had served a term equivalent to a sentence of about twelve years.

May 9, 1905. Espolinario Martinez, convicted in Los Angeles County in June, 1903, of rape, and sentenced to the minimum term of five years. His term was commuted to expire May 15, 1905. The release was granted upon the recommendation of Judge B. N. Smith and District Attorney Fredericks. The Judge stated that if any discretion had been given him under the law Martinez would never have been sentenced to the State Prison, since it was clearly shown that the offense was committed without criminal intent, and with the consent of the prosecutrix, whom Martinez had lived with as man and wife.

June 14, 1905. Albert L. Williams, convicted in Merced County in December, 1888, of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to life imprisonment. His term was commuted to expire July 3, 1905. The release of Williams was recommended by C. H. Marks, the committing Judge; a majority of the trial jurors, and by a majority of the Justices of the Superior Court. It appears that the crime was committed without the appearance of any murderous motive, and without premeditation or malice, the relations between Williams and the deceased being of the friendliest nature at the time of the homicide, and the shooting having occurred under circumstances which might well bear out the theory of accidental homicide, or at most of manslaughter. Williams had served a term equivalent to a sentence of twenty-seven years.

June 20, 1905. William J. Hamilton, convicted in June, 1905, of drunkenness and vagrancy before the Police Court of Oakland, and sentenced to a term of thirty-three days in the City Jail. He was released by commutation, after serving about half of his sentence, upon a statement of facts by W. R. Thomas, Commander of Appomattox Post, No. 50, G. A. R., and upon the recommendation of George Samuels, the committing Judge. The statement showed that Hamilton was in no sense a vagrant, but was employed at San José, and had come to Oakland to prepare vouchers for his quarterly pension.

August 14, 1905. Christopher Murphy, convicted in Alameda County in September, 1904, of assault with a deadly weapon, and sentenced to a term of eighteen months in the County Jail. He was granted clemency upon a statement of facts indorsed by the following citizens of Oakland, viz: Alexander Young, Jr., L. L. M. Salsburg, E. M. Gibson, W. G. Palmanteer, H. Abrahamson, M. J. Keller, and Frank Barnett. Murphy's offense consisted in participating in a general fight, started in a crowd returning from a public picnic, in which many others took part, none of whom were prosecuted for their part in the affair. At the time of his release Murphy had served all but four months of his sentence.

August 18, 1905. Walter Talmadge, convicted in Tulare County in November, 1896, of grand larceny, and sentenced for a term of eighteen years. He was released upon the recommendation of a majority of the Justices of the Supreme Court and upon a report by Charles F. Gladding, the prison physician, to the effect that the prisoner was suffering from an incurable ailment. Tallmadge's crime consisted in the stealing of hogs, and it appears that the sentence was out of all proportion to the offense committed.

September 22, 1905. James K. McKenzie, convicted of battery in San Francisco in June, 1905, and sentenced for five months in the County Jail. His term was commuted on the recommendation of the committing Judge, George H. Cabaniss, who stated that in the light of subsequent developments the sentence was too severe, the offense being that of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. The petition was indorsed by the prosecuting attorney, J. M. Hanley; by Sheriff P. J. Curtis, and by other officials of the County Jail.

October 11, 1905. William Crawford, convicted of battery in Kern County in May, 1905, and sentenced for six months in the County Jail. The petition was indorsed by the committing Judge, A. W. Marion; Hon. S. C. Smith, Congressman, and R. L. Stockton, Superintendent of Schools, and recited that facts were disclosed subsequent to the trial mitigating the seriousness of Crawford's offense.

October 23, 1905. J. J. Donnelly, convicted in San Francisco in October, 1894, of robbery with a prior conviction of misdemeanor, and sentenced to life imprisonment. This is one of the several cases in which the committing Judge had no discretion in imposing sentence, the law then being such that no lesser punishment could be given in cases where the prisoner was convicted of robbery with a petit prior. W. T. Wallace, the committing Judge, writes: "The statute, which I am informed has since been repealed, compelled me to sentence the man for life. The circumstances are peculiar. Of course he has suffered enough, and I hope that you will intervene in his behalf." Donnelly had served a term equivalent to a sentence of about nineteen years. His term was commuted to expire in June, 1908.

October 23, 1905. Thomas McDonough, convicted in San Francisco in October, 1894, of robbery, and sentenced for twenty years. The State Prison Directors recommended the release of McDonough as "specially deserving of consideration by reason of his conscientious performance of prison duties, his consistent good conduct and the evidence of his complete reformation," and a majority of the Justices of the Supreme Court concurred in such recommendation.

October 23, 1905. Beito Linares, convicted in Los Angeles County in June, 1902, of robbery, and sentenced for ten years. Linares was released upon the petition of the officers of the County Jail at Los Angeles, indorsed by Henry T. Gage, J. D. Fredericks, Frank P. Flint, George P. Adams, and other prominent citizens of Los Angeles County. The petitioners state that while a prisoner at the County Jail Linares did signal service to the community by preventing, at the risk of his life a general jail delivery.

October 23, 1905. William Wilson, convicted in San Joaquin County in April, 1901, of robbery with a petit prior, and sentenced to life imprisonment. This case is similar to the case of Donnelly (supra) where the committing Judge had no alternative in pronouncing sentence. Upon the statement of Judge Edward I. Jones that, if discretion had been vested in him, he would have imposed a sentence of only ten years, the term of Wilson's imprisonment was commuted to expire in April, 1910.

October 23, 1905. William Berry Holland, convicted in Alameda County in August, 1895, of robbery with a petit prior, and sentenced to life imprisonment. This case is similar to those of Donnelly and Wilson (supra). Judge A. L. Frick stated that if discretion had been vested in him, he would not have imposed a sentence exceeding twenty years. Upon this showing Holland's sentence was commuted from life imprisonment to a term of twenty years.

October 24, 1905. George Green, convicted in San Francisco in April, 1901, of robbery with a petit prior, and sentenced to life imprisonment. This case falls in the same class as that of Donnelly, Wilson, and Holland. Judge Cook states regarding the sentence: "Had the statute stood then as it stands now, I should, in consideration of his having pleaded guilty, have imposed the minimum sentence permitted, to wit, ten years. As it did stand, however, I had no discretion, and was compelled to sentence Green to life imprisonment for stealing fifty cents." The sentence of Green was accordingly commuted to a term of ten years.

November 14, 1905. A. E. Eldridge, convicted in San Bernardino County in January, 1904, of forgery, and sentenced for two and one half years. On April 1, 1905, Eldridge was released on parole, and took up his residence in San Diego, where he obtained a responsible position, and won the respect of the community. Upon the recommendation of M. L. Ward, D. C. Collier, and other prominent citizens, Eldridge was released from the restrictions of the parole law by commutation of sentence.

November 28, 1905. John S. Leroy, convicted in Glenn County in October, 1891, of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to life imprisonment. On January 7, 1904, Leroy was paroled by the Prison Directors, and took up his residence in Kings County, where he has lived an exemplary life. The evidence upon which Leroy was convicted was wholly circumstantial, and many responsible persons, familiar with the facts, expressed their belief in his innocence, among such being D. K. Trask of Los Angeles. The petition for Leroy's release was also signed by M. L. Short and W. V. Buckner, Judge and Sheriff respectively of Kings County.

December 21, 1905. John Mahatch, an Indian, convicted in Del Norte County in June, 1904, of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to be hanged. On October 10, 1904, upon the recommendation of Marshall B. Woodworth, United States Attorney for the Northern District of California, who had been requested by the Attorney-General of the United States to investigate the case, a reprieve was granted said Mahatch. Before the expiration of the reprieve the death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment upon the recommendation of the seven Justices of the Supreme Court, and the report of Mr. Woodworth, which showed that the case was not one deserving the extreme penalty, both Mahatch and the person killed being engaged in a drunken row at the time of the killing.

December 22, 1905. J. J. Alvarez, convicted in San Diego County in February, 1880, of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to life imprisonment. The State Board of Prison Directors twice recommended the release of Alvarez, and favorable letters were received from the committing Judge, five of the jurymen, and from the representatives of the Mexican Government at Washington, D. C., and San Francisco. The ground of the various petitions was that the crime was more of the nature of manslaughter than of deliberate murder. The commutation was made conditional upon his departing from California.

December 23, 1905. Percy Holt, convicted in Sacramento City in July, 1905, of petit larceny, and sentenced for a term of six months in the County Jail. At the time of his conviction Holt was under the age of eighteen years. The commutation of sentence was granted upon the recommendation of R. M. Clarken, the committing magistrate, who stated that the sentence was imposed without full knowledge of the circumstances of the case and the previous good record of the prisoner. The petition was also indorsed by S. Luke Howe, City Attorney, and John C. March, City Justice.

December 23, 1905. Edward Sprague, convicted in Yolo County in July, 1905, of attending a boxing contest, and sentenced for a term of three hundred days in the County Jail. At the time of his release Sprague had served over five months of his sentence. Sprague pleaded guilty to the charge, expecting a fine only to be imposed. H. L. Huston, District Attorney, and E. T. Lampton, committing magistrate, recommended clemency, stating that if all the facts of the case had been brought to their knowledge Sprague would not have been so severely dealt with.

January 8, 1906. John Murbach, convicted in Napa County in February, 1883, of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to be hanged, which sentence was thereafter commuted to life imprisonment by Governor Stoneman. The present order of commutation was made on condition that Murbach depart for the State of New York and never return to this State. W. E. Price, a responsible citizen of New York, undertakes to care for him during the remainder of his life. The crime was committed while Murbach and the deceased were in a hand-to-hand fight, and the facts indicated manslaughter rather than murder. Murbach had served a term equivalent to a sentence of thirty-seven years.

January 13, 1906. George Barker, convicted in San Francisco in June, 1898, of robbery, and sentenced to imprisonment for life. Barker's term was commuted to expire on January 22, 1906, upon condition that he leave the State. The order of release was made because of the confession of T. F. Gorman, a convict under death sentence in the State of Nevada, who exonerated Barker from complicity in the robbery, and stated the facts of the crime with such detail and accuracy as to leave no doubt of the truth of his confession. It was believed, however, that Barker had a guilty knowledge of the crime, it being shown that his previous record was bad and that he had close association with the perpetrators of the crime. For this reason he was not given a full pardon.

January 29, 1906. John Grant, convicted of adultery in Contra Costa County, in November, 1905, and sentenced to imprisonment for four months in the County Jail. Grant was released upon the recommendation of W. S. Wells and H. V. Alvarado, Superior Judge and District Attorney respectively of Contra Costa County, who stated that after the passing of sentence in this case, the Supreme Court, upon a similar state of facts had held that no crime was committed, there being no knowledge on the part of the community as to the actual relations of the parties charged with adultery.

January 31, 1906. Laruc Calmes, convicted in Los Angeles in November, 1905, of non-support of his family, and sentenced for one hundred and fifty days in the City Jail. The petition for clemency was indorsed by J. F. Chambers, the committing magistrate, and Wm. Frederickson, prosecuting attorney, who stated that the wife of the prisoner was ill and without means or strength to obtain necessities for her two small children, and that, having served over half of his sentence, the prisoner should be given opportunity to provide for his family.

March 26, 1906. John Murphy, convicted in San Francisco in February, 1902, of robbery, with a petit prior, and sentenced to imprisonment for life. This case is similar to that of Donnelly and others (supra) where the committing Judge had no alternative as to sentence. Judge Cook, who passed sentence, said: "Had it not been for Section 666 of the Penal Code, as it then stood, I should not have imposed more than a ten-year sentence." Accordingly the sentence was commuted to a term of ten years.

April 7, 1906. William Shanks, convicted in Napa County in May, 1906, of disturbing the peace, and sentenced for ninety days in the County Jail. The release was made upon the recommendation of Raymond Benjamin, District Attorney, who stated that Shanks' only offense was his addiction to the liquor habit, that "the purposes of his punishment have been entirely served, and it will be to his benefit and that of his needy family that he be pardoned." Luther J. Evans of Napa also indorsed the petition and agreed to give steady employment to Shanks.

April 17, 1906. John Oakes, convicted in Los Angeles in February, 1906, of battery, and sentenced for ninety days in the City Jail. The release of Oakes was ordered upon the recommendation of W. C. Patterson, member of the State Board of Charities, Rev. P. H. McDonnell, of St. Vincent's Church, and H. H. Rose, the committing magistrate, all of whom represented that imprisonment had effected a complete reformation, and that the aged wife of the prisoner was in dire need of his aid and comfort.

April 26, 1906. Wm. F. Hopkins, convicted in San Francisco of simple assault, and sentenced for ninety days in the County Jail. Upon the recommendation of Captain H. N. Morse and Captain J. J. Callundan, the prisoner was released. They represented that by reason of the fire and earthquake the prisoner's mother was alone and unprotected and on the verge of collapse, and was greatly in need of his care.

April 28, 1906. James Fitzpatrick, convicted in San Francisco in September, 1905, of burglary, and sentenced for a term of one year. It was shown that the earthquake and fire had reduced the family of Fitzpatrick to a condition where his aid and counsel were of immediate necessity, and having creditably served all but two months of his sentence he was released.

May 5, 1906. Donald A. Urquhart, convicted in Kern County in December, 1901, of forgery upon two counts, and given an aggregate sentence of ten years. The Board of State Prison Directors recommended the release of Urquhart because of his good conduct as a prisoner and the severity of his sentence, and J. W. Mahon, the committing Judge, approved the bestowal of clemency. Urquhart had served a term equivalent to a sentence of over eight years.

May 31, 1906. John McClure, convicted in Los Angeles County in March, 1905, of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to be hanged on May 4, 1906. Upon the recommendation of Chief Justice Beatty and Associate Justice Shaw, of the Supreme Court, the sentence of McClure was reprieved to June 8, 1906, to afford time to investigate the case. Fuller statements of the case were thereafter presented and the sentence of McClure was commuted to life imprisonment upon the recommendation of said Justices, it being shown that the act of McClure had not the accompaniments that betray an abandoned and malignant heart; that he was a cripple, aged, poor, and friendless, and that he committed the act to enforce his supposed rights, and out of sudden anger arising from the unjust treatment he had received from the person killed.

June 9, 1906. Julia Wilson, convicted in San Francisco in February, 1906, of vagrancy, and sentenced for a term of six months in the County Jail. The prisoner was released upon the recommendation of W. H. Langdon, District Attorney, who certified that, since her confinement in jail, she had given birth to a child, and that the accommodations were entirely inadequate for the proper care of mother and child.

June 20, 1906. John A. Harmon, convicted in San Francisco in January, 1903, and sentenced for seven years. His term was commuted to expire on November 5, 1906, upon the representation of the Folsom Prison officials that said Harmon gave intelligence to the prison officials of the contemplated break in July, 1903, and that later at the trial of the captured convicts, he testified as a witness on behalf of the prosecution. It was shown that by reason of his said services to the State said Harmon had incurred the ill-will of his fellow convicts, to such an extent that his life was not safe in their company, and he was therefore kept in solitary confinement.

June 26, 1906. Thomas Gormley, convicted in Los Angeles County in November, 1887, of rape, and sentenced for fifty years. The order of release was made upon the recommendation of Wm. A. Cheney and J. R. Dupuy, the Judge and District Attorney respectively at the trial. Judge Cheney stated that the long sentence of fifty years was imposed more because of the prevalence of crime at the time than for any other reason. Gormley's conduct as a prisoner during his confinement of nearly twenty years was exemplary.

June 26, 1906. F. O. Meister, convicted in San Francisco in January, 1906, of obtaining money under false pretenses, and sentenced for a term of nine months in the County Jail. The release of Meister was recommended by F. H. Dunne and W. H. Langdon, the Judge and the District Attorney respectively officiating at the trial. They stated that Meister's family had lost their home and support as a result of the earthquake and fire, and were in great need of his assistance. Meister had served seven out of his nine months' sentence.

June 26, 1906. Eugene Sutherland, convicted in Amador County in April, 1905, of rape, and sentenced for five years. R. C. Rust, the committing Judge, and C. P. Vicini, the District Attorney prosecuting the case, represented that the crime was one of constructive rape only, there being no violence or persuasion, and the person raped having the appearance of being over the statutory age, and consenting to the act. The Judge stated that, had he the power, he would have imposed a sentence of only one year. Sutherland's term was accordingly commuted to expire July 30, 1906.

June 26, 1906. Fred H. Taylor, convicted in Solano County in May, 1906, of disturbing the peace, and sentenced to pay a fine of ninety dollars or be imprisoned in the County Jail for ninety days. Taylor was released on the recommendation of Lieutenant F. N. Fillmore, of the U. S. Navy; John A. Brown, the committing magistrate; L. G. Harrier, Superior Judge, and T. T. C. Gregory, District Attorney. Lieutenant Fillmore stated that Taylor served on board the fire tug "Leslie" during the earthquake and fire in San Francisco, and did heroic service, his hilarious condition having undoubtedly been brought on by a relaxation from the strain of continuous rescue work.

June 26, 1906. Fred Wilson, convicted in San Francisco in March, 1901, of burglary with a petit prior, and sentenced for fifteen years. His sentence was commuted to a term of ten years on the recommendation of Judge Carroll Cook, the case being one where there was no alternative, under the law, but to give the sentence imposed. The case is similar to that of Donnelly and others (supra).

July 5, 1906. John W. Sanders, convicted in San Francisco in July, 1899, of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to life imprisonment. On December 20, 1903, the State Board of Prison Directors granted a parole to Sanders, who has since resided in Mendocino County, where he has led an exemplary life. Having been imprisoned for a term equivalent to a sentence of thirty years, he was given his freedom by commutation, the following citizens, among others, petitioning therefor: Judge J. Q. White, J. B. Sanford, John L. McNab, H. H. Miller, and J. H. Smith.

July 5, 1906. Joseph Harveston, convicted in Santa Cruz County in March, 1898, of mayhem, and sentenced for fourteen years. On October 10, 1903, Harveston was paroled by the Prison Board, and he has since lived an upright life in Santa Cruz County. Following are a few of the many responsible signatures to his petition: Judge L. F. Smith, F. A. Hihn, Duncan McPherson, F. D. Baldwin, A. A. Morey, and J. J. Leonard. His term was commuted to expire in July, 1906.

July 16, 1906. B. Roselli, convicted in Los Angeles County in March, 1906, of violating the "Child Labor Act," and sentenced for a term of five days in the City Jail. It was shown that while technically guilty of the offense, which consisted in permitting a minor child to be employed about his store, there was no intent to violate the law. The petition was indorsed by Joseph F. Chambers, the committing Judge; George Beebe and Guy Eddie, prosecuting attorneys, and W. V. Stafford, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

July 16, 1906. J. H. Swain, convicted in Los Angeles in October, 1905, of a misdemeanor, and sentenced to pay a fine of fifty dollars and be imprisoned in the City Jail for thirty days. H. H. Rose, the committing magistrate, and Wm. Fredericks, prosecuting attorney, recommended clemency, certifying that Swain was in a weak condition from pulmonary disease and that confinement in jail would greatly endanger the chances of his recovery. A certificate signed by Dr. J. W. Jauch corroborated this statement regarding the serious consequences of confinement. Accordingly he was released by commutation of sentence.

July 21, 1906. Earl Duke, convicted in Stanislaus County in May, 1905, of grand larceny, and sentenced for two years. At the time of the crime Duke was but eighteen years of age and pleaded guilty without urging extenuating facts which have since come to light. Having served all but six months of his sentence he was released upon the recommendation of L. W. Fulkerth, the committing Judge, and L. J. Maddux, District Attorney.

August 30, 1906. D. McVicker, convicted in Napa County in June, 1906, of selling liquor within one and one-half miles of the Veterans' Home, and sentenced

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

The total number of votes cast for each of the several candidates for the office of Lieutenant-Governor of the State of California was announced as follows:

COPY OF REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE OF THE ASSEMBLY.

ON EDUCATION.

To the Legislature of the State of California, thirty-seventh session:

This committee was appointed by virtue of the following resolution adopted at the thirty-sixth session of the Legislature:

"Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That a special committee of five members of this Assembly be appointed by the Speaker, and that such committee be charged with the duty of thoroughly investigating the system of common schools in this State and the laws governing the same; that said committee report to the next Legislature, submitting recommendations as a result of its investigations which, in its judgment, may be thought necessary in order to eliminate all confusion and conflict. Said committee shall be entitled to receive from the Contingent Fund their actual traveling expenses incurred in performing its duty herein prescribed and the expense of such clerical assistance as may be necessary in connection therewith."

Under the authority thus conferred this committee held eight sessions, two at San Francisco, one at Berkeley, two at Sacramento, one at Los Angeles, one at Oakland, and one at Fresno, at which suggestions were presented by the leading educationalists of the State relating to changes in the school laws, and many valuable information was secured, thus enabling the committee to reach conclusions that may result in beneficial legislation. A considerable amount of correspondence produced other valuable ideas and the Legislative Reference Department of the State Library furnished a very useful bibliographical index of various subjects investigated by your committee.

This committee also wishes to acknowledge the receipt of valuable assistance from members of the State Teachers' Association, and pertinent suggestions and recommendations from the Convention of City and County Superintendents, many of which recommendations have been adopted.

Submissive to the spirit of the resolution of its appointment, this committee has discharged its duty from the viewpoint of the State and not from the point of view of the several counties, school districts, or other centers. The Constitution of the State provides, and the Supreme Court has so interpreted its language, that the matter of education is a State affair, not a local concern of the people of the several districts; that the school system should be a homogeneous whole that shall produce an equality of results in all portions of the State.

At the outset, however, we have reached the conclusion that no locality should be deprived of all of its powers of initiative and direction as to its educational affairs. The views of leading educators are to the effect that the best educational system is that which divides power and responsibility between the State and the smaller units thereof. This view has been adopted by this committee.

Present Needs of the School System.

The most pressing need of the State school system according to all the testimony adduced by this committee, is for a larger number of qualified teachers in the elementary schools. The evidence of this need may be found in the following facts:

School district trustees in many cases report extreme difficulty in obtaining competent teachers, and still greater difficulty to retain a competent teacher when once secured. Some remote districts report serious delays in the opening of school at the proper time, owing to the inability to secure any kind of a teacher.

The normal schools are supplying a less proportion of the new teachers required than they did a few years ago.

Local boards of education have very few applicants for teachers' certificates. In some instances qualified persons have to be personally importuned to become applicants.

One County Superintendent is on record as offering to take the entire output of one normal school in his county, such being the demand for qualified teachers.

Another County Superintendent reports: "Our schools have held their own in number. The teachers are not so good and are getting worse, all sorts of derelicts being able to get back into the ranks by virtue of the insufficiency of the supply of teachers. * * * The large ungraded schools are sending their share of graduates, but the teachers who can successfully teach them are leaving the ranks of the teaching profession."

It is notable also that male teachers are leaving the profession very rapidly and comparatively few are entering it.

There are two causes that appear to be operating most strongly to deplete the schools of efficient instructors:

1. Inadequate pay as compared with other occupations;
2. Increased difficulty and added expense to meet the requirements of schools and colleges which aim to educate teachers.

It may be stated also that the recent establishment of high schools has operated to attract teachers who otherwise might have attached themselves to the elementary schools, as the high schools offer larger salaries and higher social position, it is but natural that a teacher should seek to become qualified to fill the more exalted position.

There is also to be noted a steady drift of teachers from the rural schools to the town schools and from thence to the larger cities, also caused by the attractiveness of larger salaries and greater social advantages.

This movement has been growing and the conditions above reported have been intensifying for several years and appear likely to continue for several years to come. Therefore it is time that some means should be taken to counteract this tendency and to establish some sort of a policy that will supply for our educational system the required number of qualified teachers.

This matter recently formed a subject for the investigation of the "Commonwealth Club" of San Francisco, and from the report of the educational section thereof we take the following extract:

"It is worth while to compare the salaries of male teachers in California with the pay of other male workers in the State for here are found relations that are of force in determining the number of men engaged in teaching and that help to lengthen or shorten the total period of service as well as the tenure in each position. In 1904, according to the report of the United States Bureau of Labor, street laborers in San Francisco received $15 per week, or $750 per annum, allowing two weeks for rest or sickness. During the same year iron molders received a minimum wage of $3.25 per diem. This gave these skilled workmen $950 per annum after allowing for Sundays, holidays, and a two weeks' vacation. The salary statistics collected by Dr. Frederic Burk for the school year 1904-5 show that thirty-four per cent of the male teachers of California received less than $750 per annum, and were consequently more poorly paid than unskilled street laborers in San Francisco; and seventy-one per cent of the male teachers received less than the $950 paid to iron molders.

The following facts have been collected by the section from County and City Superintendents concerning salary conditions of the current school year, 1905-6:

"In San Francisco the maximum salary of elementary school teachers is $996; the minimum $720; the average, $888. In the other cities under supervision the highest salary of elementary teachers is $912, and the minimum is $540. One of these cities has an average salary as high as $878, and another has an average as low as $630.

"In forty-six counties of the State, including all the cities considered above except San Francisco, the salaries of regular teachers and principals are as follows:

14 receive	$400 or under
677 receive	$401 to $500
1,617 receive	$501 to $600
2,782 receive	$601 to $700
1,689 receive	over $700

"At least fifty per cent of the 1,689 teachers last mentioned are serving in high schools. It should be noted that almost all of the teachers receiving less than $600 are employed in country schools; and that a very large per cent of those receiving over $600 teach in cities. These figures, therefore, point out one of the reasons why the rural and small town schools are being deserted so often in favor of employment in the schools of cities."

As above indicated one remedy for existing conditions must be by the way of making the teaching profession more remunerative. The demand for higher salaries must be met and with promptness if we wish to retain the efficiency of our school system. How to meet this demand for the better payment of the teachers is the problem that has confronted this committee.

Several plans have been submitted to this committee which will have the effect of securing an increase in the salaries of teachers.

One plan is to increase the amount of State aid to the primary and grammar schools, and as the law requires that all money apportioned by the State shall be exclusively used to pay salaries, it would follow that naturally the individual salaries would be probably increased. The method by which the amount appropriated by the State in support of the primary and grammar schools may be increased is by the enactment of a law which will increase the number of school census children by including all children between the ages of five and twenty years. The law at present includes only those between the ages of five and seventeen years. As the amount of the State school tax to be levied each year is determined by the number of school census children the proposed increase will produce a like increase in the amount of the State school fund which is distributed among the several counties and eventually reaches the fund from which teachers are paid.

This plan of increasing the amount of the State school fund would secure approximately $500,000 more for the purpose of paying salaries. A similar result could be secured by increasing the amount to be raised by taxation from seven to eight dollars per census child; or, if the amount be increased from seven dollars to nine dollars the increase would approximate $900,000.

Two members of the committee, Messrs. Slaven and Stobridge, indorse the proposition to increase the State fund, believing that this will secure a substantial increase in the pay of teachers and produce a marked improvement in the number and quality of the teachers of the elementary schools.

Two other members of the committee, Messrs. Trendwell and Thompson, while equally anxious to favor some means of increasing the salaries of teachers, do not indorse the plan of increasing the amount of State aid, believing that the increase should be borne by the several counties, cities, and school districts. In support of this position it is pointed out that from the last biennial report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, during the last fiscal year the financial expenditure in support of the primary and grammar schools was as follows: State funds, $1,889,740; local funds of counties, cities, and school districts, $3,681,439; percentage of State aid, over fifty per cent. In support of high schools: State funds, $210,570; local funds, $2,204,341; percentage of State aid, ten per cent. In support of the State University the State contributed $380,000, while the local subdivisions contributed nothing. The amount per census child contributed by the State in support of the primary and grammar schools was $9, and the amount for each child enrolled in the primary and grammar grades was $13.

From the report of the United States Commissioner of Education for the year 1904 (the latest report issued), are taken statistics showing the expenditures in support of the schools made in several states.

Name of State.	Total Expenditure for Schools.	Amount Contributed by State.	Percentage of State Aid.
New York	$47,642,780	$4,491,720	.095
Pennsylvania	29,169,920	5,446,175	.19
Massachusetts	16,438,780	316,919	.002
Illinois	20,884,417	1,805,26	.09
Ohio	17,838,802	2,104,683	.118
Iowa	10,636,669	214,525	.002
Indiana	9,634,691	2,324,720	.241
Missouri	9,203,855	1,778,189	.20
Michigan	8,871,295	1,929,961	.22
California	8,758,582	3,863,473	.44

The above table comprises the expenditures of the ten states of the Union that expended the largest sums for school purposes. While California ranks tenth in the total sum expended it stands first in the above list in the percentage contributed from State funds. Several of the Southern and a few of the Pacific States give a larger percentage of State aid.

It will be noted from the above table that many of the states which enjoy the reputation of having the highest educational advantages, contribute but little support from State funds, and it does not follow that should this State enlarge its support that added efficiency would thereby be secured to the school system.

Changes made in the school law by the last Legislature required larger sums to be raised in support of the schools, and it is noted from the last report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction that about $700,000 additional revenue was raised during the last fiscal year.

The purpose of most of the legislation mentioned was to effect an increase in the salaries paid teachers. Many counties in the State report that salaries have been increased and also that the school term has been lengthened in many rural districts. In connection with the report of the superintendent it will be noted that the balance in the local school funds shows an increase of about $400,000 over that of the previous year. It would appear, therefore, that instead of raising the salaries of teachers the local officers in many cases permitted the increased available funds to remain unexpended and the same appear in the form of additional cash on hand at the close of the fiscal year. It is probable that next year will witness a greater increase in salaries than has yet taken place.

It is acknowledged that the result of the apportionment law enacted by the last Legislature has produced beneficial results by increasing the salaries of teachers in the rural districts and by lengthening the school term in many of the smaller districts and furthermore that the full benefit has not yet accrued.

But it appears to the members of the committee that do not endorse the plan of increasing the amount of the State School Fund, that the difficulty in the way of increasing the pay of teachers is the lack of means of discriminating between those who deserve higher pay and those who do not, for it is probable that the beginner in the ranks receives at least a fair salary considering the lack of experience. It is those who have fought for years who find their efforts, however deserving, are not sufficiently rewarded. Feeling this and not seeing any alternative to special effort, they relax their energies, become indifferent as to the quality of their work and the general efficiency of the school system is seriously impaired. Any scheme that merely puts more money in the school fund is not going to solve the problem. There is no certainty that an increase of funds will increase the pay of the teachers who really deserve it. It will not prevent local school officials from employing more teachers than may be required, or from employing special teachers, or in other ways eating up the increased funds while the inadequacy of pay of the efficient teachers may remain as it is.

The committee is of the opinion that an effective way of raising salaries of the teachers is by the establishment of a salary schedule by act of the Legislature. This schedule should be a graduated one, relatively small for beginners, but increasing year by year until the maximum is reached. Thus an inducement would be held out for teachers to remain in the profession. There ought also be provision made for rewards to those of exceptional efficiency as a stimulant to extra endeavor. In this way the efficiency of the school system would be measurably increased.

As a measure that may have the effect of increasing the pay of teachers we have been asked to recommend one which will provide that sixty per cent of all county school money be applied to the payment of teachers' salaries. This recommendation is unanimously given, and a measure to this end is herewith presented.

Manual Training, Etc.

While the improvement of the school system of the State has been rapid and gratifying in the extreme, we would be doing ourselves an injustice did we not call attention to the advances made in educational lines by other States and other countries. In certain lines of educational work more rapid progress has been made by other States and by these countries than here. Particularly is this true in the matter of industrial education. Manual training is now recognized as being a necessary part of the modern school system. The most eminent authority on this subject, Prof. Calvin M. Woodward, of St. Louis, has this to say:

"The manual training is concerned with the systematic study of theory and use of common tools, the nature of common materials, elementary and typical processes of construction, and the execution and reading of mechanical drawings. . . . The real object of manual training is not to construct certain objects, which are only the incidental means to demonstrate the power as a result of effort made. It is an operation with mental training, and it strengthens and disciplines all the faculties, the 'whole boy' is put to school."

On the same subject Prof. James P. Munroe, of Boston, maintains that manual training, when properly conducted, and carried on permanently, develops creative genius, broadens comprehension and strengthens character."

Prof. W. T. Harris, formerly United States Commissioner of Education, says: "Tool work with its theory and with natural science is permanently educative."

The demands on this committee for a recognition of manual training and domestic science and other forms of industrial education in the courses of study in our common schools and in colleges and universities, and we would be glad to consider any plan we fail to heed them. We have therefore presented measures for your consideration providing for manual training and domestic science in our schools, that can be taught in the present state of our schools. There is a very strong feeling in the State in respect of polytechnic institutions and for the education of practical engineers in this country and in other States of the State. A visit made by this committee to the Los Angeles Polytechnic High School demonstrated to us the extreme usefulness of such institutions, and we are inclined to the belief that this State is anxious to expand a large system of support of the schools that is now in use to supply a considerable portion thereof and to be devoted to the encouragement of industrial education.

Agricultural Education.

Not only is it interesting but it is highly important that we should note the development of recent years in the matter of providing for the young a means of acquiring a knowledge of the science of agriculture. The Congress of the United States early recognized the necessity of providing some means of disseminating a practical knowledge of this important industry, and did so by liberal endowments of "agricultural colleges" in several states of the Union.

The framers of our State Constitution recognized the importance of our leading industry by declaring that "the Legislature shall encourage by all suitable means the promotion of intellectual, scientific, moral, and agricultural improvements."

Our State University is one of the "agricultural colleges" endowed by Congress. It is a question with us whether the Legislature has performed its full duty in the matter of "agricultural improvement." Congress has, as above stated, endowed a college; the Legislature has in part supported its department of agriculture, and two years ago added to its resources by authorizing the purchase of an experimental farm. But the question has been put to us: "Has not this encouragement been commenced at the wrong end?" The statistics of our State University show an enrollment in the agricultural department of only 123 students out of a total enrollment of 3390. It is notorious that the State is giving a higher education to a larger number of young men and women who aim to enter professions than to those who aim to adopt agricultural pursuits. There is something wrong in the system that accomplishes this result. Moreover, when we consider the fact that but a small percentage of the pupils in our secondary schools ever reach the University, we are forced to the conclusion that the failure of the system above noted is at least in part due to our neglect to provide the necessary impulse in our secondary schools to those whose aspirations are other than scholastic. In other words, agricultural education should properly commence in the primary and grammar grades by suitable "nature studies," to be followed by a certain degree of specialization in the high schools. The graduate of a high school ought to be given a good elementary knowledge of agriculture (that is, if the pupil so desires), so that if circumstances forbid him the privilege of a University course he can be at least partially equipped to enter upon an agricultural avocation.

As it now is, our high schools are fitting their graduates for a higher education of the scholastic sort; they are being fitted to enter at the literary end. The curriculum of the average high school is arranged with a view of meeting the requirements of the University as laid down by the scholars. There are no "credits" given for any sort of industrial training by high schools. It therefore seems to this committee that if the Legislature is to promote "agricultural improvement" it is high time to provide a course of study in our secondary schools that will lead students in the direction of our "agricultural college." And if we are ever to increase the percentage of the pupils who shall enter the University we must make the University attractive for an entirely different class of boys and girls than those now attending. We should endeavor to make it a school for "toilers" as contradistinguished from "scholars." Even if we can not do this, we can at least give some instruction in our high schools that will better fit its graduates to enter upon industrial occupations. The polytechnic high schools now being rapidly instituted tend toward satisfying the demand for trades workers. In addition there should be courses in agriculture and its allied sciences provided, or, what might be still better, there might be agricultural high schools, which, while not neglecting the scholastic branches, would make prominent the specialty which the name suggests.

Agricultural high schools are no longer an experiment in several of the Eastern States and, where they have been established, are said to be highly successful. In Wisconsin schools of agriculture and domestic science were provided for by an act of the Legislature of 1901. This act was amended by the Legislature of 1903, providing for at least four of such schools and providing that the amount of state aid received by each shall equal two thirds the amount actually expended for maintaining the school during the year, provided that no more than $4,000 shall be apportioned to any one school in any one year. The course of study covers two years, and includes the elements of agriculture, domestic science, political and domestic economy, with work in composition, literature, United States history, and civics, and commercial arithmetic with farm accounts. Before these schools are entitled to State aid their work must be approved by the State Superintendent and Dean of the Agricultural College maintained by the State University. Two schools have been organized and maintained under the law. Their creation seems to be fully justified. The instructors of the school improve every opportunity to talk to the citizens of the county on all suitable occasions. An increased interest in agriculture has arisen as a result. A few acres of land for farming purposes is apportioned for the use of such agricultural school.

Following the lead of Wisconsin comes similar legislation in Illinois and Minnesota, and other states are preparing to join the procession.

This committee has framed a measure providing for the establishment of courses of agriculture and domestic science in high schools and giving financial aid to such schools. We trust that it will become a law.

Uniformity of Text-Books.

There has been a suggestion made that some legislation should be had with a view of securing a greater degree of uniformity of text-books in the various high schools; also that there should be a nearer approach to uniformity in the courses of study. At present there are over 175 high schools in the State and each high school board has the authority to adopt text-books and establish courses of study in its particular school. In removing from one district to another the pupil usually finds his entire school plans disarranged and at the same time is compelled to purchase an entirely new set of text-books. In order, however, to meet the suggestion and remove the cause of the difficulty the Legislature would have to confer upon some central body the power to adopt text books and approve courses of study. The committee is not prepared to recommend that such power be vested in the State Board of Education, as the members thereof are already overburdened with duties. This subject is hereinafter incidentally referred to, under the head of "School Supervision."

Free Text-Books.

Nearly every Legislature during the past ten years has been importuned to furnish the State text-books free to all pupils. To meet this demand an amendment to the Constitution will be required. Moreover, it may not be economical or wise for the State to undertake this scheme. The law now permits local boards of education and trustees to purchase text-books for the use of children whose parents are unable to purchase them. This provision is objected to on the ground that it puts the badge of poverty on the children who use the books so furnished, and besides those parents who are poor but proud do not like to avail themselves of this charity, while others, less deserving, take advantage of it. In case this Legislature should not wish to go to the extent of furnishing text-books free to the entire State, we would propose as a substitute measure a law that will give to each county the right to furnish free text-books within its limits. It might be considered wiser to enact such a law than to amend the Constitution so that the furnishing shall be done by the State. If the several counties should undertake this scheme the responsibility would be brought directly home to the people and the gift would be more likely to be appreciated and the expenditures more safely guarded.

In the following states text-books are required to be furnished free: Delaware, Idaho, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Wyoming, Nebraska (twelve states).

In the following it is optional with local boards to furnish text-books free: Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Utah, West Virginia, Wisconsin (fifteen states).

Maryland limits its state appropriation for this purpose to $150,000, and so far as we have any information on the subject this is the only state that purchases text books from its state funds. The local districts bear the expense in all other cases. As to the advantages of a system of free text-books we would call attention to the investigation of the subject made by the United States Commissioner of Education and reported in the report of the Commissioner for the year 1901. The testimony adduced was almost overwhelmingly in favor of free text-books. (See also report of Commissioner for year 1902, page 2499; for the year 1903, page 2415; and for the year 1904, page 2279.)

Supplementary Text-Books.

Serious complaint has been made that a system is much in vogue by which parents are practically obliged to purchase a lot of so-called "supplementary" readers and text-books for their children at the suggestion, usually, of the teacher. From investigation we believe the complaint to be well founded. We have, therefore, proposed a bill which will incorporate into the code a law forbidding the teacher to suggest to the pupil the advisability of purchasing any such supplementary book; that when such books are actually required they must be provided by the school district and paid for out of the school funds of the district. As expenses of this kind would diminish the amount available for salaries, it is believed that the evil complained of would soon cease.

School Supervision.

For some time past there has been a demand from educationists for a more adequate supervision of the rural schools. The law requires of the county superintendent that he shall personally visit each school in his county at least once a year. In many counties this is as often as he can inspect a school, and under such conditions the inspection must be very superficial. The intelligent supervision of schools has been made a theme for almost endless discussion among educators, and several solutions for the present problems connected therewith have been proposed. One suggestion has been made to the effect that each county superintendent appoint a number of deputies, and that these deputies (with himself) should constitute the county board of education. This might work well in the more populous counties where the services of a number of deputies would be required, but would hardly be a suitable scheme for the smaller counties, where the superintendent is able to do all of the supervision. Another plan is to permit the county supervisors to appoint the members of the county board from a list of names furnished by the county superintendent. This might work well at times; sometimes it would cause a clash between the board of supervisors and the superintendent. A similar plan for appointing boards in municipalities has disclosed its weakness. The declaration has been made that there should be supervision by experts. All will agree to this, but thus far no efficacious scheme for obtaining the services of none but experts has been brought forward.

At this point this committee proposes to assert the right, as well as the duty of the State to see that there is proper supervision of the schools—both rural and city. Not necessarily that it will always command the services of experts, but the State should exercise some function of supervision by reason of the superior interest of the State in securing the highest welfare for the child—its future sovereign. It is not a matter calling for the exercise of district authority, or county authority, or city authority—it is a State affair. The State contributes more than $4,000,000 of its funds annually to support the schools. It should have an opportunity to see that this vast sum was properly expended; to see that competent teachers were actually employed and that approved methods of instruction were intelligently exemplified. The concern of the State is the welfare of the child. How can the State ascertain and safeguard the welfare of the child without inquiry as to the conditions surrounding him?

Herein are illustrated the limitations placed upon the State in the matter of unifying the State school system. The Constitution commands the Legislature to provide a system of common schools which the Supreme Court has said must be a State system, and yet the same instrument grants little or no power to State officers. The Superintendent of Public Instruction exercises but a limited ministerial power and the State Board of Education has but little real power other than to provide a State series of text-books. Taking it for granted that the State should exercise some powers of supervision, the Constitution does not provide a means, and that instrument should be amended. We are inclined to the opinion that there should be a State Board of Education exercising enlarged powers. But a glance at the composition of the board as at present constituted will show that it can not exercise any more power to advantage. Not that there is any objection to the personnel of the present board; they are all estimable men and highly competent educators. But they all have other duties to perform and to impose additional duties at this time would mean that they would have to neglect those for which they were primarily appointed. Moreover, it will be noticed that the dominating influence of the board is that radiating from the "higher educational" circle, and no law would be sanctioned by the people that would vest in them the control of the entire school system. Your committee therefore presents a proposed constitutional amendment providing for a new State Board of Education as a necessary and preliminary step toward providing an adequate scheme of school supervision by the State. The next Legislature then will be in a position to deal more intelligently with this important matter.

It may be well in this connection to refer back to the suggestion of providing for a greater uniformity in the matter of text-books and courses of study for high schools. If the above amendment to the Constitution should be adopted, it would make comparatively easy the matter of adopting regulations governing this subject. The new State Board of Education would then be the proper central body to which could be delegated the necessary power; in fact the power of supervision would necessarily include the supervision of text-books and courses of study as well as the matter of supervising the methods of teaching. Through this body the different portions and departments of the school system could be properly related, articulated as it were, and out of it would evolve a uniformed system, which is so necessary when we come to contemplate what should be a complete and harmonious whole.

School Libraries.

Several suggestions have been made to the committee for the improvement of the service of school libraries. Statistics show there are about 1,600,000 volumes in the libraries of the several school districts. The habit of reading good books is one which should be inculcated in every child. Yet during vacations and on other non school days this vast storehouse of knowledge is locked up in the schoolhouse and made practically inaccessible. It has been suggested that boards of trustees should have wider discretionary powers in respect to school libraries; that libraries might be made accessible during vacations; that in towns having public libraries the school library might be consolidated therewith under such conditions as might be agreed upon by the several authorities. The suggestions appear to be good and we present bills to secure the desired result.

High Schools and the University.

A considerable time of the committee has been devoted to securing an understanding of the relationship existing between the high schools and the State University. Complaints were made that the system of "accrediting" high schools was, in effect, a "cramping" process applied to schools instead of to individuals. From time to time the "standard of efficiency" has been raised until the demands upon the high schools required that they, too, should raise their standard of efficiency for admission to these schools from the grammar grade and it was seriously suggested that some of the studies usually taught in the high school should be commenced in the lower grades. The effect of this cramming soon became evident and many protests against the entire accrediting system were vehemently made.

In reply to the accusations it was pointed out that the accrediting system had increased the efficiency of the high schools, had increased their number, and had increased the percentage of high school graduates enrolled in the university. Very naturally this should be so, when the reputation of a high school depended upon its being upon the accredited list of the university; there was also a rivalry among principals to see how many graduates each school could furnish to the university.

But it must be noted in this connection that this claim for "increased efficiency" and "higher standards" was from the viewpoint of the scholar. Nothing was said in respect to the increased efficiency of the seventy per cent of the graduates who did not attend the university, but were forced to assume at once the active and pressing duties of life. Were they better equipped to fight life's battles? Would it not have been better for them had less attention been paid to the meeting of university requirements and more time given to the task of fitting them for the great university of life, where knowledge is gained by the struggle for existence? These are serious questions, but it is hardly necessary to answer them here, for the announcement has been made that the accrediting system is to be modified, if not abolished. It is proposed that any graduate of a high school will be admitted to the university, without examination, when presenting, in addition to a diploma of graduation, a written recommendation or certificate from the principal that the holder is qualified to do university work.

An investigation of this question will reveal that the scheme is more objectionable than is the accrediting system. It is plain to be seen that the practice involves the issuance of two diplomas of graduation; one a diploma showing a completion of the high school course and another called a "recommendation" permitting the holder to enter the university. We wish to voice an emphatic protest against the dividing of our high school pupils into classes; for it must be evident to any thoughtful person that this division will be made in the early years of the high school course. Pupils soon after entering high school usually indicate their intention of attending the university or otherwise. Those who are to receive a higher education will very naturally be given the 'university attention,' while those who are to shift for themselves will be in fact left to shift for themselves during the entire high school term. The efficiency of the school will depend upon the efficiency of those who will attend the university; the others, constituting the large majority, will not count, for there is no way of measuring their efficiency after they have left school. The efficiency of the school will be increased as regards its ability to furnish university entrances, but it will be done at the expense of the "ordinary" graduates. In reality there will be a lowering of the average of efficiency. The effect also of dividing our high school pupils into two classes will be more than likely to be demoralizing to the pupils themselves. It may result in prematurely driving away from school many of those who would otherwise complete the high school course. The view of this committee is, therefore, that the proposed system should be severely condemned.

We would be censured, however, if we should merely content ourselves with the condemnation of a system without, at the same time, endeavoring to supply a better one, and we have earnestly sought for a solution of the problem confronting us.

We have taken the view that all of our children should be treated upon a basis of equality and that the purpose of a school system was not that alone of producing "scholars"; rather it is to make the young men and young women more capable and better fitted to enter upon any chosen occupation and to assume the severe duties and responsibilities of life.

Applying this view of the matter at hand, we hold that every graduate holding a high school diploma should by right be entitled to receive at the hands of the State a higher education if he so desires. If he is not capable of taking a full university course he should be entitled to take as much thereof as his capabilities will permit. If he is incapable of taking any part of the education offered, then it is a matter for the university authorities to either provide a course that he can take, or dismiss him from the institution. If the latter should be done, then it should not be charged up as a fault of the high school that sent him there.

This committee has therefore proposed a law requiring but one certificate of graduation from a high school, and prescribing that the holder of such a diploma shall be entitled to enter the university without examination.

To forestall any charge that this proposed law will result in lowering the standard of efficiency of the high schools, we have provided for a system of inspection under the direction of the state, and should any high school fall below what may be required by the State, then such school will be deprived of the right to issue any diploma whatsoever. Surely this penalty will be sufficiently severe to prevent any deterioration on the part of our high schools. We may add by way of explanation that the inspection proposed will be performed by some competent man appointed for that express purpose by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. We believe that upon examination this plan will disclose much to commend it. We are informed that a similar plan exists in one or more of the Eastern States.

The University and Normal Schools

The State has established five normal schools for the education and training of teachers, and these are maintained at a large expense to the state. We note with exceedingly great regret that the attendance at these schools appears to be diminishing and that they are not at the present time supplying as large a percentage of the new teachers required as they did ten years ago. On the other hand, the State University has established a pedagogical department and has to a considerable extent usurped the functions of a normal school. It appears, however, that comparatively few of the graduates of this department become teachers in the primary and grammar grades, as the high schools offer greater inducements for them. Moreover, the committee is informed that the graduates of the normal schools make better teachers in the elementary schools than do the university graduates. This is because there is no training department connected with the university. Moreover, we note that this Legislature is asked to make a large appropriation for the establishment of such a training department at the university. In view of the fact that the State has invested a large amount of money in the establishment of normal schools, we believe that they should be continued as the training schools for teachers of the common schools, and that their usefulness in this regard should not be destroyed by permitting the university to usurp the functions of the normal schools.

In this connection we would urge upon the managers of the several normal schools that they make strenuous efforts to elevate these institutions to a higher plane of usefulness, and endeavor, if possible, to enlarge the output of teachers.

Certification of Teachers.

The committee proposes a few minor changes, or rather additions, to the law respecting the certification of teachers, as follows:

1. Temporary certificates good until the next annual examination. At present temporary certificates are valid for only six months, but examinations are now held only once a year.

2. That holders of kindergarten certificates issued upon a normal school diploma be entitled to teach in the lower primary grades.

3. That a special manual training certificate be issued to the holder of a diploma of a normal school showing him to have completed a course in manual training.

Medical Inspection.

It has been pointed out to the committee that many cases of the inability of pupils to do school work are due to physical disabilities. In several of the Eastern States, and more notably in some foreign countries, systems of medical examination are provided for schools with a view of detecting the causes of physical deficiency and excellent results have been reported. We think it wise that some action should be taken by this State. We have reported a bill providing for a system of medical examination for elementary schools, which, while not as comprehensive as may be required, will be a step in the right direction.

The High School Law.

We propose a few minor changes in the laws providing for the organization of high schools.

We propose that high school trustees shall be elected by the district at large instead of by districts as at present. The objection to the present law is that where a number of small districts are united with a large one, it is the smaller districts that control the board.

We also propose a change in the law governing the annexation of districts to a high school district already organized, so that the people of the annexed district may be taxed for the bonds issued to build the school buildings, should they so desire to be taxed.

Tuition.

The committee also proposes a change in the method of paying tuition. At present many school districts enjoy the advantages of a high school without contributing to the support of one. The pupils of such districts attend a neighboring high school and pay tuition to the same when the district ought to have a high school of its own or become a part of some high school district. The committee therefore proposes a law that will make the tuition fee a charge against the school district. As the spirit of our educational system is antagonistic to personal charges for education, we believe the amendment proposed therewith is a proper one. Similar laws prevail in Eastern States.

Compulsory Education.

The committee finds that the present compulsory education law is inadequate for the purposes for which it was intended. Adequate means for its proper enforcement are not provided, and, furthermore, it is only applicable to the larger cities. Important amendments are proposed to this law for the purpose of widening its scope and providing more ample means for its enforcement.

Miscellaneous Matters.

The committee has prepared a number of bills amending such sections as conflict with other sections; also making a few changes that appear to be needed to correct errors that have inadvertently been made by ill-considered amendments, and others that will facilitate the work of school administration. None of these make any important change in the school law.

Conclusion.

The committee in making these recommendations has been, and the Legislature in adopting any legislation should be, governed solely by what is for the good of the children of the State. The rights of the teachers are but to be incidentally considered and never should control. It should be always kept in mind that the teachers are for the schools, and not the schools for the teachers.

Another thing that should be carefully considered in adopting any legislation is the necessity for almost complete independence between the primary and grammar schools and the high schools, and between the high schools and the university. The tendency of the university to make mere preparatory schools of the high schools has become a recognized evil, and this in turn has compelled the high school to reflect back on the common schools with the same result.

It is only a small proportion of the graduates of the grammar schools that ever enter the high schools, while the great majority enter immediately upon the great struggle for existence. This great majority, which only get the advantage of State education for a short period, should be the chief care of the State. Their education should be practical and above all complete so far as it goes. They should be masters of those elementary studies which they will need in all walks of life.

As a matter of fact, less and less attention is being given to the elementary studies. The three "R's" are constantly being neglected, and new studies being substituted so as to prepare the student for the course in the high school. Many students go out of the common schools with a smattering of all kinds of studies, but unable to intelligently express themselves in English, much less to legibly write or correctly spell.

When we reach the high schools the condition is, if anything, still worse. Only a small proportion of the graduates of the high schools ever enter the university, still the main aim of those schools has been to prepare the pupil for the university. Every teacher and every principal has been confronted with the necessity of having the school "accredited" to the university. In order to be accredited the school must teach the studies that the university authorities require, and in some cases even use the books recommended by them. The pupil is also given to understand that the chief aim is to reach these requirements. Here, again, the chief aim is not to prepare the pupil for the work of life, upon which the great majority of graduates must enter, but to prepare for the university, to which but a small majority ever go. A smattering of the studies which will later be taken at the university is forced upon the pupils; cramming becomes a necessity; the number of studies is constantly increased, until a pupil is compelled either merely to cram in order to pass the examinations or to break down under the strain. The time has come when the course of study in the grammar and high schools must be simplified. More attention must be given to the essentials. The aim must be to make men and women who are able to enter upon the work of life, and not merely upon the career of scholars. Let us make the common schools for the common people.

LEGISLATURE IS A SERVILE CREATURE.

E. J. LIVERNASH DECLARES CALIFORNIA'S LAW-MAKING BODY HAS NO SHAME FOR OWNERSHIP BY CORPORATE INTERESTS.

By Edward J. Livernash.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 18.—Any one who cares for California, any one who is attached to American ideals of government, any one who has even a little of the nobility and grace of life, must be shocked and disgusted by close-range observation of the Legislature now in session here. It is the servile creature of great corporate interests, notably the interests of E. H. Harriman; and has no consciousness of shame for that relation. It is ignorant. It is vulgar. It is base. It clumsily, brutally, jests at its own degradations.

Severe language, yes; but carefully considered. The closing accusations will be taken up with particularity in subsequent dispatches. Some of the others will be touched upon, in a preliminary fashion, this afternoon.

The servility to powerful corporations is expressed in many ways, but most of all, thus far, in an atmosphere of easy, contemptuous indifference to the serious concerns of the plain people, a term meant to cover people of respectability who are not immensely rich—mechanics, laborers, farmers, merchants, professional persons. There is no mistaking it. Every day yields a great deal of talk for the ears of the plain people—merely talk, nothing more; BILLS without end, for them, too—merely introductions, nothing more; committee HEARINGS, if they wish it, to be sure—merely hearings, nothing more. And under and over and around all this floats an atmosphere of amused ridicule for the vocabulary of the masses and of only half-hidden derision to "stand in" on the "programme," whatever it may be—the "programme" being the will of what Arthur McEwen long ago aptly called the "Associated Villainies."

"Of course," said Wolfe of San Francisco, president pro tempore of the Senate and one of the cleanest and most intelligent of the professional politicians here assembled, "of course I had to stand in with the majority." He was justifying his participation in the infamous raiding of the public treasury in the matter of the employment of altogether unnecessary "attachés" of the Legislature.

There you have a fair suggestion of it. To stand out alone, if need be, for the sake of being RIGHT, would be worse than silly as most of these legislators view it. Do you wish "to get on" in politics? Then be with the MAJORITY, they argue; and if the majority here now is falling over itself in eagerness to be in accord with the "machine" of the bandit corporations, very good—very good, indeed. And when one finds as generally decent a man as Wolfe talking in this way the reader may readily infer the shameless attitude of the riff-raff.

The servility is manifested, too, in the open relations between notorious railroad lobbyists and members of the Legislature.

Take Walter Parker of Los Angeles and Jere Burke of San Francisco. Both of these men are so well known as chronic lobbyists and political manipulators for the Associated Villainies that a high-minded legislator would feel himself degraded by voluntary contact with either of them. Yet it is no uncommon sight here, these days, to find the Speaker of the Assembly in close consultation with one or the other of them, while for the rank and file of the lawmakers they are the two most-courted figures at the capital—legislators like to appear their familiars, like to address them as "Walter" or "Jere," like fawningly to sun themselves in the smiles of the precious team. It was no worse here, in this respect, when Chris Buckley was the loadstone attracting false public servants. Let Burke give one of his duck dinners, with Harriman's coin, at the Capital Hotel tomorrow, and it is safe to say around the board would be found an enthusiastic throng numbering the most eminent of the good gentlemen comprising Senator Wolfe's very righteous "majority," including most of the worthies who, through the press and on the stump, run readily to words for their "oppressed" fellow-citizens.

Yet another sign of the servility is the make-up of the committees in which the Harriman type of capital is most concerned. There, for instance, is the Senate Committee on Corporations, with Broughton of Los Angeles at its head (a man who must be quite to the liking of Mr. Herrin) and such sturdy champions of good government as Ruef's Friday Keane and lackey Markey in the following. Or, take the Assembly Committee on Judiciary (to which, on a pinch, almost any bill or resolution may be shunted), with Grove L. Johnson in charge, fittingly supported.

If you happen to be in the confidence of some of these "majority" men, even to a slight degree, you need not depend on the general signs of servility, unhappily convincing though they are. You will be frankly told, "between ourselves," that "it's of no use to fight the machine—just plain political suicide." Naturally, the man who tells you this is of a sort whose intelligence and virtue are of such an order as obliges to the conclusion that you would be crazy to prefer hari-kari to political dishonor—the sort that counts it the highest of all duties and the best of all possible professions of "success," to hang on to office, no matter the use to which the office shall be put or the price paid in getting it. The people? Oh, for them a few sops, a speech or two—enough. Who the longer retains public place—the friends or the betrayers of the people? Well, then! Thus your legislator, talking under the rose.

The servility to Harriman in particular and the confederated bandits in general is not polished servility of the kind, say, one observes in the Senate of the United States. The average intelligence of the membership of the Legislature appears to be low, the average culture next to nothing. Not that there are no able, enlightened men among the crowd—there are—Carrwright, in the Senate, for example; but they are so few as to make the proportion a humiliation to this State.

Most of the talk in Senate and Assembly is in limping English, with almost as much slang as anything else when there is the least wandering from memorized parliamentary forms of address. But it is less in this that the lamentable appears than in the lack of the kinds of information legislators ought to have.

Consider. Here is California, a wonderfully great State, in process of development—indeed, in an early and distinctly formative stage of development; a State with natural resources quite as rich, quite as varied, quite as capable of yielding nobility of race, as some of the foremost countries of Europe; a State superior in many respects to any of her sister States; a State presenting multitudes of the most difficult and most important problems of empire-building, of civilization—problems of race admixture, of world commerce, of agriculture and land tenure, of organization of capital and organization of labor, of transportation by sea and land, of education.

And here is the metropolis of our State in the grasp of a great affliction that has swept away vast wealth and broken many homes and saddened many hearts—a condition presenting strange and tremendous questions.

It is a time for big, strong, resourceful men in the Legislature—men with broad knowledge, men capable of using with wisdom and power the machinery of government, men who ARE empire-builders.

Yet, what have we here?

Take it for all in all, a body unfit to legislate with intelligence on any subject whatever.

Imagine a man of the order of Hartman of San Francisco (a Senator!) dealing with the profound problem involved in the proposal to abandon our present system of taxation for State purposes. He has about the intellectual equipment of the cave age, plus the embellishments of years of fond association with prize-fighters, wardheelers and Ruef. And Hartman is by no means lonely when he's in Sacramento MAKING LAWS.

A pretty pair, by the way—Hartman and Keane—side by side in the front row of the Senate chamber. Poor Bunkers! How well he would have rounded out a trio had not Fate turned down her thumb!

TIME OF GRIEF IS USED FOR SCHEMING.

BOSSES GET A CHANCE TO PLOT—TO SETTLE JAP ISSUE—NO STOPPING OF HERRIN MACHINE.

By Edward J. Livernash.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 22.—A calm is upon the capital today; for the members of both houses of the Legislature have gone to the funeral of John J. Burke, late Assemblyman from Alameda. In theory and by the formal record, they have gone out of an overwhelming sorrow over the passing of an honored colleague. In blunt truth, with disgusting hypocrisy in the presence of death they are there rather than here because in the judgment of a number of managers the attendance of THE FULL MEMBERSHIP beside an open grave would gain them (through the extended adjournment) needed time wherein to arrange a "programme" touching certain petty "politics." This miserable profanation of a solemn situation that ought to have given pause to worldliness, illustrates the charge of baseness made in an earlier dispatch, and is worth examining in detail.

FOLLOW PROGRAMME.

To understand things here it is important to keep in mind that there are many matters in which Mr. Harriman's manipulators in no wise interfere. They know their business. They do not weaken their authority by mixing in difficulties outside the circle of the special interests they represent. Where they put forth their power is order and from the beginning "programme." Where they do not, there may be order or there may be almost any kind of mix-up.

Now, the Japanese question, in its present stage, appears to have no interest for Mr. Harriman, in so far as Sacramento is concerned; and it is much the same with the agitation about coal shortage. Perhaps he dryly suspects that this Legislature can have no more weight in settling the Japanese school problem than in moving the Great Dipper, and no more influence in disturbing a coal combine engaged in interstate and foreign trade than in altering the sweep of the Gulf Stream. At any rate, it is clear that his lieutenants have arranged no "programme" for the easy guidance of the faithful, either as to Mr. Roosevelt and the Japanese or as to the price and quantity of coal.

CAUGHT IN PANIC.

Amidst a complete absence of orders from the throne in these particulars, both questions came to the front during last week and caught the eminent leaders unprepared. Had we a fair sprinkling of moderately able men among the legislators, these matters would have been dealt with becomingly without a particle of excitement; but out of the deadly mediocrity came a squealing panic—ludicrous and at the same time humiliating to contemplate.

Get a good perspective on the Japanese question, now, before considering what these statesmen have been doing to it. The San Francisco Board of Education provides for separate (though similar) education of Caucasian and Mongolian students attending the public schools under the jurisdiction of that body. The Japanese affected by the policy protest, but not through the courts. President Roosevelt, hearing, slaps on his Rough Rider hat, takes his impetuous pen in hand, and writes furiously to both branches of Congress that California shall do thus and so, even if he must needs call out the land and naval forces of the country—Congress, as such, having absolutely nothing to do with the case. Then, perhaps perceiving the absurdity of addressing Congress, except as to the suggested naturalization of Japanese, Mr. Roosevelt sends for his Attorney-General, and in due time the Department of Justice arranges a test case in California to construe a treaty and to settle in an orderly manner the relative rights of the State and the treaty-making arm of the Federal Government. This test case is now under way.

A DEMOCRATIC VIEW.

At this peaceful stage, our Sacramento statesmen burst into action.

First came Senator Sanford (Democrat), with a joint resolution assailing the President with as much intemperance as the President has been generally condemned for manifesting in his criticism of California—as much intemperance, as little accuracy of statement, and somewhat less attention to Lindley Murray.

That was the Mendocino man's idea of making DEMOCRATIC capital out of a large situation—not a very convincing way, perhaps, nor likely to count in California's favor the other side the Rockies, but sufficiently important, in the estimation of his colleagues, to lead to hot discussion in a hastily assembled caucus of the Republicans of the upper house.

The purpose of the caucus discussion was not to find a sane and dignified policy concerning the subject-matter of the Sanford resolution, but to find a way of putting the Democrats at a disadvantage and making whatever might be done or omitted, as regards the Japanese question, yield REPUBLICAN capital. It was pretty definitely agreed at the caucus that the Republican Senators should "do politics" with the Japanese question, though just how was not arranged.

REPUBLICANS IN HOLE.

At this point Senator Caminetti (Democrat) of Amador took a hand in the game—bringing forward a concurrent resolution attacking the President and instructing the Attorney-General to appear for the State in the test case.

This was Caminetti's idea of doing a bit of Democratic "politics"—not so raw as Sanford's, for Caminetti is a polished and experienced tactician, but for all that primarily intended "to put the Republicans in a hole."

Next Governor Gillett, responding to a prod from the panic-stricken majority in the Senate, delivered himself of an executive order, and forthwith Senator Wolfe (Republican) of San Francisco, always the politician, trotted hastily from the Governor's office to the assembled Senate and made announcement that Gillett had directed the Attorney-General to intervene in the school case—in other words, that Caminetti's cake was dough. Senator Wolfe did not announce, however, though the fact was so, that the Attorney-General would have taken part in the test case, as a friend of the court, without legislative resolution or executive order but acting in simple performance of his duty as he saw it.

Not one of these moves, not even the Governor's (made under the circumstances surrounding it), had relation solely to the true interest of the white race and the real merits of the dispute concerning the authority of California. All of them sounded in the insincerities of "practical politics." The importance of freeing any and every expression of this Commonwealth on the Japanese question from all appearances of partisanship, of "politics," of narrowness, has not been given much consideration. Indeed, few of the good gentlemen now siewing about procedure care a rap about THE REAL MERITS of any branch of this large question about the Japanese. What one hears discussed is not the Japanese question but the "politics" that may be squeezed out of that question.

With all the scheming in a matter that ought to find a united Legislature proceeding in a strictly non-partisan way to a dignified and reasonable expression of will, if anything at all is to be said or done, the majority in the Senate (the Assembly continues silent) has not yet agreed upon a "programme" and of course is afraid to turn the question loose without a "programme." Just what to do with the Sanford resolution, for example, has not become clear; for no acceptable substitute has been prepared.

AGREE ON PROGRAMME.

The death of Assemblyman Burke came at a time this problem of agreeing on a "programme" was deeply troubling; and when, yesterday, it was figured that two days of grace could be gained, in which to promote agreement on a policy, BY HAVING THE SENATE ATTEND THE FUNERAL OF THE ALAMEDAN IN A BODY, the proposal was promptly approved.

In the case of the Assembly a corresponding situation was presented by the coal question.

Last week Assemblyman Beckett (Republican) of San Francisco, one of Ruef's darlings, introduced a resolution directing that an investigation of the coal shortage in this State be held by a legislative committee. This resolution was made a special order for yesterday; and by yesterday most of the members were still at sea as to just what they ought to do about it. There being no Harriman "programme" affecting the matter, leaders were not all of one mind, and the subject was thought to have some tenderness because of the wealth of the coal combine. Everybody appeared to take it for granted that Beckett was making a mere "play to the galleries," well knowing nothing injurious to the coal combine could come from an "investigation" such as he proposed, but expecting to delude a lot of San Francisco working people into regarding him with favor—just "politics," again.

The death of Burke was eagerly seized upon as a convenient means of escaping that "special order" and of gaining time for arranging a "programme" for the coal case. And so it came about that the Assembly "stood in" for the overwhelming sorrow, and voted to attend the funeral today en masse.

Ordinarily, the death of a member of a legislative body is followed by the appointment of a COMMITTEE OF THAT MEMBER'S COLLEAGUES to attend his funeral. That is the procedure which would have governed yesterday but for the anxieties of both houses over the pettiest sort of "politics."

Pretty wretched hypocrisy. California should gain noble legislation from the statesmen today bowed down with sorrow for the dead.

SPECIAL ORDER SET.

On motion of Senator Leavitt, the consideration of the foregoing resolution was made a special order for this day at two o'clock P. M.

SPECIAL ORDER RESET.

On motion of Senator Caminetti, the special order set for this day, at eleven o'clock A. M., being the consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6, was postponed and made a special order for Thursday, January 24, 1907, at eleven o'clock A. M.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Senator Wolfe arose to a question of personal privilege, and spoke as follows:

Mr. President and Members of the Senate:

I reply to an article published in one of the leading San Francisco papers headed "Senator Wolfe denounced by an Episcopal Rector," and also, in part, to reply to an article which appeared in the Sacramento "Union" purporting to be the report of a sermon by Bishop Moreland of this city.

In order that the Senate of this State might understand that, aside from the personal reference in the sermon of this Episcopal minister, the whole Senate of the State was attacked, I desire, before proceeding on my question of privilege, which I will say I have committed to writing—and every member of the Senate will know that it is contrary to my custom so to do—I considered the matter of so delicate a nature that I thought it better to put it in writing, so that my position could not be misconstrued, or misrepresented, or misrepresented. The Rev. Cecil Marrack is the gentleman to whom I referred, and who chose as the title of his sermon, "The Crowning Shame of our State Senate."

From the San Francisco "Call" I now read the following:

"Although he branded the legislators generally as looters and corrupt men, the irate clergyman selected as his especial target State Senator Edward I. Wolfe of San Francisco.

"It was Wolfe's request to the Chaplain of the Senate that he eliminate the name of Jesus Christ from the prayer spoken in the Senate chamber and the Chaplain's acquiescence that aroused Dr. Marrack.

"Wolfe, it will be recalled, in making his request of the Chaplain, said he spoke for the Jewish members of the Senate. Dr. Marrack spoke in part as follows:

"The crowning shame of our State Senate has been brought upon it through the action of a San Francisco member.

"For days it has seemed that almost every man was striving to outdo his neighbor in corruption. Measure after measure has been presented in which the clear purpose was to loot the public purse. From the moment when the Speaker's gavel first called the session to order there has been a wild scramble for plunder. Day by day our ears have rung with the old tale of public trust betrayed. Day after day we have witnessed the brazen exhibition of a greed so shameless as to scorn even the cloak of virtue. Thefts there have been, treachery there has been, malice and deceit and fraud. These things were enough to make our cheeks burn with shame at the thought that these men were our representatives.

CROWNING INFAMY OF ALL.

"But now there comes the crowning infamy of all—an infamy so great that it demands instant and burning condemnation from every man or woman who feels a personal concern about the upbuilding of a Christian civilization in this frontier city of a Christian commonwealth.

"I refer to the action of Senator Wolfe of San Francisco in demanding that henceforth the Chaplain of the Senate refrain from any mention of the Savior of the world—the founder of our Christian civilization. His words were those of an irreverent and godless man. 'The Christian members of the upper house,' he said, 'have ample opportunity to recognize the founder of their faith when they affix the figures 1907 to the proceedings of this session. The rest of us would like to be excused from any further references to the Man of Nazareth.'"

Thus, then, is what I have to say on the subject:

The Reverend Cecil Marrack, Rector of St. Stephen's Church in San Francisco, inadvertently, I hope, has done me a great wrong. I have not the pleasure of the gentleman's acquaintance, and the first time that I ever heard his name was when I saw it in public print on Monday. But I know of St. Stephen's Church and know many of its communicants and I know that through the influence of that church a great deal has been done in San Francisco in the cause of charity and humanity, and I therefore regret very much that the pastor of this church without any knowledge at all of the fact, and taking as his foundation a garbled and misrepresenting statement of a newspaper, has put words in my mouth that I never have said, feelings in my breast which never existed, and thoughts in my mind which were never there, and then proceeded amid the sacred surroundings of his pulpit, and upon a day devoted to religion, godliness, and rest, to denounce me as an atheist, agnostic, and unbeliever, and a man who has no respect for the religious beliefs and convictions of his fellow citizens.

The facts are these: For ten years I have been a member of the Senate of this State and have always participated in the election of a chaplain, whose duty it is to offer prayer after the roll call of each day. I am a man that believes in religion and believes in the efficacy of prayer. I would like to see every man belong to some church. I would like to see a Protestant a good Protestant, a Catholic a good Catholic, an Episcopalian a good Episcopalian, and a Jew a good Jew. I know the civilizing influences of religion, and realize that a man's first duty is to his God, and I have contributed time and time again as far as my slender means would permit to the support of religious institutions, both Christian and Jewish.

Ten years ago after the first day's prayer by the Chaplain in the Senate, who prayed as he was accustomed to pray in his church, there were then in all three Senators of my faith on the floor of the Senate. We waited on the Chaplain and approached him in a respectful manner. We told him that we had the highest respect for his convictions and honored him for them and asked him if he thought he could so modify his prayers from a sectarian standpoint, that all of the members of the Senate for whom he prayed and whom he represented, might pray with him. We said that if he could not do so without sacrificing his convictions or his principles to dismiss the matter of our visit to him and to do that which his conscience dictated.

We found him to be a broad-minded Christian gentleman, and thereafter it was quite possible for every one of the Senate to pray with him. During the incumbency by the Reverend Miel of this city, of the office of Chaplain of the Senate, it was not necessary for any one to discuss with him the subject of his prayers, because they were broad enough for us all.

Now as to Chaplain Darling of the Senate, who has been shamefully abused and misrepresented in the press and in the pulpit, I desire to say that I spoke to Senator Irish, who was his sponsor in the caucus, on exactly the same lines that I spoke to the first chaplain that I met ten years ago in the Senate. In just the same respectful spirit, with no thought of offense to either Chaplain Darling or those whom he represented, I asked if he thought he could, without sacrificing his convictions, so pray that Jew and Gentile on the floor of the Senate might pray with him, and if he found that he could not then to follow the dictates of his own conscience, and for this I am denounced by the Rev. Cecil Marrack as having brought upon our State Senate the "Crowning shame of its history."

I desire to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that any one who reads the sermon of this reverend gentleman can readily see that his purpose was just as much to bring himself into the limelight of the press as it was to serve his God. He insults and outrages the dignity, the honor and the manhood of this Senate. He maligns and slanders it, and without just foundation and without accurate knowledge of the facts, he brands every man upon the floor of this Senate "as sharing in the brazen exhibition of a greed so shameless as to scorn even the cloak of virtue."

He said that I demanded "that henceforth the Chaplain of the Senate refrain from any mention of the Savior of this world, the founder of our Christian civilization." That my words were those of an irreverent and godless man. He even quotes me as saying, "The Christian members of the upper house have ample opportunity to recognize the founder of their faith when they affix the figures 1907 to the proceedings of this session. The rest of us would like to be excused from any further reference to the Man of Nazareth."

I never made such a demand and never used these words or aught like them. I would be unworthy of the high office that I have filled for ten years in this State were I so lacking in decency or ignorance of the proprieties and so disregardful of the rights of others as to even think the words attributed to me, much less to say them.

I make this denial upon the floor of this Senate so that it may reach the ears of the Rev. Cecil Marrack, and I call upon the Chaplain of this Senate and upon Senator Irish to bear me out in what I have said, and if after hearing this the Rev. Cecil Marrack shall retract his denunciations of me and apologize for the false position in which he has sought to place me before my constituents and the people of this State, then will I for the first time withdraw aught of these remarks that seem disrespectful to this man of the cloth or that might be construed as impugning his motives.

There is one thing in which I agree with Rev. Marrack, and that is "that representatives, municipal, State, or National, must represent a Christian civilization." I mean a Christian civilization in its broadest sense only—a Christian civilization that stands for the highest ideals in life, the purest and noblest principles that stand for devotion to the country, to the flag, and to God and humanity.

When the gentleman said that I boasted of my indifference to Christian influence and made light of the Savior, he said that which was absolutely false, and when he proclaims that the State of California is a Christian State, I agree with him only along the lines that I have suggested.

Thank God, in this country there is no union of Church and State. I stand for liberty of conscience for freedom of thought, and the right of every man to worship God in accordance with the dictates of his conscience. In recent years, the history of this State will show that I have fought for this principle. Where was Rev. Cecil Marrack then? He was never heard from. He was unknown. For this principle I will forever fight. My people have been for centuries hounded from pillar to post, persecuted and murdered for their religious convictions, and here in this God-blessed land of liberty I would deserve that my arm be palsied and my tongue paralyzed if I ever expressed a sentiment as outrageous as that which is ascribed to me by the Rector of St. Stephen's Parish.

The reverend gentleman concludes his diatribe by asking if the Senator from San Francisco would put California where France is to-day as the opponent of Christianity. My answer to that is that the action of France in its relation towards the Church is the crowning shame of the century. That besides the condemnation of all right-thinking people, France deserves the pity of the world for its blindness and its bigotry.

Mr. President, I realize that this is a very delicate question to discuss upon the floor of the Senate, and I trust that I have said naught that will offend the conscience of any man within the sound of my voice, or elsewhere, for I desire to assure you, and through you the members of the Senate, that I am a man who respects the convictions of others and that I honor every man who stands loyally by his belief.

We are none of us responsible for our religion. We drink it in at our mother's breast and learn it at our father's knee, and the man who would not stand up for the religion of his father and mother is, in my mind, unworthy of the respect of any one.

In conclusion, I desire to say this: That I shall never again, even by suggestion, attempt to indicate to the Chaplain of this Senate aught along the line of his duty in this position, and if it be possible that I can pray with him I will do so; if not, I will do as I do every day of my life, pray in the silence of my chamber to the God of my Fathers.

I shall take the liberty, sir, of sending a copy of this address to the Rev. Cecil Marrack, and await his reply, and a copy to Bishop Moreland of this city.

I want to say a word about his Grace, Bishop Moreland, of this city. Until Monday last I always thought him to be a profound scholar, and a man of the broadest mind and most liberal thought, and if he be correctly quoted in the Sacramento Union of last Monday, I will be compelled to change my opinion. We are charged with intolerance, because, in a respectful manner, the suggestions have been made to our Chaplain as I have indicated. If there be any thought of intolerance, it is not with me or my colleagues; it is with the gentleman who denounced the Chaplain and who denounced the Senate. There are some men, sir, who stand for a creed which is entirely their own, and, to my mind, are so narrow that, if they could have their way, they would have a Christianity in which they could believe, and the people who did not believe with them they would expatriate perhaps, and we would go back to the Middle Ages.

I desire to thank you, Mr. President, and the members of the Senate, for the privilege accorded to me to reply to the articles referred to, and I hope I may never have to discuss such a question again upon the floor of the Senate of California.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Senator Irish asked for and was granted unanimous consent to announce that at some future date he will arise to a question of personal privilege and address the Senate upon the subject-matter contained in remarks this day made by Senator Wolfe, when the latter arose to a question of personal privilege.

CHARTER AMENDMENT NO. 1 TO THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF EUREKA.

Article III, Section 43½, The Initiative.

The basis of the percentage hereinafter provided for any petition shall be the total number of voters registered in the city at the last preceding general election prior to the filing of said petition; and all voters registered at said general election or thereafter shall be qualified to sign the petition herein provided for.

Upon presentation to the city council of a petition or petitions signed by qualified electors of the city, in number equal to 10 per cent of said registration, asking for submission to the electors of a measure fully set forth in said petition or petitions, being a measure that the city council might itself adopt, it must either enact such measure without alteration, or submit the same to the electorate at the next regular city election occurring subsequent to sixty days after the filing of said petition or petitions. But if such petition or petitions are signed by qualified electors in number equal to 20 per cent of said registration, then such measure, if not so enacted by the city council must be submitted to the electorate at a special election to be called within sixty days from the filing of such petition or petitions.

If such proposed measure is a measure that the city council might adopt, except for the fact that it involves the repeal or amendment of a measure adopted by the electorate, as herein provided, and if in such case said petition or petitions are signed by qualified electors in number equal to 25 per cent of said registration, then such proposed measure must be submitted to the electors of the city at the next regular city election occurring subsequent to sixty days after the filing of said petition or petitions.

The method of signing and presenting petitions provided for herein shall be as follows: The signatures to the petition need not all be appended to one paper, but each signer shall add to his signature his place of residence, giving the street and number.

Each such paper shall have attached thereto the affidavit of a registered voter of the city, stating that all the signatures to the paper were made in his presence, and that to the best of his knowledge and belief each signature to the paper appended is the genuine signature of the person whose name purports to be thereunto subscribed. Within twenty days from the date of filing such petition in his office the city clerk shall examine and from the great register ascertain whether or not said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, and if necessary, the city council shall allow him extra help for the purpose, and he shall attach to said petition his certificate, showing the result of said examination. Each signature whose genuineness is not called in question by the sworn affidavit of the owner thereof shall be assumed to be genuine. If, by the clerk's certificate, the petition is shown to be insufficient, it may be amended within ten days from the date of said certificate. The clerk shall, within twenty days after such amendment, make like examination of the amended petition, and if his certificate shall show the same to be insufficient, it shall be returned to the person filing the same, without prejudice however, to the filing of a new petition to the same effect. If the petition shall be found sufficient the clerk shall submit the same to the city council without delay.

Any number of proposed measures may be voted upon at the same election in accordance with the provisions of this section; provided, that there shall not be held under this section more than one special election in any period of six months. Whenever any measure is required or authorized by this charter to be submitted to the electors of the city, at any election, the city clerk shall cause the measure to be printed, and he shall inclose a printed copy thereof in an envelope and shall mail the same to each voter, at least ten days prior to the election, but the city council may order such measure to be printed in the official newspaper of the city, and published in a like manner as ordinances adopted by the city council are required to be published; and may order that such publication shall take the place of the printing and mailing of the measure, as first above provided.

CHARTER AMENDMENT No. 2 TO THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF EUREKA.

Article III, Section 43½, The Referendum.

If a majority of votes cast on any ordinance or measure referred as provided in Sections 43¼ or 43½ herein, to the electors of the city, shall be in favor thereof, it shall, if not already in effect, go into effect as a valid and binding ordinance or measure of the city, ten days after the official count shall be determined, otherwise such ordinance or measure shall be repealed or rejected; such repeal shall take effect ten days after the official count shall be determined. No ordinance or measure approved by the electorate under the provisions of these sections shall be subject to veto, or be amended or repealed except by vote of the electorate or by legislative authority superior to that of the city council.

QUESTIONS OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Senator Wright arose to a question of personal privilege, and denied all newspaper charges to the effect that he had attempted to discredit the prosecution of Abraham Ruef and Eugene Schmitz of San Francisco, by any resolution or bill that he had introduced, saying:

MR. PRESIDENT: I do not believe that there is a single member of this Senate who does not court a fair, full, and honest discussion of every bill and every measure which comes before us for consideration. I invite such criticism.

From the Colonial days the freedom of the press has been regarded as one of the bulwarks of American liberty. When our forefathers fought against taxation without representation, when they fought against deportation to England for trial, they also fought for the right to publish their opinions freely upon all questions. That right we cherish and we maintain. We won the right to a free press as we won the right to be a nation. The freedom of the press is interwoven with the warp and woof of the flag of the Union, and wherever the emblem of liberty may waive, over seas or over the land, there, under its ample folds, the right of free speech and the right of the free press shall remain unassailable.

Mr. President, that right, however, may be abused, and it is to-day being abused in the State of California, and particularly by the San Francisco "Bulletin" and the "Chronicle." I never saw, in all my life, the effrontery, the impudence, if you please, of that despicable sheet, the San Francisco "Bulletin," which sends here to instruct us in morals this person Livernash. Why, Mr. President, and fellow Senators, if all that I hear of him is true, and he had as many bodies as he has committed crimes and misdemeanors against the State of California, and against decency, there is not a penitentiary in the State of California large enough to receive him.

Now, Mr. President, I wish to explain in what manner, and how I happened to introduce Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 3. That resolution provides for the appointment of a committee of ten—five from the Senate and five from the House—to investigate the condition of the harbors of California. The "Bulletin" charges that, in the introduction of that resolution, I was attempting to whitewash the alleged corruption of San Francisco. Mr. Chairman, that resolution was framed by the California Promotion Committee, and at the request of that committee I introduced it into this Senate.

So far as Senate Bill No. 117 is concerned, the best explanation I can make is to read a letter to you that I received on Monday. It is as follows:

"RIVERSIDE, CAL., January 19, 1907.

Senator L. A. Wright, Senate Chamber, Cal.—

"HONORABLE SIR: I have received a communication from Assemblyman Estudillo, together with some clippings from San Francisco newspapers in which the bill introduced by you proposed to amend Section 170 of the Code of Civil Procedure, in reference to the disqualification of judges, is severely criticised.

"It seems to me that these newspapers do not know what they are kicking about, and are making an unnecessary outcry about nothing.

"I call your attention to the fact that Section 170, C. C. P., was amended in 1905. And in so far as the prejudices of the judge was concerned, the statute now provides that when the proper affidavits are made, as to prejudice, the judge shall forthwith secure the services of some other judge of the same or adjoining county. And also provides that in counties having more than one department, said action should be transferred to another department thereof. In fact, we now have the same statute in force that these newspapers think is being put through in the interests of Ruef of San Francisco. It is simply ridiculous to my mind.

"I am anxious for this bill to pass for the reason that I am related to the superior judge of this county, and the section as it now stands, in the absence of a waiver of such disqualification, prevents me from appearing before him in any proceedings. I am unable to get an order for the publication of a summons, or to take a judgment by default. And as these provisions are unfair and unjust, I, in connection with Mr. Estudillo, prepared this amendment.

"The newspapers, however, assume that all or nearly all of the judges of California are dishonest, and they fire away at the bill without knowing anything about it.

"I hope you will use your best endeavors to secure the passage of this bill, even if it becomes necessary to eliminate the objectionable feature that the newspapers are kicking about.

"Yours very truly,

"LAFAYETTE GILL."

Let me explain how I happened to introduce it. On the first day on which we introduced bills in the Senate, I called upon Assemblyman Estudillo, now chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in the House, and asked him to introduce in the House a measure providing for an appropriation for the establishment of a law library for the Second District Court of Appeal. Mr. Estudillo asked me in turn if I would introduce a bill in the Senate, amending Section 170, Code of Civil Procedure, and after I read the bill, I told him that I would. So far as Schmitz and Ruef are concerned, they are no more to me than the most mis-shapen dwarf in Darkest Africa, except that they are citizens of the United States, and as such are entitled to certain constitutional rights; they are entitled to the presumption of innocence until they are proven guilty after a fair and impartial trial. Since the Magna Charta was wrung from a tyrant King, in England and in America, the law of the land demands that one accused, citizen or alien, white, black or Mongolian, shall be heard before he is condemned. The law proceeds upon inquiry, and judgment is rendered only after trial. Personally, I care as little as he cares least, for these scurrilous attacks of the newspapers. But fellow Senators, I have a family more sensitive than myself, and their feelings have been grievously wounded. Fellow Senators, I have a constituency whose confidence I enjoy, and these two newspapers have attempted to destroy that confidence. And moreover, I have dared to hope that here in this Senate I might enrich myself with the love, the respect, and the trust of the President and every Senator here. That hope they have attempted to annihilate. As for myself, my purpose is fixed. When I think I stand aright on any measure, I shall stand unmoved. I trust I may always listen to reason, but I shall be deaf to public clamor and the most savage newspaper abuse will never move me from my purpose.

Senator Anthony arose to question of personal privilege and spoke as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT: I consider it my duty, at this time, to make a short statement, in the nature of personal privilege, and at the same time, as a reply to the extensive references here this morning regarding criticisms against Senators.

Permit me to quote from the "Declaration of Rights" of the Constitution of the State of California, Article I, Section 9, as follows:

"Every citizen may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that act; and no law shall be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of speech or of the press."

I wish to give notice, that I would like to amend the resolution introduced this morning. On account of the harsh criticism of the distinguished and eloquent senator from San Francisco by the San Francisco "Chronicle," I wish to include within the penalties of the resolution, the "Chronicle" representatives; and, on account of the criticisms by the Rev. Marrack and the Rt. Rev. Bishop Moreland, I wish to include the two divines in the terms of the resolution.

Next, the Senator from the south land has been misrepresented by the San Francisco press, and replies that he will amend the law on "change of venue" because a constituent related to a judge in office desires the change.

Mr. President, for these hostile criticisms by the San Francisco press I wish to amend the resolution further by excluding and punishing all the representatives of all the San Francisco press.

As a matter of personal privilege, I understand that the newspapers have published libels, and that the large majority of the people of the State of California have uttered comments concerning this honorable Senate, and, in some cases, concerning myself; therefore it seems feasible, indeed, to amend the resolution so as to punish every newspaper and every person in the State of California.

Mr. President, the Legislature is too honorable a body to divert its attention from the grave and important affairs of state to the mere criticisms or comments which are essential to a republican form of government.

Two years ago, while I had the honor of being a member of the Assembly, an attempt was made to drag the Legislature into a domestic judicial controversy of Santa Cruz County, and to impeach a judge.

A legislative committee visited Santa Cruz. A newspaper of that locality thereupon criticised the legislative committee, and the Assembly attempted to punish that newspaper editor.

I opposed the impeachment proceedings relative to the Santa Cruz judge on the ground that the Legislature should not be dragged into the local or domestic affairs of a county. So I consider that the mere special relationship of one attorney to a judge, in a particular locality, should not involve the State Legislature in such a merely local matter.

Furthermore I opposed, two years ago, the high-handed attempt to muzzle the press of Santa Cruz, and now I stand here to oppose any attempt to muzzle either the press or the people of the State of California.

COMMUNICATION.

The President presented the following communication, which was ordered printed in the Journal:

SAN FRANCISCO, January 23, 1907.

To the Honorable the President and Members of the Senate of the State of California:

GENTLEMEN: I am informed that a bill has been introduced in the Senate to appropriate the sum of $9,500 for the services of special counsel, etc., in the matter of my extradition from Canada.

The proposed appropriation, if made, would be a violation of Section 1558 of the Penal Code, and in sanctioning the indebtedness ex-Governor Pardee certainly acted in violation of his official duties. There is no law of the State nor of the United States making the State responsible for any expenses in the matter of extradition, other than Section 1558 of the Penal Code. And as above indicated, that provision of the law prohibits the payment of any "compensation, fee, or reward of any kind," to any person for a service rendered in procuring the surrender of the fugitive.

I think that the private parties at whose instance and for whose private interests the prosecution against me has been instituted and is being carried on, to the perversion of the justice and laws of the State, should be compelled to meet the responsibility, they having incurred it, and not be allowed to shift it to the State, even with the connivance of a Governor of the State.

You can readily perceive that if such a thing as that proposed passes into a precedent there will be no end to the looting of the treasury in extradition cases. In any event, the law prohibits the proposed appropriation; and as I have been very wrongly accused in an official document brought before you of inflicting liability upon the State for expenses which now appear clearly illegal and for which the State can not be held without violating the law expressly prohibiting their payment, it is only right and proper that I point out that I have simply been abused as an excuse for the flagrant violation of an official duty.

That an official document such as a final message of a retiring Governor should descend into the degrading and at least undignified method of making a personal and abusive attack on a citizen of the State, engaged in the defense of his rights, simply because he seeks and to a certain extent forces in his own behalf the protection of the law as against an infamous persecution and a dastardly conspiracy against him, is greatly to be regretted by every person well disposed toward the dignity and respectability of the State and possessing a just and becoming reverence for those fundamental principles of the law which are primarily intended for the protection and security of individual rights, as against oppression, and against persecution, by perverting the powers and functions of government to gratify private malice.

Of course something is to be conceded to the fact that the author of the message referred to is merely a physician and not a lawyer, and has a strong contempt for what he does not understand in the law as a science; but that is no reason why he should indulge in offensive personalities in an official document.

We have not forgotten that Burke, in his reflections on the revolution in France, in speaking of the French Assembly, says:

"To the faculty of the law was joined a pretty considerable proportion of the faculty of medicine. This faculty had not, any more than that of the law, possessed in France its just estimation. Its professors, therefore, must have the qualities of men not habituated to sentiments of dignity, but supposing they had ranked as they ought to do, and as with us they do actually, the sides of sick beds are not the academies for forming statesmen and legislators." This, however, can hardly ameliorate the offense committed against propriety in the personal attack made in the final message of Dr. Pardee. It is clearly my right to be heard in reply and to publicly take exception to the gross deviation from official etiquette in unjustly assailing me for defending my rights according to law.

The much abused phrase "technicality of the law" is utilized to portray, in coarse terms, the danger which Dr. Pardee intimates will involve the destruction of the State unless "technicalities are abolished."

You certainly must know that I am not responsible for the "technicalities of the law," and that they necessarily inhere in the law as a science and are inseparable from it; so from being to its disadvantage, they are the greatest safeguards of the law's protection to the innocent, and without them the law itself would degenerate into the arbitrary discretion of judicial tyranny.

I am, yours very respectfully,

GEORGE D. COLLINS,
1712 Bush Street, San Francisco

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

ON STABILITY OF RED MEN'S HALL.

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, January 23, 1907.

MR. PRESIDENT: Your special committee appointed for the purpose of examining into the stability and safety of the Red Men's Hall, where the sessions of the Senate are held, beg leave to report as follows:

We secured the services of Mr. R. L. Miller, an expert on constructional engineering, representing the firm of Smith, Emery & Company, of Oakland. This firm kindly placed Mr. Miller at our service without expense other than traveling expense from Oakland and his necessary expenses while examining the building. After making a thorough investigation as to methods and strength of construction we find that the building is entirely safe to withstand any strain that can be placed on it while it is used as a meeting place for the Senate of the State of California. The report of the expert is submitted as a portion of our report.

Respectfully submitted.

LYNCH, Chairman.
McKEE.
BELSHAW.

EXPERT'S REPORT.

Description.

The building is situated on Tenth Street, between "I" and "J," in the City of Sacramento, California; and is now being used for occupancy by the thirty-seventh session of the Legislature for the State of California. The building is a type known in California as class "B" construction.

Foundation.

The foundations are built of reinforced concrete, with eight-foot bases under all walls, and ten-foot bases under steel columns.

Walls.

The front wall is built of concrete blocks, made of a 3-1 mixture, veneered, being reinforced by brick work 24 inches of base to 17 inches of top; the other three walls are built of brick 24 inches of base to 17 inches of top. All the walls are well anchored. These walls with the exception of the south wall carry no load of building proper; the south wall carries one end of the load over a span of 18 feet; this span is used for committee rooms and hall, which at no time could be subjected to a greater load than 20 pounds to the foot. The safety of this span at its weakest point is 72 pounds per foot.

Auditorium.

The main rooms are supported by steel construction, composed of columns and girders, and fastened by bracket connections; the safety of this construction is 135.4 pounds to the foot. The greatest live load figured everything in excess to its estimated weight is 40 pounds.

The above estimate includes dead load and one hundred people in excess to Senators and their Secretaries, Assemblymen and their Clerks.

Hallways.

The elevator is safe and in good working order, and the stairs around same are first class.

Galleries.

The galleries are of crude construction, but amply strong enough to sustain all loads that they may be subjected to.

Fire Escapes.

The two fire escapes are on the north side of the building and comply with the Sacramento ordinance governing same.

Doors.

All doors are hung according to the law.

Deafening.

Any vibration that exists could not be attributed to any weakness in design or to construction, but possibly to deafening materials used.

Conclusion.

The building throughout shows no evidence of cracks or flaws, due to settling.

The building is a representative type of class "B" construction, and all carrying loads are in excess of anything that they may be subjected to, and the building is amply secure and strong enough to serve its present purpose.

Respectfully submitted.

SEC. 4. The council shall:

One: Judge of the qualifications of its members and of all election returns.

Two: Establish rules for its proceedings;

Three: Keep a correct journal of its proceedings and allow the same to be published. The ayes and noes shall, on demand of any member, be taken and entered therein.

Four: Choose one of its number president.

Five: Meet on the third Monday in April next succeeding the general municipal election, and hold regular meetings twice in each month and at such other times as they shall fix by ordinance. The council shall not adjourn to any place other than its regular place of meeting. The meetings of the council shall be public. Special meetings may be called by the mayor or by the president of the council or by three councilmen, by serving the members personally with written notices or leaving the same at places designated by the respective members.

Sec. 5. Every legislative act of the city shall be by ordinance. The enacting clause of every ordinance passed by the council shall be in these words: "Be it ordained by the council of the City of Alameda." The enacting clause of every ordinance passed by the people shall be as follows: "Be it ordained by the people of the City of Alameda." No ordinance shall be passed except by bill, and no bill shall be so amended as to change its original purpose. No ordinance shall be passed by the council on the day of its introduction or within five days thereafter, or at any time other than at a regular meeting or an adjourned regular meeting. Every ordinance shall be signed by the officer presiding at the time of its adoption, attested by the clerk and published at least once in a newspaper published in the City of Alameda, or advertised as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 6. Except as hereinafter provided no bill shall become an ordinance, or resolution be adopted unless finally passed by a majority vote of all the members of the council, and the vote taken by ayes and noes, and the names of the members voting for and against the same entered in the journal. No resolution or order for the payment of money shall be passed at any other than a regular meeting or an adjourned regular meeting.

Sec. 7. No ordinance shall be revised, re-enacted or amended by reference to its title; but the ordinance to be revised or re-enacted or the section thereof to be amended, shall be re-enacted at length as revised and amended. Any ordinance revised, re-enacted or amended contrary to the provisions of this section shall be void.

Sec. 8. When a bill is put upon its final passage in the council and fails to pass, and a motion is made to reconsider, the vote upon such motion shall not be acted upon before the next regular meeting.

Sec. 9. If any bill passed by the council containing several items appropriating money or fixing a tax levy, be presented to the mayor, he may object to one or more items separately, while approving other portions of the bill. In such case he shall append to the bill at the time of signing it, a statement of the item or items to which he objects, and the reasons therefor, and the item or items so objected to shall not take effect unless passed notwithstanding the mayor's objection. Each item so objected to shall be separately reconsidered by the council in the same manner as bills which have been disapproved by the mayor.

Sec. 10. In the erection, improvement and repair of all public buildings and works, in all street and sewer work, and in all work in and about streets, bays, water fronts, or in or about embankments or other works for protection against overflow or erosion, and in furnishing any supplies or materials for the same, when the expenditure required for the same exceeds the sum of five hundred dollars, the same shall be done by contract, and when let shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder, after notice by publication in the official newspaper of the city for at least twice a week for two weeks. Such notice shall distinctly and specifically state the work contemplated to be done; provided that the council may reject all bids presented, and re-advertise in their discretion.

Sec. 11. The council shall annually call for bids for doing city printing and advertising, and the contracts therefor shall be awarded separately, and to the lowest responsible bidder; Provided, that the council may reject all bids if in their opinion the bid of the lowest responsible bidder is exorbitant, and may again call for bids, subject to the reservation hereinafter mentioned. If the council shall determine that the bids secondly received are exorbitant, they may nevertheless let the contract to the lowest bidder for such portion of the printing as the board may determine, reserving the option to obtain other printing from such bidder at his schedule rates; and as to any printing not absolutely mentioned in the contract, the board may from time to time secure the same to be done by any party who may agree to do the same at a lower rate than that scheduled in the bid for doing the city printing; and in lieu of any newspaper advertising, may issue and publish a bulletin containing such matter as they are required by law to publish, sending the same by mail to the registered voters of the city, to their addresses as the same shall appear on the latest printed copy of the great register of Alameda County, and shall also post printed copies of such advertisement in three public places in the City of Alameda, at least five days before action is taken in response to said advertisement. Such mailing and posting shall be conclusively deemed of the same effect as if the advertisement had been fully published in the official newspaper of the city. The board shall annually designate as the official city paper, a newspaper published in this city. All provisions of this charter are subject to the provisions of this section.

SEC. 12. Every ordinance shall take effect ten days after its passage, unless otherwise provided.

SEC. 13. Every bill and every resolution as hereinbefore provided, which shall have passed the council and shall have been duly authenticated, shall be presented to the mayor for his approval. The mayor shall return such bill or resolution to the council within ten days after receiving it. If he approve the bill he shall sign it. If he disapprove it he shall specify his objections thereto in writing. If he does not return it with such disapproval within the time above specified, it shall take effect as if he had approved it. The objections of the mayor shall be entered at large in the journal of the council, and the council shall, after five and within thirty days after such bill or resolution shall have been so returned, reconsider and vote upon the same. If the same shall, upon reconsideration, be passed by the affirmative vote of not less than two thirds of the council, the presiding officer shall certify that fact on the bill or resolution, and when so certified the bill shall become an ordinance with like effect as if it had been approved by the mayor. Chapter III—Initiative and Referendum.

SEC. 23. The basis of the percentage in this chapter provided for any petition shall be the total number of voters appearing on the great register of the County of Alameda, as residing in the City of Alameda at the last preceding general election prior to the filing of said petition; and all voters registered at said general election or thereafter shall be qualified to sign the petitions herein provided for.

SEC. 24. Upon presentation to the council of a petition signed by qualified electors of the city in number equal to ten per cent. of said registered voters asking for submission to the electors of a measure fully set forth in said petition, being a measure that the council might itself adopt, the council itself must either enact such measure without alteration, or submit the same to the electorate at the next regular city election occurring subsequent to sixty days after the filing of said petition. But if such petition request the calling of a special election and be signed by qualified electors equal in number to twenty per cent. of said registered voters, then such measure, if not so enacted by the council, must be submitted to the electorate at a special election to be called within sixty days from the filing of such petition.

SEC. 25. If such proposed measure is a measure that the council might adopt except for the fact that it involves the repeal or amendment of a measure adopted by the electorate, as herein provided, and if in such case said petition be signed by qualified electors in number equal to twenty-five per cent. of said registered voters, then such proposed measure must be submitted to the electors of the city at the next regular city election occurring subsequent to sixty days after the filing of said petition.

SEC. 26. The method of signing and presenting petitions provided for herein shall be as follows: The signatures to a petition need not be appended to one paper, but each signer shall add to his signature his place of residence, giving the street and number or residence location. Each paper shall have attached thereto the affidavit of a registered voter of the city, stating that all the signatures to the paper were made in his presence, and that to the best of his knowledge and belief each signature to the paper appended is the genuine signature of the person whose name purports to be thereunto subscribed. Petitions shall be filed with the city clerk and by him presented to the council.

SEC. 27. Within ten days from the date of the filing of such petition in his office, the city clerk shall examine the great register and therefrom and from certificates of voters shall ascertain whether or not said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors; and if necessary the council shall allow him extra help for the purpose, and he shall attach to said petition his certificate, showing the result of said examination. Each signature the genuineness of which is not called in question by the sworn affidavit of the alleged owner thereof, shall be presumed to be genuine.

SEC. 28. If by the clerk's certificate it is shown that the petition has not been signed by the requisite number of qualified electors as herein provided, it may be amended within ten days from the date of said certificate by the further addition of names. The clerk shall within ten days after such amendment make like examination of said amended petition, and if his certificate shall show the same to be insufficiently signed as heretofore provided it shall be returned to the person who filed the same, without prejudice, however, to the filing of a new petition to the same effect. If the petition shall be found to be sufficiently signed as herein provided, the clerk shall present the same to the council without delay.

SEC. 29. After the first special election held hereunder, no special election shall be held under the provisions of this chapter until after the expiration of six months from the date of the holding of a preceding special election.

SEC. 30. Whenever any measure is required or authorized by this charter to be submitted to the electors of the city at any election, the city clerk shall cause the measure to be printed, and he shall send by mail a printed copy thereof to each voter whose name appears on the great register of Alameda County as last printed and published, at least ten days prior to election; but the council may order such measure to be published in the official newspaper of the city in like manner as ordinances adopted by the council are required to be published, and may order that such publication shall take the place of the printing and mailing of the measure, as above provided. Ordinances and measures in connection with local improvements, the expenses whereof are to be defrayed by local assessment, shall not come within the operation of this chapter.

SEC. 31. Any measure that the council or the electorate of the city, as herein provided, has authority to adopt, the council may, of its own motion, submit to a vote of its constituent electors at a general or special election.

SEC. 32. Except as herein provided no penal ordinance or measure granting any franchise or privilege, and no ordinance or measure making or authorizing any contract (except contracts for improvements the expenses whereof are to be defrayed by local assessment and contracts where the subject matter involved is of less value than one thousand dollars), passed by the council shall go into effect in less than thirty days after its final passage. But ordinances and contracts declared by the council to be necessary as emergency measures for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, passed by a three-fourths vote of the whole council, and not obligating the city for a longer period of time than one year, may go into effect at the will of the council, or as otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 33. If within said thirty days a petition signed by qualified voters of the city, in number equal to ten per cent. of said registered voters, is filed with the city clerk, asking that any penal ordinance or measure granting any franchise or privilege, or making or authorizing any contract (except contracts for improvements the expenses whereof are to be defrayed by local assessment, and contracts, where the subject matter involved is of less value than one thousand dollars), adopted by the council, be submitted to the electorate, then such ordinance or measure must either be repealed or be submitted to the electors for approval or rejection at the next regular city election occurring subsequent to sixty days after the filing of said petition, or at a special election called prior to such regular city election; and if such ordinance or measure has not gone into effect before the filing of such petition, and said petition has been signed by qualified electors of the city in number equal to fifteen per cent. of said registered voters, then such ordinance or measure shall not go into effect until and unless adopted at such election, and no ordinance or measure once so submitted shall within one year be again submitted except by vote of the council at the next general municipal election, or on a petition signed by twenty-five per cent. of said registered voters. Said petition shall be in all respects in accordance with the provisions hereinbefore specified in this chapter, except as to the percentage of signers, and shall be examined and certified by the clerk in all respects as heretofore provided.

SEC. 34. If a majority of votes cast by the electors of the city on any ordinance or measure referred to in this chapter shall be in favor thereof, it shall, if not already in effect, go into effect as a valid and binding ordinance or measure of the city ten days after the official count has been determined; otherwise such ordinance or measure shall be repealed or rejected. Such repeal shall take effect ten days after the official count has been determined. No ordinance or measure approved by the electorate under the provisions of this chapter shall be subject to veto, or be amended or repealed except by vote of the electorate.

SEC. 35. If the provisions of two or more measures approved and adopted at the same election, under the provisions of this chapter conflict, then the measure receiving the highest affirmative vote shall control.

SEC. 36. Whenever an applicant for a franchise, or other person, shall pay in advance to the city the expenses of a special election, the council must call such special election as heretofore provided, at which the proposed ordinance shall be submitted to vote of the electors.

He may administer and certify oaths and affirmations, and take and certify acknowledgments. He shall receive for his services a salary to be fixed by the council, and in addition thereto, shall be entitled to charge and receive such fees as are or may be allowed by law to justices of the peace for like services in civil actions.

SEC. 3. In all cases in which the police judge is a party, or in which he is interested, or when he is related to either party by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree or is otherwise disqualified, or in case of sickness or inability to act, the police judge may call in any justice of the peace residing in the county.

SEC. 4. The police judge must be an attorney-at-law, duly admitted to practice by the Supreme Court of the State. He shall be elected in the same manner and at the same time as the mayor and shall hold office for four years.

SEC. 5. The foregoing provisions of this article shall not take effect until the council shall deem it necessary or expedient to establish a police court, as above provided for, and shall by ordinance so declare and establish the same. Until the council shall so ordain, the provisions of the general laws of the state applicable to city justices of the peace shall be and continue in full force and effect.

Chapter II—City Attorney.

SEC. 6. There shall be a city attorney who shall be appointed by the council, and who shall have been an elector of the city for at least four years next before his appointment, and shall be an attorney and counselor-at-law duly admitted to practice by the Supreme Court of the State, and shall have actually been engaged in the practice of his profession for a period of at least four years next before his appointment, and whose term of office shall be two years and until his successor is appointed and qualified. ARTICLE V.

FINANCE AND TAXATION.

Chapter I—Levyng of Taxes.

SECTION 1. On or before the second Monday of May in each year the heads of departments, offices, boards and commissions of the city shall send to the council an estimate in writing of the amount of expenditure, specifying in detail the objects thereof, required in their respective departments, offices, boards and commissions for the fiscal year next ensuing, including a statement of the salaries of their subordinates. Duplicates of these estimates shall be sent at the same time to the auditor.

SEC. 2. On or before the first Monday of June in each year the auditor shall transmit to the council an estimate of the probable expenditures of the city government for the next ensuing fiscal year, stating the amount required to meet the interest and sinking funds for all outstanding funded debts, and the wants of all the departments of the municipal government in detail, showing specifically the amount necessary to be apportioned to each fund in the treasury; also an estimate of the amount of income from fines, licenses and other sources of revenue, exclusive of taxes upon property, and the probable amount required to be levied and raised by taxation.

SEC. 3. The council shall have power, and it shall be their duty to provide by ordinance, a system for the assessment, levy and collection of all city taxes, not inconsistent with the provisions of this charter, which system shall conform, as nearly as the circumstances of the case may admit, to the provisions of the laws of this State in reference to the assessment, levy and collection of state and county taxes, except as to the time for such assessment, levy and collection;

Provided, that taxes on real property shall be due and delinquent at the same time that state and county taxes are now due and delinquent.

SEC. 4. Every tax so levied shall have the force and effect of a judgment against the person and property taxed, and shall be and constitute a lien upon the real property situated in said city so assessed or owned by the party against whom such assessment is made. Every such assessment and the lien thereof shall have the force and effect of an execution duly levied upon all property owned by the party assessed, or by the unknown owner of such property when assessed to an unknown owner. The judgment shall attach as of twelve noon, on the first Monday in March of each year, and shall not be satisfied or discharged until the tax assessed against the property is paid, or the property sold for the payment thereof.

SEC. 5. The city shall have such other rights, claims and liens for the amount of such municipal taxes as may now or hereafter be given to or exercised by the people of the State of California for and on account of the assessment of State and county taxes levied in Alameda County. The mode and manner of collecting such municipal taxes, and enforcing such tax lien, and the proceedings thereafter, shall substantially be the same as the mode and manner at the time prescribed by law for the collection of State and county taxes in said county;

Provided, that the council may, by ordinance, regulate the time or times and the method of the collection of said taxes within each fiscal year, and prescribe by what officer the respective duties appertaining to such collection and enforcement shall be performed; and such proceedings, sales, certificates and conveyances had, made, and executed by them in pursuance thereof, shall be of like force, effect and validity as is or may hereafter be given by law to like proceedings and acts in the matter of collections of State and county taxes in said county.

SEC. 6. All sales for delinquent taxes shall be made to the City of Alameda, unless otherwise regulated by ordinance.

SEC. 7. The council may, by an order entered upon its journal, extend for not exceeding thirty days the time fixed in this article for the performance of any act.

SEC. 8. All fines and forfeitures arising under the revenue and taxation laws as applied to the city, may, in civil cases, be recovered in the name of the city, and, together with all other moneys collected or received by any officer of the city, under said laws, shall be for the use of the city. When real estate is offered for sale for city taxes due thereon, the same shall be struck off and sold to the city in like case and in like manner, and with like effect as it may be struck off or sold to the State when offered for sale for State and county taxes, and the council shall have the same powers and duties in relation to such property as are given by law to the State Board of Equalization in case of a sale to the State, but no certificate or receipt need be delivered to the State Controller.

SEC. 9. No officer shall be required to send or transmit any statement or report to any State officer or board.

SEC. 10. All papers and instruments required to be filed or recorded with or by the county recorder by the revenue or taxation laws of this State, shall, under said laws as applied to the city, be, in like manner and with like effect, filed with and recorded by the county recorder of Alameda County.

SEC. 11. Whenever the council shall determine that the public interest requires the construction, or acquisition, or completion of any permanent municipal building, school building, high school building, sewer property, water right, bridge, canal, tunnel or other public improvement, or utility, the cost of which in addition to the other expenditures of the city will exceed the income and revenue provided for in any one year, they may, by ordinance, submit a proposition to incur a debt for such purpose and proceed therein as provided in the constitution of this State and the general law or laws thereof, now or hereafter in force.

SEC. 12. Except as otherwise provided in this charter no money shall be drawn from the treasury unless in consequence of appropriations made by the council and upon warrants duly drawn thereon by the auditor.

SEC. 13. No warrant shall be drawn except upon an unexhausted specific appropriation.

SEC. 14. No contracts made, the expense of whose execution is not provided by law or ordinance to be paid by assessments upon the property benefited, shall be binding or of any force unless the auditor shall endorse thereon his certificate that there remains unexpended and unapplied as herein provided, a balance of the appropriation or fund applicable thereto, sufficient to pay the estimated expense of executing such contract as certified by the board or officer making the same. This provision shall not apply to work done or supplies furnished, involving the expenditure of less than two hundred and fifty dollars, unless the same is required by law to be done by contract by public letting. The auditor shall make such endorsement upon every such contract so presented to him, if there remain unapplied and unexpended such amount so specified by the officer making the contract, and thereafter shall hold and retain such sum to pay the expense incurred until the contract shall be fully performed. The auditor shall furnish monthly, and oftener if requested, to the head of each department a statement of the unexpended balances of the appropriation for such department.

SEC. 15. The amount of the tax levy shall be sufficient to provide for the payment during the fiscal year, of all demands upon the treasury authorized to be paid out of the same; but such levy exclusive of the tax to pay the interest and maintain the sinking funds of bonded indebtedness of the city, and exclusive of the tax to pay for street and sewer work and to pay for the maintenance and improvement of the parks, squares and public grounds of the city shall not exceed the rate of one dollar on each one hundred dollars valuation of the property assessed. The council in making the levy shall apportion the taxes to the several funds.

SEC. 16. The limitation in the section last preceding shall not apply in case of any great necessity or emergency. In such case the limitation may be temporarily suspended, so as to enable the council to provide for such necessity or emergency. No increase over the dollar limit shall be made in the rate of taxation authorized to be levied in any fiscal year, unless such increase be authorized by ordinance adopted by vote of the people or passed by a three-fourths vote of the council and approved by the mayor. The character of such necessity or emergency shall be recited in the ordinance authorizing such action, and be entered in the journal of the board. Nothing in this section shall authorize the incurring of liabilities against the treasury not allowed by law or which cannot be paid out of the income and revenue provided, collected and paid into the proper fund as its proportion of the same for such fiscal year, or permit liabilities or indebtedness incurred in any one fiscal year to be a charge upon or paid out of the income or revenue of any other fiscal year.

SEC. 17. The council shall, subject to the provisions of this charter, fix the amount of municipal revenues and provide by ordinance for the collection thereof. They shall, from time to time, provide for the payment of the interest and principal of the bonds for which the city is liable.

SEC. 18. The council shall authorize the disbursement of all public moneys except as otherwise specifically provided in this charter.

SEC. 19. At the close of each fiscal year, if all demands against each fund have been paid or satisfied, and all disputed or contested demands fully adjudicated, the council shall direct the treasurer to transfer all surplus moneys to the general fund, except such surplus moneys as are in the several interest and sinking funds, in the school fund, in the library fund and in such other funds the disposition of whose surplus moneys is in this charter otherwise provided for.

SEC. 20. The assessment of property within the city made by the county assessor of Alameda County and the State Board of Equalization may be the basis of taxation of the city, unless the council on or before the fourth Monday of July in any year, shall, by ordinance, elect to have an independent assessment made by the city assessor for such year; in which event such ordinance shall prescribe the time within which such assessment shall be made, and the method of making the same, and shall provide for such clerical assistance as may be required to properly prepare such assessment.

SEC. 21. Should any property in the city, however, not be assessed by the county assessor, the city assessor shall assess and enter the same in the "Subsequent Assessments" provided for in the next section.

SEC. 22. It shall be the duty of the assessor at any time subsequent to the first Monday in August of each year, to assess any property which shall not be on the regular list, and he shall enter such assessment in a separate portion of the tax list or assessment roll, under the head "Subsequent Assessments," and shall deliver a true copy thereof, duly certified by him, to the city clerk, to be by him compared with the entries on the assessment roll.

SEC. 23. The council shall meet at the usual place of holding meetings on the first Monday of September of each year, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, and sit as a board of equalization, and shall continue in session from day to day until all the returns of the assessor have been received. They shall have power to hear complaints, and to correct, modify or strike out any assessment made by the assessor, and may, of their own motion, raise any assessment, upon notice to the party whose assessment is to be raised. They may also, partially, or wholly, relieve from taxation any improvements, structures or fixtures used exclusively for manufacturing, erected or placed in the city subsequent to the first day of January, 1906; Provided, that no particular property shall be exempt from taxation for more than two years.

SEC. 24. The corrected list for each tax shall be the assessment roll for said tax for said year. It shall be certified by the city clerk, who shall act as clerk of the board of equalization, as being the assessment roll for said tax, and shall be the assessment roll upon which said tax is to be levied in said year.

Chapter II—The Several Funds.

SEC. 25. The income and revenue paid into the treasury shall be at once apportioned to and kept in separate funds, one of which shall be designated the general fund, and which shall consist of money received into the treasury not specifically apportioned to any other fund.

SEC. 26. Except as otherwise provided in this charter, any moneys remaining at the end of any fiscal year in any interest and sinking fund or in a fund provided by a special bond issue for a specific purpose, the school fund, the library fund and the electric fund, shall be carried forward and apportioned to the respective funds for the ensuing year.

SEC. 27. Any demand against the treasury or against any fund thereof remaining unpaid at the end of the fiscal year for lack of money applicable to its payment, may be paid out of any money which may subsequently come into the proper fund from delinquent taxes or other uncollected income or revenue for such year. Such demands shall be paid out of such delinquent revenue when collected.

Chapter III—The Custody of Public Moneys.

SEC. 28. All moneys arising from taxes, licenses, fees, fines, penalties and forfeitures, and all moneys which may be collected or received by any officer of the city in his official capacity, or from any department of the city, for the performance of any official duty, and all moneys accruing to the city from any source, and all moneys directed by law or by this charter to be paid or deposited in the treasury, shall be paid into the treasury. All officers or persons collecting or receiving such moneys must pay the same into the treasury daily.

SEC. 29. No salaried officer, except as otherwise provided in this charter, shall receive or accept any fee, payment or compensation either directly or indirectly for any services performed by him in his official capacity, or any fee, payment or compensation for any official service performed by any of his deputies, clerks or employes, whether performed during or after official business hours. No deputy, clerk or employe of such officer shall receive or accept any fee, compensation or payment other than his salary as now or hereafter fixed by law, for any work or service performed by him of any official nature, or under color of office, whether performed during or after official business hours.

SEC. 30. Every fee, commission, percentage, allowance or other compensation authorized by law to be charged, received or collected by any officer for any official service, must be paid daily by the officer receiving the same, to the treasurer, except as otherwise provided in this charter. The treasurer shall place the same to the credit of the general fund.

SEC. 31. The auditor or other proper officer must deliver from time to time to the treasurer, and to every officer authorized by law to charge any fee, commission, percentage, allowance or compensation, for the performance of any official service of duty, as many official receipts as may be required, charging therewith the treasurer or other officer receiving them. Such receipts must be bound into books containing not less than one hundred such receipts, and numbered consecutively, beginning with number one in each class required for each officer for each fiscal year, and provided with a stub corresponding in number with receipt. When the books containing receipts are exhausted by the officer receiving them, he shall return the stubs thereof to the auditor or other proper officer, in whose custody they shall remain thereafter.

SEC. 32. When a receipt as herein provided is issued by the treasurer or other officer, he must state therein the date of payment, the name of the person making the payment, and the amount of such payment, the nature of the service for which the charge is made, and the name and official designation of the officer performing the service, and shall make corresponding entries on the stub of each receipt.

SEC. 33. On the first day of each month the treasurer, tax collector and city marshal, and every officer authorized by law to charge any fee, commission, percentage, allowance, or compensation, must make to the auditor a report under oath of all moneys received by him during the preceding month, showing the date and number of the receipt on which the money was received, the amount of each payment, by whom paid, the nature of the service, and the name and official designation of the officer performing the service. At the same time, or oftener, if required by the auditor, each officer above named shall exhibit to the auditor all official receipts received by him during the preceding month, and all official receipts remaining in his hands, unused or not issued, at the close of business on the last day of the preceding month.

SEC. 34. The demand of the auditor for his monthly salary shall be audited and allowed by the mayor. All other demands on account of salaries fixed by law, ordinance or this charter, and made payable out of the treasury, may be allowed by the auditor without previous approval. All demands payable out of any fund in the control of any board, commission or committee, before they can be allowed by the auditor or paid, must be regularly approved by such board, commission or committee. All demands on the treasury for salaries, wages, compensation of deputies, clerks, assistants or employes in any office or department must, before they can be audited or paid, be first approved in writing by the officer, board or department of authority under whom or in which such demand originated. QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Senator Willis arose to a question of personal privilege, and his request was unanimously granted, that the following remarks made by him, on Wednesday, January 23, 1907, in speaking on a resolution offered by himself, be printed in the Journal:

REMARKS IN RE LIVERNASH RESOLUTION.

By Willis.

MR. PRESIDENT: No honest official is afraid of criticism, and no brave man is afraid of the attack of his adversary, if he makes it face to face. There is no man in this Senate Chamber elected as a representative to this present Senate, who is afraid of honest criticism. No member of this Senate, as far as I have been able to ascertain from personal contact, is a coward. No member of this Senate, to the best of my knowledge, judgment, and information, is afraid that any newspaper or any newspaper correspondent can harm him by any fair, just criticism. Nobody, Mr. President, is more willing to be subjected to press criticism than I am; but I resent, and will resent as long as I have the strength and the method, any brutal or unjust criticism. If it is directed toward me personally, there are two ways in which I can resent it: one by rising on the floor of this Senate to a question of privilege, and expressing myself in language as to how I feel about it. The other way is, Mr. President, to make a personal matter of it, and subject him who is guilty of unfair and unjust and brutal conduct, to treatment at my hands, and with my physical strength, that he is deserving of, and which would be applauded by any right thinking person. There has been made, not a personal attack upon any member of this body, but there has been made, by a cruel, calculating person, knowing well the laws of libel, knowing well the penalty that follows it, an unwarranted and infamous attack on the body itself; he has not singled out me, or any one else in the Senate and libeled him, but has attacked this representative body, elected by the people of this State, to the Senate of California—has attacked them collectively, in a brutal, infamous, and villainous manner. This man Livernash, who this morning sat there at that desk, which by the courtesy of this Senate had been assigned to him for his use, at any time that he wished to enter those portals—this man Livernash sat there this morning, but left after this resolution was introduced; but where is he now? He has ascended to the gallery, where he now sits, back in the farthest corner, where I can not look him in the face, unless I turn my back to the presiding officer of this body. This person, Mr. President, has seen fit, after we have given him this courtesy, to say that this Senate is vulgar. Mr. President, that is a lie, and he knows it. He says that this Senate is base. Mr. President, that also is a lie, and he knows it. He says that this Senate is degraded; that also is a lie, and he knows it. He says that we willfully, brutally, and clumsily glory in our degradation. Mr. President, that is an abominable lie, all of which are the imaginings of a rotten, diseased brain. This person has been extended the courtesy of a seat in this Senate Chamber, a courtesy that is denied to those honorable citizens of the State of California, who have no particular business in here, and accorded the privilege to mingle with gentlemen—honest, law-abiding gentlemen, of the State of California—allowed to mingle with us, and come in contact with us, and touch our clothing perhaps, and possibly shake our hands, and he has seen fit to go out, after a twelve-hour sojourn with us in this city, fresh from the City of Denver, where he had been ejected from one of the largest newspapers in the West, and say that this Senate is vulgar, base, degraded, and many, many other infinitely contemptible things, which, if true, would brand us all as worse than the criminals who are breaking rock eighteen miles from here. Not only that, but he has seen fit, at a time when our cheeks were still wet with tears, at a time when our breasts were filled with emotion at the loss of a distinguished colleague, to say that this body of Senators and Assemblymen adjourned and went to Oakland, and stood around the grave of that lovable and loved Assemblyman, John J. Burke, for the purpose of giving the leaders and the manipulators and the mechanists of this Legislature, the time and a chance to prepare a program on petty politics. By so doing, Mr. President, he has not only insulted the honorable emotions of honorable men in this body, and in the Assembly, but he has defamed, in the eyes of the world, the reputation of that dead boy. That boy's reputation, his standing, and his association, and his known record, were such that all of us, old acquaintances and new, spontaneously agreed to go to his funeral as a token of the high regard and the great respect and the great love that we all held for him as a man. This man has seen fit to insult that emotion. He has seen fit to injure and cruelly wound the feelings of every one of that boy's relatives and friends. Coupled with the announcement of this marked token of respect, in the daily press, which this body paid to that Assemblyman—was the scurrilous, mean, and contemptible mouthings of this individual, Livernash—an insult that will live as long as the memory of that dead boy lives in the minds of those to whom he was most dear. Now, Mr. President, those things can not be tolerated. When gentlemen extend courtesies to others, they expect to be treated as gentlemen. If there is any difference of opinion as to the merits of any proposed action, resolution, or legislation, none of us is afraid of criticism of it. I, myself, have taken pains to invite the criticism of the entire press of my district on all measures that I have introduced here, and I stand ready to be guided and governed and informed by the opinions that come through the press. I respect the press. I respect and will fight for the liberty of the press, but when a man so far forgets the value of his services on this earth, when he forgets to remember the commands of God Almighty, and particularly the Golden Rule, and not only abuses the privileges that are given him, but insults and seeks to degrade those who give him such privileges, I say the time has come, Mr. President, when he should be told that this place is no place for him, that this is a place accorded to the occupation of gentlemen, and not thugs of personal character. In the resolution you will find a copy of the attack published by this person on the 18th of January. By the irony of fate the head lines and the name of this person, attached to that article, stand exactly opposite to the portraits of Siemson and Dalmer, the gas-pipe thugs of San Francisco, now standing in the shadow of the gallows. I state, Mr. President, that it was the irony of fate that put the name of Livernash, and this article, adjacent to those pictures, and I say to you, fellow Senators, and I say to the world, which is the better, the gas-pipe thug, or the character thug—as far as I am concerned, I am not afraid of any gas-pipe thug. My physical manhood is such, my intelligence is such, and my experience is such, that I believe that I am safely guarded against the dangers of any gas-pipe thug. If perchance I should fall a victim to them, it will not be my fault, it will be my misfortune; but as against the thuggery of a man who is accorded the right to use the columns of a daily newspaper, what protection, Mr. President, have we? None, none. We can only stand up and resent it. As a man I resent those false statements, those unjust, cowardly criticisms, which are not criticisms. Could I go home, my fellow Senators, could I, after all of these attacks have been written about me, because I am one of you—could I go home and look my wife in the face and answer her when she said to me, "Why did you stand it?" Could I look into the faces of the men of my district, who have known me all my life, because I was born there, I was raised there, I have lived there nearly all of my life—could I look them in the face, knowing that they know me to be an honest man, and a man who will not permit any man to call me a thief, base or vulgar, without resentment? How could I answer them, when they say to me, "Willis, why did you let Livernash say that about you and not challenge him?"

Mr. President, fifty years ago, my father was one of the associate editors of the sheet in which this man publishes his articles. My father at that time wrote many communications to that paper, and for it, and in those days that paper did a world of good? Could I be true to the memory I have of my father, of his persistent and constant integrity and efforts for the good, and permit the same paper, which he at one time graced, to insult me through this person, using the same columns, to say that I am base, degraded and vulgar? No, I won't permit it to go unresented. My inclination is to take him out and thrash him, but, Mr. President, there is nothing in that, there is no satisfaction in that: I do not want to see him; I do not want to see him in this room, because I am not in the habit of associating with that kind of cattle, and I know that all of my fellow Senators feel that he is not worthy of association with us, because our purpose here is to do good, our purposes are to be right, to be fair; and I trust that I have demonstrated in my argument, and in my statement in this resolution, that I am trying to be fair to this man, in spite of the treatment he has accorded us. Gentlemen always act as gentlemen, and no excitement of the moment, no excitement of passion or feelings, ought to be permitted on the floor of this distinguished Senate Chamber, so I have tried to couch that resolution in gentlemanly language, and to make the result to be the result that gentlemen indulge in, namely: that we simply say to this person, "You can not soil the carpets of this chamber with your feet any longer; you can not contaminate these men here with your presence any more; go out and stay out as long as this thirty-seventh session continues." I think in view of what I have said, and in view of what he has done, that it is no more than decent, it is no more than honorable and manly on our part to say to this person, who does not know how to treat gentlemen as gentlemen, "You can not any longer abide with us. Go hence, and mend your ways, if you can." It is my hope and prayer that he can; it is my conviction that he can not.

"An Act of the Legislature should not be declared unconstitutional by the courts, unless it is clearly inconsistent with the fundamental law, and when there is a reasonable doubt as to its validity, its constitutionality should be affirmed." (140 Cal. 476.)

7. To postpone indefinitely.

43. Motion Not to be Debated Until Seconded and Announced.

No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President or any Senator, and read by the Secretary, before the same shall be debated.

44. Reading of a Paper, if Objected to, Determined Without Debate.

When the reading of a paper is called for (except petitions), and the same is objected to by any Senator, it shall be determined by a vote of the Senate.

45. Amendments and Substitutes—When in Order.

Substitutes may be offered at any time when a bill or resolution is open to amendment previous to engrossment; and when adopted shall take the place of the original bill or resolution, and shall be open to amendment.

46. Amendments and Substitutes Must be Germane.

No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment or substitute.

47. Least Sum and Shortest Time in Filling Blanks.

In filling up blanks, the least sum or number and the shortest time shall be put first.

48. Short of Final Question, Two-thirds Vote Not Requisite on Propositions to Amend Constitution.

When an amendment to the Constitution, or any bill requiring the concurrence of two thirds of the Senators, is under consideration, the concurrence of two thirds shall not be required to decide any question for amendment, or extend to the merits, being short of the final question.

49. Notice of Reconsideration.

On the day succeeding that on which the final vote on any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment has been taken, said vote may be reconsidered on the motion of any Senator; provided, notice of intention to move such reconsideration shall have been given on the day on which such final vote was taken, by a Senator voting with the prevailing side; and it shall not be in order to reconsider on the day on which such final vote was taken. Said motion of reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn; and it shall require twenty-one votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any bill, concurrent or joint resolution has been passed or defeated, and twenty-seven votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been passed or defeated. No notice of reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day of the session.

There shall be but one reconsideration, even though the action of the Senate after reconsideration is the opposite of the action of the Senate before reconsideration.

50. Reconsideration of Bills Sent to Assembly.

When a bill, resolution, amendment, order, or message upon which a vote has been taken shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate and been communicated to the Assembly, a motion to reconsider shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the same, which last-named motion shall be acted upon immediately and without debate, and if determined in the negative, shall be a final disposition of the motion to reconsider.

51. Secretary, Upon Notice of Reconsideration, Not to Report Bill to Assembly.

If a Senator gives notice that he intends to move a reconsideration, the Secretary shall not report the bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment, to the Assembly till the reconsideration is disposed of, or the time for moving the same has expired, unless the bill or resolution has been transmitted to the Assembly.

52. Motion to Reconsider May be Debated.

A Senator, after a notice of motion to reconsider is given, as provided in Rule 49, may, at the reconsideration thereof, present the main question in his argument thereon, and the same may be debated by the Senate, provided that the subject-matter is debatable.

53. Amendments to Original Question.

1. An amendment may be laid on the table without prejudice to the bill. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

2. If the question in debate contains several propositions, any Senator may have the same divided; except a motion to strike out and insert shall not be divided. But the rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition, nor shall it prevent a motion to simply strike out, nor shall the rejection of a motion to strike out prevent a motion to strike out and insert; but pending a motion to strike out and insert, the part to be stricken out and the part to be inserted shall each be regarded, for the purpose of amendment, as a question. And motions to amend the part to be stricken out shall have precedence.

54. Final Question on Second Reading of Bill—No Amendment on Third Reading, but May Commit.

The final question on the second reading of every bill originating in the Senate, and requiring three readings previous to being passed, shall be: "Shall the bill be engrossed?" And no amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of such bill, to move its commitment under special instructions to amend.

55. Special Orders.

Any subject may, by vote of two thirds of the Senators present, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate.

56. Form of Previous Question—Call of Senate.

The previous question shall be put in this form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the Senators present upon division; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the Senate to a vote on the subject under discussion. On a motion for the previous question, and prior to a vote being taken by the Senate, a call of the Senate shall be in order.

57. Ayes and Noes: Members Must Answer—No Vote after Announcement of Vote.

When the ayes and noes shall be called for by three members present, every member within the bar of the Senate at the time the question was put shall declare openly, and without debate, his assent or dissent to the question. In taking the ayes and noes, and upon the call of the Senate, the names of the Senators shall be taken alphabetically. When the ayes and noes shall be taken upon any question in pursuance of this rule, no Senator shall be permitted, under any circumstances whatever, to vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

58. Rules in Senate and Committee of the Whole.

The rules of the Senate shall be observed in Committee of the Whole, so far as may be applicable, except limiting the number of times a Senator may speak, and except that the ayes and noes shall not be taken.

59. Suspending and Changing Rules.

No standing rule or order of the Senate shall be rescinded or changed without a vote of two thirds of the members-elect, and one day's notice being given of the motion therefor; but a rule or order may be suspended temporarily by a vote of two thirds of the Senators-elect, except that portion of Rule 27, relating to the final passage of bills. All proposed amendments to these rules shall be referred to the Committee on Rules, without debate.

60. Executive Session.

On a motion, made and seconded, to close the doors of the Senate on the discussion of any business which may, in the opinion of the Senate, require an executive session, the President shall require all persons, except the Senators, President of Senate, Secretary, Sergeant-at-Arms, and Doorkeeper to withdraw, and during the discussion of said motion the doors shall remain closed; and every member and officer of the Senate shall keep secret all such matters, proceedings, and things whereof secrecy shall be enjoined by order of the Senate.

61. Messengers—When Introduced.

Messengers may be introduced at any stage of business, except while a question is being put, while the ayes and noes are being called, while the ballots are being counted, or while a Senator is addressing the Senate.

62. Smoking.

No smoking shall be allowed within the Senate Chamber.

63. Cases Not Provided for, Cushing to Govern.

In all cases not provided for by these rules, the Senate shall be governed by the laws and practice as laid down in Cushing's Law and Practice of Legislative Assemblies.

Respectfully,

GREENWELL,
Chairman Committee on Rules.

Reports read.

The question being on the adoption of the minority report.

Senator Curtin addressed the Senate as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT: The "Japanese Question," now agitating the American people from one end of this continent to the other, is a serious one.

While it is to be hoped that it will not cause friction between two hitherto friendly nations, it will have served a useful purpose by calling attention to the desire of our "strenuous President" to override the Constitution of the United States, in order to carry into effect an unwarranted assumption of power. The facts which have given rise to this subject may be summarized as follows:

Prior to the April fire which destroyed a large part of San Francisco, the children of white parents and no rule separating them or providing separate schools children of Japanese parents attended the same schools in said city as did the for said children had been made, but subsequent to said fire the Board of Education of San Francisco believed it wise to provide schools for the children of Japanese parents other than those attended by children of white parents, and accordingly on October 11, 1906, a rule was made by said board providing for such separation and requiring the children of Japanese parents to attend the separate school provided for them. This rule the Japanese resented and made complaint to the Japanese Minister at Washington, and subsequently the Secretary of Commerce and Labor visited San Francisco to obtain data and views on the situation thus presented, and in his report to the President, under date of November 26, 1906, it appears that on October 11, 1906, when the rule complained of was made, there were ninety-three Japanese children who attended the various public schools of San Francisco, twenty-five of whom were born in the United States and the remaining number were born elsewhere. Subsequent to the making of that report by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, the President, under date of December 6, 1906, in his message to Congress, among other things, says:

"But here and there a most unworthy feeling has manifested itself toward the Japanese—the feeling that has been shown in shutting them out from the common schools in San Francisco, and in mutterings against them in one or two other places, because of their efficiency as workers. To shut them out from the public schools is a wicked absurdity, when there are no first-class colleges in the land, including the universities and colleges of California, which do not gladly welcome Japanese students and on which Japanese students do not reflect credit. We have as much to learn from Japan as Japan has to learn from us; and no nation is fit to teach unless it is willing to learn. * * *

"It is only a very small body of our citizens that act badly. Where the Federal Government has power it will deal summarily with any such. Where the several states have power, I earnestly ask that they also deal wisely and promptly with such conduct, or else this small body of wrongdoers may bring shame upon the great mass of their innocent and right-thinking fellows—that is, upon our nation as a whole. * * *

"I recommend to the Congress that an act be passed specifically providing for the naturalization of Japanese who come here intending to become American citizens. One of the great embarrassments attending the performance of our international obligations is the fact that the statutes of the United States are entirely inadequate. They fail to give the National Government sufficiently ample power, through United States courts and by the use of the army and navy, to protect aliens in the rights secured to them under solemn treaties which are the law of the land. I therefore earnestly recommend that the criminal and civil statutes of the United States be so amended and added to as to enable the President, acting for the United States Government, which is responsible in our international relations, to enforce the rights of aliens under treaties. Even as the law now is, something can be done by the Federal Government toward this end, and in the matter now before me affecting the Japanese, everything that it is in my power to do will be done, and all of the forces, military and civil, of the United States which I may lawfully employ will be so employed."

After transmitting this most extraordinary message to Congress we find the United States District Attorney for this district called to the seat of the Federal Government to consult upon devising means to carry into effect the desire of the President as manifested in his message to Congress, and on January —, 1907, application on behalf of a Japanese child was made to the Supreme Court of this State for a writ of mandate to compel the admission of said Japanese child into the same school with white children and on the same day a bill in equity was filed in the United States Circuit Court in San Francisco to enjoin said Board of Education from enforcing the rule referred to, to restrain said board from preventing said Japanese child from attending said school, and it is to the law bearing upon these two proceedings that my remarks will be directed.

A construction of four provisions of the Federal Constitution is necessary in order to arrive at a proper understanding and decision of the questions involved, and those provisions are as follows:

Article VI of said Constitution provides that:

"This Constitution and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the judges in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding."

Article X, otherwise called the "Tenth Amendment," provides:

"The powers not delegated to the United States, by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states, respectively, or to the people."

Article II of said Constitution provides that the President "shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur."

The fourth provision is contained in the Fourteenth Amendment to said Constitution, which provides that:

"No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

In order to arrive at a proper understanding and appreciation of the legal propositions involved in this controversy, it is necessary that we review the historical conditions of our country, which led to the adoption of the Federal Constitution, so that we may interpret them in accordance with the intention of its framers.

In 1776, when war with England was imminent, when the Colonists realized that the form of government over them as prescribed by that country was becoming each month and each year, more onerous, drastic, tyrannical, nay—almost brutal, it was never doubted that a God of Justice would awaken to their prayers and grant deliverance of those people from that form of government, and that with help in God and a consciousness of the rectitude of their purpose, victory was sure to follow from their struggles; but freedom from England was not the all-important question then agitating the mind of the Colonists, for, unless, when freed from England's rule, a form of government could be established by which the rights enjoyed by the Colonists could be preserved, then there would be no blessings flow from the sacrifices to be made to secure that freedom. It must be borne in mind, that at that time, South Carolina had her slave laws, which were not granted to other colonies. Maryland had a charter guaranteeing religious freedom, Massachusetts had her own laws different from the other colonies, and so one with every other colony of the Original Thirteen. Not one colony could interfere with laws or rights enjoyed by any other colony, and while all desired freedom from the yoke of British rule, yet none were agreeable to part with the rights otherwise enjoyed, and with a view to the preservation of those rights, it was, in a Congress assembled in Philadelphia on October 19, 1774, for the purpose of issuing an address to the King asking an amelioration of the conditions under which the Colonists were then enduring:

"Resolved, 6. That they are entitled to the benefit of such of the English statutes, as existed at the time of their colonization, and which they have, by experience, respectively found to be applicable to their several local and other circumstances."

"Resolved, 7. That these, His Majesty's Colonies, are likewise entitled to all the immunities and privileges granted and confirmed to them by royal charters, or secured by their several codes of provincial laws."

When those petitions for amelioration and redress were unheeded and unanswered, or were answered by more severe and other impositions, then did those Colonists assemble at Philadelphia with a view of securing that freedom of thought and of action "and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitled them," and when secured, to have preserved to them, that independence of each other, which they hitherto enjoyed, and desired to continue to enjoy, they drafted the Declaration of Independence, the concluding words of which are "that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states."

On June 11, 1776, and before the Colonists would agree to the final adoption by Congress of that Declaration of Independence, it was resolved that a committee be appointed to draft "a form of confederation to be entered into between the Colonies," and that committee was appointed and the work of drafting those articles of confederation began, and so apprehensive were the people of the several colonies, that that INDEPENDENCE OF EACH OTHER AND OF THE GENERAL GOVERNMENT might not be thoroughly and absolutely preserved, that it was not until July 9, 1778, that a satisfactory draft was finally completed and New Hampshire was the first Colony to subscribe to the Articles, which was done by her on August 8, 1778. Delaware never agreed to the Articles until February 1, 1779, and Maryland not until January 20, 1781, and the complete ratification by all the Colonies could not be announced by Congress until March 1, 1781, so, according to the history of our country, we find that in its very formation, the sovereignty and independence of each state was one of the pillars upon which the foundation of this government rests, for, as said the United States Supreme Court in Ware vs. Hylton, 3 Dallas, 224—

"The Declaration of Independence was of the independence of EACH STATE, and NOT the states COLLECTIVELY."

And it was upon that declaration in the second Article of Confederation expressly provided that—

"Each state RETAINS ITS SOVEREIGNTY, FREEDOM AND INDEPENDENCE, AND EVERY POWER, JURISDICTION AND RIGHT, which is not by this confederation expressly delegated to the United States, in Congress assembled."

Now the above article has an all-important bearing on the question under consideration because it was the organic "law of the land" for ten years thereafter, to wit, until 1789. The necessity for further revision of these Articles of Confederation and for a complete and adequate Constitution for the Union arose principally out of the commerce conducted by George Washington upon the Ohio River, for while carrying on that commerce each state through which his commerce was carried on demanded the right to levy a tax upon that commerce and as such a condition was not contemplated by the framers of the Articles of Confederation, and general dissatisfaction arose from the right of the different states or colonies to levy such tax; on February 21, 1787, Congress adopted a resolution in favor of a convention "to take into consideration the situation of the United States; to devise such further provision as should appear to them necessary to render the Constitution of the Federal Government adequate to the exigencies of the Union," and, as a result of the adoption of that resolution the Federal Constitution was prepared and adopted and in the original draft there was omitted from the Constitution the RETENTION OF STATE SOVEREIGNTY, but the same was submitted and reserved in the tenth amendment to the Constitution and adopted by the First Congress on September 25, 1789, in and by which tenth amendment it was and is expressly provided that—"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

We, therefore, turn to the question of what is the meaning and proper definition of a "state" as used in the Articles of Confederation and in the Federal Constitution. We find the answer to that question given by the United States Supreme Court in the case of Texas vs. White, reported in the 71 U. S. Reporter, at page 721, wherein that court said:

"A state, in the ordinary sense of the Constitution, is a political community of free citizens occupying a territory of defined boundaries, and organized under a government sanctioned and limited by a written constitution and established by the consent of the governed. It is the union of such states, under a common constitution, which forms the distinct and greater political unit, which that Constitution designates as the United States, and makes the people and states which compose it one people and one country."

And as said by the same court, in Ableman vs. Booth, 62 U. S. 523, that we have in this country—

"A complex character of government, and the existence of two distinct and separate sovereignties, within the same territorial space, each of them restricted in its power and each within its sphere of action prescribed by the Constitution of the United States, independent of each other."

On September 9, 1850, California was admitted into the "Union upon an equal footing with the original thirteen states in all respects whatever," and any power or right reserved to any of the original thirteen states is reserved to California. (114 U. S. 328.)

Now, then, in order to comprehend the full scope and extent of the powers of each government, we must turn to their organic law, which, when in the light furnished in the Declaration of Independence, in the Articles of Confederation, and in the Federal Constitution, we find as said by the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of Ohio Life Insurance Co. vs. DeBolt, 16 Howard, 428—

"That it will be admitted by all hands, that, with the exception of the powers surrendered by the Constitution of the United States, the people of the several states are absolutely and unconditionally sovereign within their own respective territories."

In the case of Collector vs. Day, 78 (Wal) U. S. 124, it is said:

"It is a familiar rule of construction of the Constitution of the Union that the sovereign powers vested in the state government by their respective constitutions, remained unaltered and unimpaired, except so far as they were granted to the Government of the United States. That the intention of the framers of the Constitution in this respect might not be misunderstood, this rule of interpretation is expressly declared in the tenth article of the amendments, namely: 'The powers not delegated to the United States are reserved to the States respectively or to the people.' The Government of the United States, therefore, can claim no powers which are not granted to it by the Constitution, and the powers actually granted must be such as are expressly given, or given by necessary implication."

"The general government, and the states, although both exist within the same territorial limits, are separate and distinct sovereignties, acting separately and independently of each other within their respective spheres. The former in its appropriate sphere is supreme, but the states within the limits of their powers are granted, or, in the language of the tenth amendment, 'reserved,' are as independent of the general government as that government within its sphere is independent of the states."

We now turn to the all important question of WHAT POWERS WERE RESERVED TO THE STATES in the second Article of Confederation while it remained in force, and which were reserved to the states in the tenth amendment to the Federal Constitution.

It seems now beyond question that the "police power" is one of the powers expressly reserved in the Articles of Confederation and in the tenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of United States vs. DeWitt, 76 U. S. page 43, held squarely that by the reservation to the states contained in the Federal Constitution, Congress has no power to make or enforce any rule or law which is in its nature a POLICE REGULATION, the operation of which is confined to one state, as the police power when confined to a state, BELONGS SOLELY TO THE STATE.

Again, in the case of Patterson vs. Kentucky, reported in the 97 U. S. Reporter, 503, affirming the doctrine laid down in the case just cited, the court said:

"In the American constitutional system," says Mr. Cooley, "the power to establish ordinary regulations of police has been left with the individual states, and can not be assumed by the National Government." Cooley Const. Lim. 574.

It is confessedly difficult to mark the precise boundaries of that power, or to indicate, by any general rule, the exact limitations which the states must observe in its exercise; the existence of such a power in the states has been uniformly recognized in this court. (Citing many cases.) It embraced what Mr. Chief Justice Marshall in Gibbons vs. Ogden, calls that "immense mass of legislation" which can be most advantageously exercised by the states, and over which our national authorities cannot assume supervision or control, and as said by the United States Supreme Court in Prigg vs. Pennsylvania, 16 Peters, 625:

"To guard, however, against any possible misconception of our views, it is proper to state that we are by no means to be understood in any manner whatsoever to doubt or to interfere with the police power belonging to the states in virtue of their sovereignty, that police power extends over all subjects within the territorial limits of the states, and has never been conceded to the United States."

This question arose again in the case of Groves vs. Slaughter, 15 Peters, 499, and upon it the Supreme Court of the United States again said:

"The genius and character of the whole government seem to be that its action is to be applied to all the external concerns of the nation, and to those internal affairs which affect the states generally, but not to those which are completely within a particular state."

The United States Supreme Court, in the case of the United States vs. Knight, 156 U. S. 13, said:

"It is vital that the independence of the commercial power and of the police power and the delimitation between them, however sometimes perplexing, should always be recognized and observed. For while the one furnishes the strongest bond of union, the other is essential to the preservation of the autonomy of the states as required by our dual form of government. Acknowledged evils, however grave and urgent they may appear to be, had better be borne than the risk be run in the effort to suppress them of more serious consequence by resort to expedients of even doubtful constitutionality. * * * * * The regulation of commerce applies to the subjects of commerce, and not to matters of internal police."

In the Dartmouth College case, 4 Wheaton 628, Chief Justice Marshall said:

"The framers of the Constitution did not intend to restrain the states in the regulation of their civil institutions, adopted for their internal government, and the instrument they have given us is not to be so construed."

Having satisfied ourselves that the "police power" was never surrendered by the states to the Federal Government, we now turn to the question as to whether or not the education of the youth of our land falls within the police power, and if so, had the Legislature of California the right to enact section 1662, Political Code, as follows?:

"1662. Every school, unless otherwise provided by law, must be open for the admission of all children between six and twenty-one years of age residing in the district, and the board of school trustees, or city board of education, have power to admit adults and children not residing in the district, whenever good reasons exist therefor. Trustees shall have the power to exclude children of filthy or vicious habits, or children suffering from contagious or infectious diseases, and also to establish separate schools for Indian children and for children of Mongolian or Chinese descent. When such separate schools are established, Indian, Chinese or Mongolian children must not be admitted into any other school; provided, that in cities and towns in which the kindergarten has been adopted or may hereafter be adopted as part of the public primary schools, children may be admitted to such kindergarten classes at the age of four years; and provided further, that in cities or school districts in which separate classes have been or may hereafter be established, for the instruction of the deaf, children may be admitted to such classes at the age of three years."

The right of the Legislature to pass the law contained in Section 1662, Political Code, which provides for the separation of children of different blood, is settled by decisions upon that point rendered by every court having occasion to pass upon this question. When this question first arose it came before the Supreme Court of Massachusetts in 1849, in the case of Roberts vs. The City of Boston, reported in 5 Cushing Reports, page 198, the court there said:

"The great principle advanced by the learned and eloquent advocate of the plaintiff," said the Chief Justice, "is that by the constitution and laws of Massachusetts all persons, without distinction of age or sex, birth or color, origin or condition, are equal before the law. This, as a broad general principle, such as ought to appear in a declaration of rights, is perfectly sound. It is not only expressed in terms, but pervades and animates the whole spirit of our constitution of free government. But when this great principle comes to be applied to the actual and various conditions of persons in society it will not warrant the assertion that men and women are legally clothed with the same civil and political powers, and that children and adults are legally to have the same functions and be subject to the same treatment; but only that the rights of all, as they are settled and regulated by law, are equally entitled to the paternal consideration and protection of the law for their maintenance and security. What those rights are to which individuals, in the infinite variety of circumstances by which they are surrounded in society, are entitled, must depend on laws adapted to their respective relations and conditions. Conceding, therefore, in the fullest manner, that colored persons, the descendants of Africans, are entitled by law, in this commonwealth, to equal rights, constitutional and political, civil and social, the question then arises whether the regulation in question, which provides separate schools for colored children, is a violation of any of these rights. * * * The power of general superintendence vests a plenary authority in the committee to arrange, classify and distribute pupils in such a manner as they think best adapted to their general proficiency and welfare. If it is thought expedient to provide for very young children, it may be that such schools may be kept exclusively by female teachers, quite adequate to their instruction, and yet whose services may be obtained at a cost much lower than that of more highly-qualified male instructors. So if they should judge it expedient to have a grade of schools for children from seven to ten, and another for those from ten to fourteen, it would seem to be within their authority to establish such schools. So to separate male and female pupils into different schools. It has been found necessary—that is to say, highly expedient—at times to establish special schools for poor and neglected children, who have passed the age of seven, and have become too old to attend the primary school, and yet have not acquired the rudiments of learning to enable them to enter the ordinary schools. If a class of youth of one or both sexes is found in that condition, it seems to be within the power of the superintending committee to provide for the organization of such special schools. * * * The committee, apparently upon great deliberation, have come to the conclusion that the good of both classes of schools will be best promoted by maintaining the separate primary schools for colored and for white children, and we can perceive no ground to doubt that this is the honest result of their experience and judgment. It is urged that this maintenance of separate schools tends to deepen and perpetuate the odious distinctions of caste, founded in a deep-rooted prejudice in public opinion. This prejudice, if it exists, is not created by law, and probably cannot be changed by law. Whether this distinction and prejudice, existing in the opinion and feelings of the community, would not be as effectually fostered by compelling colored and white children to associate together in the same schools may well be doubted. At all events, it is a fair and proper question for the committee to consider and decide upon, having in view the best interests of both classes of children placed under their superintendence, and we cannot say that their decision upon it is not founded upon just grounds of reason and experience and is the result of a discriminating and honest judgment."

That there may be good and sufficient reasons for the segregation of children of different blood from those of the American children, is well answered by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in the case of Westchester Railroad Company vs. Miles, in the 93d American Decision, 747, wherein the court said:

"The danger to the peace endangered by the feeling of aversion between individuals of the different races cannot be denied. If a negro takes his seat beside a white man or his wife or daughter, the law cannot repress the anger or conquer the feeling of aversion which some will feel. However unwise it may be to indulge the feeling, human infirmity is not always proof against it. It is much wiser to avert the consequence of this repulsion of race by separation than to punish afterwards the breach of the peace it may have caused. * * * The question is one of difference, not of superiority, or inferiority. Why the Creator made one black and the other white, we know not; but the fact is apparent, and the races distinct, each producing its own kind, and following the peculiar law of its constitution. Conceding equality, with natures as perfect and rights as sacred, yet God has made them dissimilar, with those natural instincts and feelings which He always imparts to His creatures when He intends that they shall not overstep the natural boundaries he has assigned to them. The natural law which forbids their intermarriage, and that social amalgamation which leads to a corruption of the races, is as clearly divine as that which imparted to them different natures. The tendency of intimate social intermixture is to amalgamation, contrary to the law of races. The separation of white and black races upon the surface of the globe is a fact equally apparent. Why this is so, it is not necessary to speculate; but the fact of a distribution of men by race and color is as visible in the providential arrangement of the earth as that of heat and cold. The natural separation of the races is therefore an undeniable fact, and all social organizations which lead to their amalgamation are antagonistic to the law of nature. From sound organization it is but a step to illicit intercourse, and but another to intermarriage. But to assert separateness is not to declare inferiority in either, it is not to declare one a slave and the other a freeman—that would be to draw the illogical sequence of inferiority from difference only. It is simply to say that following the order of Divine Providence, human authority ought not to compel these widely separated races to intermingle. The right of such to be free from social contact is as clear as to be free from intermarriage. The former may be less repulsive as a condition, but not less entitled to protection as a right.

"When, therefore, we declare a right to maintain separate relations, so far as is reasonably practicable, but in a spirit of kindness and charity, and with due regard to equality of rights, it is not antagonistic, per se, to the rights of any kind, but simply to suffer men to follow the law of races established by the Creator himself, and not to compel them to intermingle contrary to their instincts."

In the case of United States vs. Bantin, reported in 10 Fed. Rep. 730, a case of criminal prosecution against a school teacher for depriving the complaining witness of civil rights brought in the United States District Court for Southern District of Ohio in February, 1882, the facts of which were as stated in the opinion being as follows:

"It is charged that one John Bantin deprived James H. Vines and other children of Jacob H. Vines of a right secured by the constitution and law of the United States, to wit: the right to attend the same public school situated in a certain district in Washington township, Clermont County, Ohio; said children being colored children of African descent, under cover of a statute of Ohio providing that the school boards of two or more adjoining districts may unite in establishing a separate school for colored children, and under color of regulation excluding colored children. The testimony showed that there was no school for colored children in the sub-district in which the prosecuting witness resided; the school for white children was situated about three miles from his house. The township board of education had established a separate school for the colored children of the township, under the provisions of Section 4008 of the Revised Statutes of Ohio which is as follows:

"When, in the judgment of the board, it will be for the advantage of the district so to do, it may create separate schools for colored children. The boards of two or more adjoining districts may unite in a separate school for colored children, each board to bear its proportionate share of the expense of such school, which shall be under the control of the board of education of the district in which the school is situated."

The court charged the jury as follows: "The negro, under the national constitution and laws, is invested with precisely the same rights that are possessed by the white race, and subject to the same duties, obligations and liabilities. The school which defendant was teaching was a public school, established and maintained with public money, to which every child, whether white or black, of that school district, had the right to go for instruction, unless some other school of substantially equal merit had been provided for them. It is, however, insisted that such provision had been made for the prosecuting witness. That there was such a school in that district for the education of the colored children is contended. The Supreme Court of the State has held that such a classification of the two races is within the constitutional discretion of the legislature, and that the separate education of the whites and blacks in accordance with the terms of the law is no wrong to either. "I concur and adopt this decision as a correct exposition of the constitution."

The case occurred to be the learned Judge and referred to in the opinion is that of The State ex rel. Gaines vs. McCann et al., 21 Ohio, 210, and in which the Ohio statute enacted was because the court and was assailed as being in conflict with the fourteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution, in so denying the colored parents the "equal protection of the laws" and to which contention the court said:

"For, conceding that the fourteenth amendment not only provides equal securities for all, but guarantees equality of rights to the citizens of a state, as one of the privileges of citizens of the United States, it remains to be seen whether this privilege has been abridged in the case before us. The law in question surely does not attempt to deprive colored persons of any rights. On the contrary it recognizes their right, under the Constitution of the State, to equal common school advantages, and agrees to them their equal proportion of the school fund. It only regulates the mode and manner in which this right shall be enjoyed by all classes of persons. The regulation of this right arises from the necessity of the case.

"* * * The question, therefore, under consideration is the same that has, as we have seen, been heretofore determined in this State, that a classification of the youth of the State for school purposes, upon any basis which does not exclude either class from equal school advantages, is no infringement of the equal rights of her citizens secured by the constitution of the state."

In the case of Bertinomy vs. The Board of Directors of City Schools et al., decided by the United States Circuit Court in New Orleans in November, 1878, and reported in Vol. 3, Woods' Reports, 177, and which was an action in equity to obtain a decree restraining the board of directors of the city schools in New Orleans from enforcing a resolution adopted by that board requiring the separation of children of Africans from those of the whites in the attendance on the public schools and providing a separate school for the children of African descent and for a mandatory injunction compelling the admission of the colored children into the same schools with the children of white parents, the court said:

"The grievance, and the sole grievance set out in the bill is that complainant's children, being of African descent, are not allowed to attend the same public schools as those in which children of white parents are educated.

"Is this a deprivation of a right granted by the Constitution of the United States? The complainant says that the action of the defendants deprives him and his children of the equal protection of the laws; and therefore impairs a right granted to him and them by the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and the act of Congress passed to secure the same.

"Is there any denial of equal rights in the resolution of the board of directors of the city schools, or in the action of the subordinate officers of the schools, as set out in the bill? Both races are treated precisely alike. White children and colored children are compelled to attend different schools. That is all. The state, while conceding equal privileges and advantages to both races, has the right to manage its schools in the manner which in its judgment, will best promote the interest of all.

"The state may be of opinion that it is better to educate the sexes separately and therefore establishes schools in which the children of different sexes are educated apart. By such a policy can it be said that the equal rights of either sex are invaded? Equality of right does not involve the necessity of educating children of both sexes, or children without regard to their attainments or age in the same school. Any classification which preserves substantially equal school advantages does not impair any rights, and is not prohibited by the Constitution of the United States. Equality of rights does not necessarily imply identity of rights.

"These views have been held by the Supreme Court of Ohio, in respect to a law under which colored children were not admitted as a matter of right into the school for white children."

When in May, 1896, the laws of Louisiana which provided that negroes should ride in separate coaches on cars from those occupied by white persons and an application was made to the State Supreme Court for a writ prohibiting the trial court from punishing petitioner, upon a charge of refusing by violence to comply with the law of Louisiana requiring colored persons to ride in cars provided for them and which are other than those in which white persons were riding in, the state court denied the relief sought and the matter came before the United States Supreme Court on writ of error, 16 U. S. Rep. 1140, and in affirming the action of the court below, said in reference to the fourteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution:

"The object of the amendment was undoubtedly to enforce the absolute equality of the two races before the law, but, in the nature of things, it could not have been intended to abolish distinctions based upon color, or to enforce social, as distinguished from political, equality, or a commingling of the two races upon terms unsatisfactory to either. Laws permitting, and even requiring, their separation, in places where they are liable to be brought into conflict, do not necessarily imply the inferiority of either race to the other, and have been generally if not universally, recognized as within the competency of the state legislatures in the exercise of their police power. The most common instance of this is connected with the establishment of separate schools for white and colored children, which have been held to be a valid exercise of the legislative power even by courts of states where the political rights of the colored race have been longest and most earnestly enforced.

"One of the earliest of these cases is that of Roberts vs. City of Boston, 5 Cush. 198, in which the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts held that the general school committee of Boston had power to make provision for the instruction of colored children in separate schools established exclusively for them, and to prohibit their attendance upon the other schools. 'The great principle,' said Chief Justice Shaw, 'advanced by the learned and eloquent advocate for the plaintiff (Mr. Charles Sumner), is that, by the constitution and laws of Massachusetts, all persons, without distinction of age or sex, birth or color, origin or condition, are equal before the law.

"But, when this great principle comes to be applied to the actual and various conditions of persons in society, it will not warrant the assertion that men and women are legally clothed with the same civil and political powers, and that children and adults are legally to have the same functions and be subject to the same treatment; but only that the rights of all, as they are settled and regulated by law, are equally entitled to the paternal consideration and protection of the law for their maintenance and security.

"It was held that the powers of the committee extended to the establishment of separate schools for children of different ages, sexes and colors, and that they might also establish special schools for poor and neglected children, who have become too old to attend the primary school, and yet have not acquired the rudiments of learning, to enable them to enter the ordinary schools. Similar laws have been enacted by Congress under its general power of legislation over the District of Columbia (sections 281-283, 310-319, Rev. St. D. C.) as well as by the legislatures of many of the states, and have been generally, if not uniformly, sustained by the courts.

"State vs. McCann, 21 Ohio St. 210; Lohr vs. Brumwell (Mo. Sup.), 15 S. W. 765; Ward vs. Flood, 48 Cal. 36; Bertoni vs. Directors of City Schools, 3 Woods, 117, Fed. Cas. No. 1, 361; People vs. Gallagher, 93 N. Y. 438; Coom vs. Carter, 48 Ind. 337; Danson vs. Lee, 83 Ky. 49.

"Laws forbidding the intermarriage of the two races may be said in a technical sense to interfere with the freedom of contract, and yet have been universally recognized as within the police power of the state": State vs. Gobson, 36 Ind. 389.

The same question again arose in the case of People ex rel. Cisco vs. The School Board of Borough of Queens, in New York City, and reported in 161 N. Y., page 598, decided in February, 1900, and it was again held that:

"If the Legislature determined that it was wise for one class of pupils to be educated by themselves, there is nothing in the Constitution to deprive it of the right to so provide. It was the facilities for and the advantages of an education that it was required to furnish to all the children, and not that it should provide for them a particular class of associates, while such education was being obtained."

The order of the court below denying relief was affirmed.

Referring to the case just cited, the following article from the pen of C. C. Carlton, taken from the San Francisco "Call" of date January 27, 1907, may be of interest:

"In connection with the President's interference with San Francisco's School Board, residents of New York City and State, and particularly of Long Island, recall the attitude of Roosevelt when he was Governor of New York and of the Republican state organization, which compelled the public schools to receive negro children as well as whites. The exclusion of negro pupils from the public schools set aside for white children had long been a source of irritation to the negroes, especially in Queens County, where the proportion of negroes to the population was larger than in most counties.

"Under the authority of the old law the local school boards had established separate schools for white children and refused to admit negroes. At the time that Roosevelt became Governor the matter had been in the courts for three years. A colored woman named Cisco, in Jamaica, Queens County, Long Island, supported by an association of negroes, contested the right of the school board to exclude her child from the white school. In order to secure the rights which the negroes demanded, State Senator Elsberg, with the encouragement of Governor Roosevelt, introduced in the Legislature a bill repealing the act which permitted school trustees to set aside separate schools for white and black pupils. The bill was bitterly contested by residents of Queens County, who objected to mixed schools.

"Governor Roosevelt, however, said at that time: 'My own child occupied a seat next to a negro pupil in the public school in Oyster Bay, and I saw nothing objectionable in it.' The bill introduced by Senator Elsberg became a law and was signed by Governor Roosevelt on March 29, 1900, and it is now enforced in this state."

In 1874 this same question came before the Supreme Court of California (Ward vs. Hood, 48 Cal. 417), and in which case applicant was a colored child of a colored citizen of the United States and the court denied the writ of mandate, and quoted from the Massachusetts case at length and added:

"In the circumstances that the races are separated in the public schools there is certainly to be found no violation of the constitutional rights of the one race more than the other, and we see none of either, for each, though separated from the other, is to be educated upon equal terms with that other, and both at the common public expense."

Again in December, 1902, this question was presented in San Francisco when the child of a Chinese parent named Wong Him sought admission into the Clement Grammar School of that city, and upon being refused sought an injunction in the Federal Court restraining the principal of the school from denying him admission into the school. Judge DeHaven, before whom the proceedings were pending, in denying the order asked for, said:

"The bill alleges that all children, irrespective of age and nationality, are permitted to attend said grammar school, with the exception of children of Chinese descent, and that the defendant excludes the complainant from the right to attend this school upon the sole ground that he is of Chinese descent, and claim the right to do so under the provisions of Section 1662 of the Political Code of the State of California, which gives to the trustees of school districts the power to establish separate schools for children of Mongolian or Chinese descent, and further provides that 'when such separate schools are established, Chinese or Mongolian children must not be admitted into any other schools.'

"It is further alleged that this statute is in conflict with the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, in that it deprives the complainant of the equal protection of the laws of California relative to his right to admission as a pupil into the public schools of the State. As I construe the allegations of the bill, there has been established in the City and County of San Francisco a separate school exclusively for Chinese children and children of Chinese descent, which the complainant can attend. It is not alleged that such school does not afford the same advantages in the matter of acquiring an education as is given to children of schools to which Chinese are not admitted. The sole ground of complaint is that the maintenance of separate schools for children of Chinese descent is a discrimination 'is arbitrary,' and the result of hatred for the Chinese race.

"The validity of the statute referred to does not depend upon the motive which may in fact have actuated the members of the Legislature in voting for its enactment. Upon such an inquiry the courts have no right to enter. If the law does not conflict with some constitutional limitation of the powers of the State Legislature it can not be declared invalid. Concerning the authority of the State over matters pertaining to public schools within its limits, and the validity of legislation of the character of that under consideration, it is well settled that the State has the right to provide separate schools for the children of different races, and such action is not forbidden by the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution, provided the schools so established make no discrimination in the educational facilities which they afford. When the schools are conducted under the same general rules, and the course of study is the same in one school as in the other, it cannot be said that pupils in either are deprived of the equal protection of the law in the matter of receiving an education": 119 Fed. Rep. 381.

In the late case of Cummings vs. The Board of Education, decided in October, 1899, and reported in 175 U. S. 545, the Supreme Court of the United States, speaking through Mr. Justice Harlan, said:

"We may add that while all admit that the benefits and burdens of public taxation must be shared by citizens without discrimination against any class on account of their race, the education of the people in schools maintained by state taxation is a matter belonging to the respective states, and any interference on the part of the Federal authority with the management of such schools cannot be justified except in the case of a clear and unmistakable disregard of the rights secured by the supreme law of the land."

The action of the School Board of the State of Georgia requiring the education of children of colored parents in different schools from those provided for the children of white parents was sustained.

It must be assumed, therefore, that it is now settled that the "police power" of the states were never surrendered by the states to the Federal Government; that the education of the youth of our land falls within the "police power" reserved to the states; that in the exercise of that "police power" each state has a constitutional right to classify the children of all ages and sexes, color, and race, and may provide separate schools for the children born of white parents and for children born of colored, Mongolian, or Japanese parents; we, therefore, turn to the question of whether or not Section 1662 of the Political Code, if in conflict with any treaty of any country, will fall, and the treaty prevail?

This question, we think, has been adjudicated more than once by the highest court in our land.

The three cases known as the "License Cases," and which arose in the States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire, and were severally decided by the United States Supreme Court in one case, and resulted from the sale of liquors in each state in violation of the laws of such state, and where it was contended that the treaty obligations with foreign countries permitted the importation of the liquors mentioned in the laws of those states, and that the laws of those states imposing certain conditions on the sale of those liquors were in violation of certain treaty obligations, Mr. Justice Daniels used the following language:

"This provision of the Constitution, it is feared, is sometimes expounded without these qualifications, which the character of the parties to this instrument, and its adaption to the purposes for which it was created, necessarily imply. Every power delegated to the Federal Government must be expounded in coincidence with a perfect right in the states to all that they have not delegated; in coincidence, too, with the possession of every power and right necessary for their existence and preservation; for it is impossible to believe that these were ever, either in intention or in fact, ceded to the General Government. Laws of the United States in order to be binding must be within the legitimate powers vested by the Constitution. Treaties in order to be valid must be made within the scope of the same power, for there can be no authority of the United States, save what is derived immediately or unimmediately and regularly, and legitimately from the Constitution. A treaty no more than an ordinary statute can arbitrarily cede away one right of a state or of any citizen of a state,": 5 Howard, 613.

Again in the case of People ex rel. Attorney-General vs. Naglee, decided in December, 1850, reported in 1 Cal. 233, which was an action wherein the complaint alleged that defendant had acted as a collector of license fees from foreign miners, and had exacted sums of money from different individuals who were foreigners, for the privilege of working gold mines in this State, and in which action was drawn into question the treaty between the United States and Mexico, and the court in a very learned and able opinion held that:

"First, as to treaties generally. Perhaps the most satisfactory mode of testing the validity of the law, under this point, will be to take the treaty with that power to whose subject as extensive privileges are granted by our country as to those of any other nation. We will, therefore, consider the case as if it involved our treaty relations with Great Britain, and under the supposition that a subject of the Queen of Great Britain was the person from whom the sum of twenty dollars had been exacted.

"By the fourteenth article of the treaty of 1794 (known as Jay's Treaty), which was substantially renewed by Article I of the treaty of 1815, the subjects of the King of Great Britain, coming from his Majesty's territories in Europe, had granted to them liberty freely and securely, and without hindrance of molestation, to come with their ships and cargoes, to the lands, countries, cities, ports, places, and rivers within our territories, and enter the same, to resort there, to remain and reside there, without limitation of time; and reciprocal liberty was granted to the people of the United States in His Majesty's European territories; * * * but subject always, as respects this article, to the laws and statutes of the two countries, respectively. By his treaty our inhabitants whilst in the British dominions were to abide by the laws of Great Britain; and the subjects and inhabitants of that country, when in our territories, were to abide by the laws of the United States and by the laws of the respective states where they might be. The only question, then, under this treaty is whether the act of the legislature falls within the scope of the powers of a sovereign nation, and at the same time, is not included in the category of powers granted by the states to the general government; for, if it falls within the former, and is excluded from the latter, then it is one of the laws which the treaty itself makes obligatory upon British subjects. But we have seen that the power of taxation, and the power of prescribing the conditions upon which aliens shall be permitted to reside in a state, are attributes of a sovereign nation, which have not, except in certain specific cases, of which the present is not one, been given up to the Federal Government. Our statute, then, is one of the laws or statutes to which the treaty by its own terms provides that the subjects of Great Britain shall be subject. * * * The act, then, is not repugnant to that treaty. But even if the provisions of the statute did clash with the stipulations of that or of any other treaty, the conclusion is not deducible that the treaty must therefore stand and the state law give way. The question in such case would not be solely what is provided for by the treaty, but whether the state retained the power to enact the contested law or had given up that power to the General Government.

"If the state retains the power, then the President and Senate cannot take it away by a treaty. A treaty is supreme only when it is made in pursuance of that authority which has been conferred upon the treaty-making department, and in relation to those subjects the jurisdiction over which has been exclusively intrusted to Congress. When it transcends these limits, like an act of Congress which transcends the constitutional authority of that body, it can not supersede a state law which enforces or exercises any power of the state not granted away by the Constitution."

In further support of the constitutional right of our state to enforce its laws if the same conflict with a treaty where any of the provisions of the latter are beyond the legitimate province of the treaty-making power to adjust, we turn to the question of whether or not treaties "are the law of the land" when stated as broadly as is contained in the message of the President hereinbefore quoted from.

In 1881, Mr. Blaine, when Secretary of State, wrote the Chinese Minister at Washington that a treaty—

"Must be made in conformity with the Constitution and where a provision in either a treaty or a law is found to contravene the principles of the Constitution, such provision must give way to the superior force of the Constitution which is the organic law of the Republic, binding alike on the government and the nation": See Foreign Relations U. S. 1881, page 337.

In 1886, Mr. Bayard, then Secretary of State, said:

"A treaty is, it is true, the supreme law of the land, but it is nevertheless only a law imposed by the Federal Government, and subject to all the limitations imposed by the same authority. While internationally binding the United States to the other contracting party, it may be municipally inoperative because it deals with matters in the states as to which the Federal Government has no power to deal": See Moore's Digest, Int. Law, Sec. 728.

With reference to the Sixth Article of the Federal Constitution, George Tishner Curtis, author of Constitutional History of the United States (second page, 544, cited in Butler's Treaty-Making Power of the United States, Section 2647) says:

"It is a remarkable circumstance that this provision was originally proposed by a very earnest advocate of the rights of the states—Luther Martin. His design, however, was to supply a substitute for a power over state legislation, which had been embraced in the Virginia plan, and which was to be exercised through a negative by the national legislature upon all laws of the states contravening, in their opinion, the Articles of Union or the treaties subsisting under the authority of the Union. The purpose of the substitute was to change a legislative into a judicial power by transferring from the national legislature to the judiciary the right of determining whether a state law supposed to be in conflict with the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the Union should be improper or void. By extending the obligation to regard the requirements of the national Constitution and laws to the judges of the state tribunals, their supremacy in all the judicatures of the country was secured."

In the case of Whitney vs. Robertson, decided in 1887, reported in the 124 U. S. Reporter, page 190, wherein was drawn into question the treaty of February 8, 1867, between the United States and the Dominican Republic (San Domingo Island), it was contended, that, inasmuch as the treaty between the United States and the King of the Hawaiian Islands, made January 30, 1875, provides for the free importation into the United States of sugar and certain other articles, the product of those islands, that as the San Domingo Treaty which provides that no higher duty shall be charged for the importation into the United States "than are or shall be payable on the like articles, the growth, produce or manufacture of any other foreign country or its fishery" the United States should admit free of duty, sugar made in the San Domingo Islands; in other words, that under the "most favored nation" clause or words to the same effect, sugar should come into the United States, from San Domingo Islands, free of duty, but the Supreme Court in deciding the case said:

"But, independently of considerations of this nature, there is another and complete answer to the pretensions of plaintiff. The Act of Congress under which the duties were collected authorized their exaction. It is of general application, making no exception in favor of goods of any country. It was passed after the treaty with the Dominican Republic, and, if there be any conflict between the stipulations of the treaty and the requirements of the law, the latter must control. * * * Congress may modify such provisions or supersede them altogether. By the Constitution a treaty is placed on the same footing, and made of like obligation with an act of legislation. Both are declared by that instrument to be the supreme law of the land, and no superior efficacy is given to either over the other."

It ought, therefore, to be apparent that if Congress can, by a later act, supersede a treaty altogether, yet at the same time can not pass any act, interfering with the exercise by a state of its police power, that treaties are not always, and in all cases, the "law of the land."

Having satisfied ourselves that the states reserve to themselves the "police power," and that the education of the youth is within that "police power," that the states within the proper exercise of that power may classify the scholars, determine the age during which they may attend, and provide separate schools for white children, and children of Chinese and Mongolian parents, provided each school affords equal opportunity of education for the children who attend them, and so do without violating any provisions of the Federal Constitution the question then remaining is, do the provisions of the said Section 1662 of the Political Code which provides for such separate schools, violate any of the provisions of the treaty between the United States and Japan, negotiated and concluded on March 21, 1895, the first and second articles of which are as follows:

"The citizens or subjects of each of the two high contracting parties shall have full liberty to enter, travel, or reside in any part of the territories of the other contracting party, and shall enjoy full and perfect protection for their persons and property.

"They shall have free access to the courts of justice in pursuit and defense of their rights; they shall be at liberty equally with native citizens or subjects to choose and employ lawyers, advocates, and representatives to pursue and defend their rights before such courts and in all other matters connected with the administration of justice they shall enjoy all the rights and privileges enjoyed by native citizens or subjects.

"In whatever relates to rights of residence and travel, to the possession of goods and effects of any kinds, to the succession to personal estate, by will or otherwise, and the disposal of property of any sort and in any manner whatsoever which they may lawfully acquire, the citizens or subjects of each contracting party shall enjoy in the territories of the other the same privileges, liberties, and rights, and shall be subject to no higher imposts or charges in these respects than native citizens or subjects, or citizens and subjects of the most favored nation. The citizens or subjects of each of the contracting parties shall enjoy in the territories of the other entire liberty of the conscience, and, subject to the laws, ordinances, and regulations, shall enjoy the right of private or public exercise of their worship, and also the right of burying their respective countrymen, according to their religious customs, in such suitable and convenient places as may be established and maintained for that purpose.

"They shall not be compelled, under any pretext whatsoever, to pay any charges or taxes other or higher than those that are, or may be paid by native citizens or subjects, or citizens or subjects of the most favored nation.

"The citizens or subjects of either of the contracting parties residing in the territories of the other shall be exempt from all compulsory military service whatsoever, whether in the army, navy, national guard, or militia: from all contributions imposed in lieu of personal service; and from all forced loans or military exactions or contributions.

"Art. 11. There shall be reciprocal freedom of commerce and navigation between the territories of the two high contracting parties.

"The citizens or subjects of each of the high contracting parties may trade in any part of the territories of the other by wholesale or retail, in all kinds of produce, manufactures, and merchandise of lawful commerce, either in person or by agents, singly or in partnership with foreign or native citizens or subjects, and they may there own or hire and occupy houses, manufactories, warehouses, shops, and premises which may be necessary for them, and lease land for residential and commercial purposes, conforming themselves to the laws, police and customs regulations of the country like native citizens or subjects.

"They shall have liberty freely to come with their ships and cargoes to all places, ports, and rivers in the territories of the other, which are or may be opened to foreign commerce, and shall enjoy, respectively, the same treatment in matters of commerce and navigation as native citizens or subjects, or citizens or subjects of the most favored nation, without having to pay taxes, imposts, duties of whatever nature or under whatever denomination levied in the name or for the profit of the government, public functionaries, private individuals, corporations, or establishments of any kind other or greater than those paid by native citizens or subjects, or citizens or subjects of the most favored nation.

"It is, however, understood that the stipulations contained in this and the preceding articles do not in any way affect the laws, ordinances and regulations with regard to trade, the immigration of laborers, police, and public security which are in force or which may hereafter be enacted in either of the two countries."

Now, when, in the "Japanese Treaty," it was expressly provided, that the subjects "conforming themselves to the laws, police, and customs regulations of the country like native citizens or subjects," it must be assumed that the representatives of both high contracting parties KNEW THE SETTLED LAWS OF EACH COUNTRY. That so far as the United States was concerned, it is provided in Section 1, Subdivision 17 of Article I of the Federal Constitution that Congress shall have power "To exercise exclusive legislation, in all cases whatsoever, over such district (not exceeding ten miles square) as may, by cessions of particular states, and the acceptance of Congress, become the seat of government of the United States; and to exercise like authority over all places purchased by the consent of the legislature of the state in which the same shall be, for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock yards, and other naval public buildings," and that, by virtue of the above article, the "laws, police and customs regulations" of the Federal Government WERE LIMITED TO THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA and over such other places as might be ceded BY THE SEVERAL STATES TO THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT, as provided for in that article; for such has been the uniform decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, many of which are cited in Law vs. Port Poonamath, R. R. 114 U. S. 528, and the places thus ceded to the Federal Government for uses of the Federal Government, not being open to settlement or occupation by any one citizen or alien, it must be assumed that the covenants in the treaty to the effect that the citizens or subjects of each country "conforming themselves to the laws, police, and customs regulations of the country, like native citizens or subjects," shall have certain rights, were intended by the high contracting parties to be the "laws, police, and customs regulations," prescribed by the several states under their several constitutions, for no one would for a moment contend that it was then contemplated that all or any of the Japanese who would migrate to this country would settle in the District of Columbia or in such other places over which jurisdiction might be ceded to the Federal Government. Such places were not then open to settlement by any one. Therefore, it would seem clear, that if "Japanese" are included within the race known as the "Mongolian," it does not come with good grace for any subject of Japan to now seek to avoid the covenants of that treaty or claim the right to have his children enter the same schools with the children of white parents, under the "most favored nation" clause; but if the "most favored nation" clause could be invoked, the Japanese could claim no greater rights than are guaranteed to American citizens and the children of American citizens are subject to all the "laws, police, and customs regulations" of the State of California. Such has been the uniform decision of the courts of this country.

The question as to whether "Japanese" are included within the race known as the "Mongolian" is a question for legislative expression and definition, and in the absence of such expression and definition the determination is one to be arrived at in the judicial proceedings in which the question arises, for as said by the United States Supreme Court in the case of Plessy vs. Ferguson, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1138-1144:

"It is true that the question of the proportion of colored blood necessary to constitute a colored person, as distinguished from a white person, is one upon which there is a difference of opinion in the different states; some holding that any visible admixture of black blood stamps the person as belonging to the colored race. State vs. Chaves, 5 Jones N. C. 71. Others that it depends upon the proportion of blood. Straus vs. State of Ohio, 4 Ohio, 54; Monroe vs. Collins, 17 Ohio St. 665, and still others that the preponderance of white blood must only be in the proportion of three-fourths. People vs. Hunt, 14 Mich. 406; Jones vs. Conn. 80 Va. 544. But these are questions to be determined under the STATE LAWS, and are not properly put in issue in this case."

In conclusion it is respectfully submitted:

1. That we have in this country a dual form of government—a Federal and State Government.
2. That within the sphere of their respective powers each government is sovereign or supreme and independent of each other.
3. That while the President of the United States has "power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur," that treaty-making power can only be exercised within the constitutional authority granted by the states to the Federal Government.
4. That if a treaty in any of its provisions, conflict with the Constitution of a state, and said portions of the treaty so conflicting be not within the constitutional authority of the treaty-making power, the provisions of the State Constitution control.

5. That the police power of each state has never been surrendered by the states to the Federal Government.

6. That as California was admitted into the Union on an "equal footing" with the original states, any power reserved to those states is reserved to California.

7. That within the police power reserved to the states, is the authority to provide for the education of children.

8. That in the proper exercise of that power, the legislature may classify the children and provide for the separation of the children of the white race from the children of Mongolian, African, Japanese, or other race; provided, that equal opportunities for education of each class is provided for in such separate schools.

9. That by the treaty between Japan and the United States, the contracting parties covenant to conform the subjects of Japan, while here, to all the "laws, police, and customs regulations" which may be then in force or hereafter enacted in the country where the subjects may reside.

10. That the Japanese subjects here are stopped by that treaty from in any manner complaining of the police laws of California constitutionally enacted, unless it be contended that Japanese are not "Mongolian."

11. That if the Japanese race be not included in the "Mongolian" race, then the order made by the Board of Education of San Francisco providing for separate schools for the children of the Japanese race, is a valid police regulation of said city, and made within the constitutional authority of that body and which regulation said Japanese subjects are bound, under said treaty, to obey.

12. That the fact that the Federal Government has from time to time made grants of land to California, upon no other or different basis or conditions than have been contained in grants to other states, both prior and subsequent to the adoption of the treaty with Japan, does not in itself justify the assumption of an express or implied covenant for the joint Federal and state control of the public schools, since the education of the youth of our land was not among the powers delegated by the states to the Federal Government and is not therefore the subject of Federal cognizance.

CONSIDERATION OF MAJORITY REPORT.

MAJORITY COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE FOR SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION No. 6.

WHEREAS, The Federal Government is attempting to interfere with the management and control of the public schools of the State of California, by demanding the admission of Japanese children in the schools attended by white children in violation of an order of the Board of Education of the City and County of San Francisco, made in pursuance of the laws of the State of California, notwithstanding the fact that equal opportunities for education enjoyed by other children of Japanese residents in this State at public expense; and,

WHEREAS, In our judgment, such interference is without warrant of law and in violation of our constitutional rights as a sovereign State; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That we, on behalf of the whole people of the State of California, do most strenuously protest against this unwarranted interference with our constitutional rights, and we respectfully request the Governor and Attorney-General to do all things necessary to protect and save the rights of the State of California in this most important matter, and we especially commend the prompt action taken by the Governor and Attorney-General to that end.

During the reading of the majority committee substitute for Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6, the following amendment was offered by Senator Sanford:

Amend by adding:

"AND WHEREAS, The President of the United States has urged upon Congress the passage of a special Act to naturalize Japanese, a race that cannot be assimilated by the Caucasian race; and

WHEREAS, Instead of extending the elective franchise by adding a large and undesirable element to our voting population our endeavor should be to safeguard and elevate our citizenship by all reasonable restrictions; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we strenuously oppose the proposition to naturalize Japanese and extend the elective franchise to the alien-born of that race as being inimical to the welfare of the American people.

Amendment read.

SACRAMENTO, January 23, 1907.

To the California State Senate in Legislature Assembled.

GENTLEMEN: The following resolution was adopted at the annual convention of the Canners' League of California, January 10 and 11, 1907:

Resolved, That the thanks of this organization of canned goods packers of California be and they are hereby extended to the University of California for the prompt and efficient assistance it is giving the horticultural interests of this State. The present investigations under the direction of Professor Smith of the University of California and Professor Waite of the United States Department of Agriculture are of incalculable value, and it is earnestly recommended that the Legislature of the State give liberal support to the Agricultural Department of the State University.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Legislature.

Very respectfully,

L. F. GRAHAM, President.

H. C. ROWLEY, Secretary.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Senator Irish arose to a question of personal privilege in accordance with his announcement of Wednesday, January 23, 1907, and asked for and was granted unanimous consent to have the following printed in the Journal:

MR. PRESIDENT: On the 23d day of January I gave notice that I would at some future time address the Senate, not so much to speak to a question of personal privilege as to substantiate the statement of Senator Wolfe, who called upon me for that purpose.

It is very unfortunate that any member has been called upon to address this Senate upon so delicate a subject as prayer.

It is still more unfortunate that the public press have so far forgotten the teachings of our forefathers, and its correspondents have so little respect for the teachings of their mothers, the religious feelings of others and the Supreme Being, as to seize upon such a subject to display to the public their abundant store of ridicule.

And, Mr. President, last but not least, it is still more to be regretted that the Ministerial Union, Rev. Bishop Moreland, and other ministers of renown of this city and State, should so far forget the teachings of the Gentle Man of Nazareth as to try, condemn, and execute without a hearing so far as they were capable, through the public press, our good, lovable Christian Chaplain.

Why, Mr. President, even Pilate didn't do so bad as that. Senator Wolfe has very correctly stated, as I recollect, his request to our Chaplain relative to the Chaplain's duty; but (for fear of misinterpretation, I presume,) he did not tell you Mr. Darling's reply.

I will try to give it in substance and as near verbatim as I can remember.

When Senator Wolfe made the suggestion he has told you, Mr. Darling did not tell him he would eliminate the name of our Savior, as some newspapers have represented, but he did say, as I recollect:

"Senator Wolfe, I will do my duty to the best of my ability to all the members of this Senate and to my God, according to my convictions, and if I make any mistakes the Lord will understand my prayers and know it is a mistake of the head and not the heart."

Yet, Mr. President, after all said and done, it appears to me that the tremendous hue and cry from press and pulpit about our Chaplain, even had he promised to eliminate the name of the Savior from his prayers, is rather the result of sectarian bigotry than of an injured conscience.

Every person in this State is guaranteed the right to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. The Chaplain of this Senate is to all intent and purpose a State officer, and as such it is his duty to lay aside all sectarianism and clothe his petitions in such language as not to offend the religious scruples of any person in this Senate who believes in a living God.

And I submit that such is the usual behavior of every Chaplain, in every Senate and Assembly in every State of this Union, and in the Congress of the United States, who does not worship his particular creed better than he does his God.

I imagine I hear some of the good ministers saying, "Did not the Savior teach us that he came to save the world, and that through Him and Him only the salvation of man would ever thereafter be accomplished?"

My answer is, yes; but I submit that the meek and lowly Savior did not set himself up as the deity to whom a petition to the throne of Grace should be addressed. On the contrary, he took up this subject and specifically taught us to address our prayers to "Our Father who art in Heaven." He did not even teach us to ask God's blessing in his name, but closed with the words: "For Thine is the kingdom and the power and the glory forever."

What I have said, Mr. President, I wish it to be understood comes from one who believes in a Supreme Being and who does not wish for a better Christian example than the life and teachings of Jesus of Nazareth.

MINORITY REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON FEDERAL RELATIONS FOR SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION No. 7.

WHEREAS, There are now in the United States 150,000 Japanese and 12,000 Koreans, an undesirable class that are prejudicial to the laboring interests of this country; and

WHEREAS, Such immigration has been increasing in alarming proportions during the past few years (14,000 Japanese immigrants having landed on this coast in 1906), and threatens to affect the body politic of the entire Nation, both economically and ethnologically; and

WHEREAS, The President of the United States has, in a recent message to Congress, strongly urged the passage of a special Act to naturalize Japanese, a race that can not be assimilated by the Caucasian race; and

WHEREAS, Instead of extending the elective franchise by adding a large and undesirable element to our voting population, our endeavor should be to thoroughly Americanize our already large foreign population and safeguard and elevate our citizenship by all reasonable restrictions; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate and Assembly of the State of California, jointly, That we oppose further Japanese immigration and favor the extension of the immigration laws so as to include Japanese, Koreans, and all other Asiatic peoples, and we hereby urge our Senators and Representatives in Congress to use all honorable means to secure the passage of such a measure.

Be it further Resolved, That we most strenuously oppose the proposition to naturalize Japanese and extend the elective franchise to the alien-born of that race as being inimical to the welfare of the American people, and we hereby instruct our Senators and Representatives in Congress to use every honorable means within their power to combat such pernicious legislation.

Be it further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress by the Secretary of the Senate.

All Assembly bills shall be read the first time when taken up in Assembly messages, and then referred to the proper committee; provided, however, that when an Assembly bill is received, the provisions of which are identical with those of a Senate bill which has already been considered and reported by a committee of the Senate, such Assembly bill shall be substituted for the Senate bill (the latter being considered withdrawn), shall take a place upon a special file, and be considered as having received the same recommendation of the Senate committee; provided, that the fact that the bills are identical shall be entered in the Journal.

39. Bills "Passed on File," Placed at Foot of File.

When bills have been "passed on file" for the second time they must be placed at the foot of the file in their regular order, unless otherwise ordered by the Senate.

1. The Committee of the Whole Senate.
2. A Standing Committee.
3. A Select Committee.

42. Order of Questions Under Debate.

When a question is under debate no motion shall be received but the following privileged questions, which shall have precedence in the following order:

2. For a call of the Senate.
3. To lay on the table.
4. To postpone to a day certain.
5. To commit.
6. To amend.
7. To postpone indefinitely.

43. Motion Not to be Debated Until Seconded and Announced.

No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the President; and it shall be reduced to writing if desired by the President or any Senator, and read by the Secretary, before the same shall be debated.

44. Reading of a Paper, if Objected to, Determined Without Debate.

When the reading of a paper is called for (except petitions), and the same is objected to by any Senator, it shall be determined by a vote of the Senate.

45. Amendments and Substitutes - When in Order.

Substitutes may be offered at any time when a bill or resolution is open to amendment previous to engrossment; and when adopted shall take the place of the original bill or resolution, and shall be open to amendment.

46. Amendments and Substitutes Must be Germane.

No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment or substitute.

47. Least Sum and Shortest Time in Filling Blanks.

In filling up blanks, the least sum or number and the shortest time shall be put first.

48. Short of Final Question, Two-thirds Vote Not Requisite on Propositions to Amend Constitution.

When an amendment to the Constitution, or any bill requiring the concurrence of two thirds of the Senators, is under consideration, the concurrence of two thirds shall not be required to decide any question for amendment, or extend to the merits, being short of the final question.

49. Notice of Reconsideration.

On the day succeeding that on which the final vote on any bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment has been taken, said vote may be reconsidered on the motion of any Senator; provided, notice of intention to move such reconsideration shall have been given on the day on which such final vote was taken, by a Senator voting with the prevailing side; and it shall not be in order to reconsider on the day on which such final vote was taken. Said motion of reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn; and it shall require twenty-one votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any bill, concurrent or joint resolution has been passed or defeated, and twenty-seven votes to carry any motion to reconsider the vote by which any constitutional amendment has been passed or defeated. No notice of reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day of the session.

There shall be but one reconsideration, even though the action of the Senate after reconsideration is the opposite of the action of the Senate before reconsideration.

50. Reconsideration of Bills Sent to Assembly.

When a bill, resolution, amendment, order, or message upon which a vote has been taken shall have gone out of the possession of the Senate and been communicated to the Assembly, a motion to reconsider shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the same, which last-named motion shall be acted upon immediately and without debate, and if determined in the negative, shall be a final disposition of the motion to reconsider.

51. Secretary, Upon Notice of Reconsideration, Not to Report Bill to Assembly.

If a Senator gives notice that he intends to move a reconsideration, the Secretary shall not report the bill, concurrent or joint resolution, or constitutional amendment, to the Assembly till the reconsideration is disposed of, or the time for moving the same has expired, unless the bill or resolution has been transmitted to the Assembly.

52. Motion to Reconsider May be Debated.

A Senator, after a notice of motion to reconsider is given, as provided in Rule 49, may, at the reconsideration thereof, present the main question in his argument thereon, and the same may be debated by the Senate, provided that the subject-matter is debatable.

53. Amendments to Original Question.

1. An amendment may be laid on the table without prejudice to the bill. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

2. If the question in debate contains several propositions, any Senator may have the same divided; except a motion to strike out and insert shall not be divided. But the rejection of a motion to strike out and insert one proposition shall not prevent a motion to strike out and insert a different proposition, nor shall it prevent a motion to simply strike out, nor shall the rejection of a motion to strike out prevent a motion to strike out and insert; but pending a motion to strike out and insert, the part to be stricken out and the part to be inserted shall each be regarded, for the purpose of amendment, as a question. And motions to amend the part to be stricken out shall have precedence.

54. Final Question on Second Reading of Bill—No Amendment on Third Reading, but May Commit.

The final question on the second reading of every bill originating in the Senate, and requiring three readings previous to being passed, shall be: "Shall the bill be engrossed?" And no amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of such bill, to move its commitment under special instructions to amend.

55. Special Orders.

Any subject may, by vote of two thirds of the Senators present, be made a special order, and when the time fixed for its consideration arrives, the presiding officer shall lay it before the Senate.

56. Form of Previous Question—Call of Senate.

The previous question shall be put in this form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the Senators present upon division; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the Senate to a vote on the subject under discussion. On a motion for the previous question, and prior to a vote being taken by the Senate, a call of the Senate shall be in order.

57. Ayes and Noes: Members Must Answer—No Vote after Announcement of Vote.

When the ayes and noes shall be called for by three members present, every member within the bar of the Senate at the time the question was put shall declare openly, and without debate, his assent or dissent to the question. When any repairs, alterations, work, or improvement shall be deemed of urgent necessity by the board, a contract for the performance or furnishing of the labor, material, or supplies required therefor may be made by the board in behalf of the city, in writing or otherwise, without advertising for or inviting bids; provided, that if the contract for the furnishing of the labor, materials, or supplies so required involves an expenditure of more than $500, the resolution of the council authorizing the same shall, before it takes effect, be approved by the Mayor; provided, however, that authorization or approval by the council or the Mayor shall not be required in the case of any contract proposed to be made by the board, after advertising for and inviting bids, as above provided, for the performance or furnishing of such labor, materials, or supplies required for the construction or completion of any work or improvement, of the construction or completion of which the said board has charge, superintendence, or control, and the cost of which is to be paid from the proceeds of bonds issued and sold by the city; and provided, further, that authorization or approval by the council or mayor, or advertisement for or inviting bids, shall not be required in the case of any contract proposed to be made by the board for the performance or furnishing of labor, materials, or supplies required as aforesaid, when such contract does not involve an expenditure of more than $500.

That a new section be added to the charter, to be known as section one hundred and fifty, and to read as follows:

Sec. 150. The Board of Public Works shall present to the city council at its meeting in the second week of December in each year a report for the year ending on the thirtieth day of November next preceding, which shall show the amount of money received from the sale of bonds, the purposes for which such money has been expended, the amount so expended, and the balance on hand in each bond fund, and also, such information and suggestions as it may deem of general interest; and the Board of Public Works shall also, on or before the tenth day of each month, make out and present to the city council a similar statement of all expenditures during the preceding month of the moneys derived from the sale of bonds.

That a new section be added to the charter, to be known as Section 151, to read as follows:

Sec. 151. When the construction or completion of any public work or improvement, the cost of which is to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of bonds, is to be carried on outside the City of Los Angeles, and the Board of Public Works shall deem it necessary or convenient that any part of the money to be expended for the cost of such work or improvements shall be disbursed at any point or points outside said city, said board may appoint a disbursing agent, whose duty it shall be to disburse such money, in the manner hereinafter specified. The said disbursing agent shall enter into and deliver to the said board a bond payable to the city, in a sum to be fixed by said board, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties, executed by himself, and by a responsible surety company, or if required by the board, by two or more sufficient sureties approved by the board, and said board may, from time to time, require from said disbursing agent a new bond, or such additional bond as it may deem proper. Said board shall, after the execution and delivery of such bond, by resolution, authorize the payment and delivery to said disbursing agent of such sum of money as it may deem proper, and said sum shall thereupon be paid to said disbursing agent by the City Treasurer upon a demand approved by the board as in other cases out of the fund from which the cost of said work or improvement is to be paid, and the receipt of said disbursing agent therefor shall release the City Treasurer from all liability for the money so paid; provided, however, that said board shall not authorize the payment to said disbursing agent of any money which, together with the moneys already paid to him and remaining unexpended as herein provided, shall exceed fifty per cent of the amount of the bond of said disbursing agent.

That said disbursing agent shall thereafter pay out said money as may be required in the prosecution of said work for services or for material and supplies, but no money shall be paid by him except upon order of said Board of Public Works and upon vouchers or demands certified to be correct by the officer or agent of the city under whose direction the services are rendered or the materials or supplies used.

Said disbursing agent shall, on or before the tenth day of each calendar month, and at such other times as may be required by said Board of Public Works, render to said board an account showing the amount of money in his hands on the first day of the preceding calendar month, all amounts received, and all moneys disbursed by him during said preceding month, and the amount of money remaining in his hands on the last day of said preceding month.

Said disbursing agent shall perform such other duties and comply with such rules and regulations as the Board of Public Works may prescribe. Said agent shall be exempt from the provisions of the civil service, and shall receive such salary as the council by ordinance may fix.

That section two hundred and nine of the charter be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 209. Said demands, except demands payable out of the School Fund, the Library Fund, Water Revenue Fund, or funds derived from the sale of bonds issued by the City of Los Angeles, shall be presented to the council on forms and blanks to be provided by the City Clerk and shall be referred to its Committee on Finance. The said committee shall, by endorsement thereon, approve or reject the same in whole or in part. The council shall then consider the said demands and the action of said committee thereon, and shall, if the same be just and legal, approve the same; or may, if it so determine, approve in part or reject the whole. The action of the council shall be endorsed thereon, with the date of such action, and certified by the signature of the President and City Clerk; provided, that it shall require the votes of two-thirds of the members of the whole council, under a call of the ayes and noes, and the vote spread upon the minutes, to approve any such demand in whole or in part.

That a new section be added to the charter, to be known as section two hundred thirteen and three-quarters, and to read as follows:

Sec. 213 $\frac{3}{4}$. All demands payable out of funds derived from the sale of bonds issued by the City of Los Angeles to pay the cost of constructing or completing any public work, improvement, or building, must be presented to the Board of Public Works, and, before they can be approved by the City Auditor or paid, must be previously approved by the Board of Public Works, by a vote of two members thereof, taken by the ayes and noes, spread upon the minutes of the board, and the action of said board must be endorsed on said demand by the President and Secretary thereof, or in the absence of the President, by two members and the Secretary thereof. After the approval of said demands by the Board of Public Works, they shall be delivered to the City Auditor, who shall have the same power and perform the same duties in reference to demands payable out of funds derived from the sale of bonds, as are prescribed for other demands; provided, that in case the City Auditor shall reject any of such demands, or if, in his opinion, said demands should be paid only in part, he shall return the same to the Board of Public Works, instead of to the council.

That section two hundred fourteen of the charter be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 214. Any demand returned to the City Clerk, with the objections of either the Mayor or City Auditor, shall again be considered by the council, and if it shall again be approved by the council by the same vote taken and recorded and endorsed in the same manner as required by Section 209 hereof, the said objection shall be thereby overruled. Any demand returned to the Board of Education, the Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Public Library, the Board of Public Works, or the Board of Water Commissioners, with the objections of the Auditor, shall again be considered by such board, and if such demand be again approved, as required in the first instance, such objections of the said Auditor shall be thereby overruled. Any demand, the objections to which of the Mayor have been overruled, shall be delivered to the City Auditor, who shall have the same power and perform the same duties in reference thereto as if the same had been approved by the Mayor. Any demand the objection to which of the City Auditor has been overruled by the council, the Board of Education, the Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Public Library, the Board of Public Works, or the Board of Water Commissioners, as the case may be, shall be delivered to the City Auditor, who shall number and make a record of such demand, as in the case of demands approved by him.

That section two hundred twenty-two be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 222. No suit shall be brought on any claim for money or damages against the City of Los Angeles, its Board of Education, Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Public Library, Board of Public Works, or the Board of Water Commissioners, until a demand for the same has been presented, as herein provided, and rejected in whole or in part. If rejected in part, suit may be brought to recover the whole. Nor shall suit be brought against said city, or said Board of Education, Board of Directors of the Los Angeles Public Library, Board of Public Works, or Board of Water Commissioners, upon any claim or demand that has been in whole approved and audited as provided herein; provided that nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to deprive the holder of any demand of his right to resort to a writ of mandamus or other proceedings against the city council, or any board or officer of said city, to compel it or him to act upon such claim or demand, or to pay the same when so audited.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE.

That a new section be added to the charter, to be known as section two hundred and thirty-seven and one-half and to read as follows:

An Act to amend section three thousand eight hundred and five of the Political Code, relating to cancellation of double and erroneous assessments, certificates of sale, and tax deeds.

The people of the State of California, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

SEC. 1. Section three thousand eight hundred and five of the Political Code is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

3805. When the Tax Collector discovers that any property has been assessed more than once for the same year, he must collect only the tax justly due and make return of the facts, by his certificate, to the Auditor and Board of Supervisors; the board shall thereupon enter an order upon its minutes directing the Auditor to cancel such double assessment by an entry on the margin of the assessment book, as also upon the delinquent list, should such double assessment be carried therein. If the property assessed under such double assessment has been sold to the State, and a certificate of sale or deed therefor has been issued to the State, the order of the board shall further direct the County Recorder to cancel such erroneous certificate of sale and deed so issued before the State has disposed of the property thereby conveyed; provided, no cancellation of a double assessment, certificate of sale, or deed shall be made in any case until the taxes, penalties, costs, and other charges by law against the property on one of such assessments shall have been paid. When property that is exempt from taxation has been erroneously assessed, or when improvements which did not in fact exist when the tax became a lien, have been erroneously assessed on real estate, the Board of Supervisors shall, upon the application of the owner of the land and upon satisfactory proof thereof, by an order entered upon its minutes, direct the Auditor to cancel such assessment; and if real property has been sold to the State for non-payment of the tax levied on such property or improvements so erroneously assessed, and a certificate of sale or deed therefor has been issued to the State, and the State has not disposed of the property so sold, the order of the board shall also direct the Recorder to cancel the certificate of sale or deed so issued, so far as the same relates to such exempt property or non-existing improvements. In case the Tax Collector issues an erroneous certificate of sale, or deed, to any property upon which the taxes have been fully paid for the year therein mentioned, such facts shall be certified to the Board of Supervisors by the Auditor and Tax Collector, and thereupon said board shall make and enter in its minutes an order authorizing the County Recorder to cancel such erroneous certificate or deed. Whenever a sale of property has been made for the non-payment of a poll tax unlawfully assessed, or which, if lawfully assessed, has been paid and payment has not been properly noted, the Board of Supervisors may, upon proof thereof, by an order entered upon its minutes, direct the County Recorder to cancel the certificate of sale or deed issued to the State under such sale, so far as the same relates to said poll tax, at any time before the State has disposed of such property; provided, that where real property other than that belonging to a person liable for poll tax on the first Monday of March of the year in which such poll tax became due, has been erroneously sold for the poll tax of such person, the Board of Supervisors, upon satisfactory proof of ownership of the said property, may order the certificate of sale or deed cancelled; provided further, however, that no such order shall be made if the person liable for said poll tax owned any interest whatever in said property on said first Monday in March, when said tax became due, or owned any interest therein at the time of the application for such cancellation.

Senate Joint Resolution No. 2 ordered on file.

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 6 ordered on file.

MOTION.

On motion of Senator Wolfe, the following report of sub-committee of Committee on Judiciary was ordered printed in the Journal:

SPECIAL CODE REVISION FILE.

To the Senate Judiciary Committee.

GENTLEMEN: The following are the changes and the reasons for the changes in the Code Revision bills thus far reported upon by your sub-committee:

Senate Bill No. 208. Section 1010, C. C. P.

Requires the notice to state when, and the grounds and papers upon which, the motion will be made. Codifies what the actual practice is to-day, and what is generally provided for in rules of court.

Section 1011, C. C. P.

Changes the hours during which notice may be served at an attorney's office in his absence, so that the hours shall be from nine to five instead of from eight to six; excuses the leaving of papers at an attorney's residence if in a county other than that of his office; provides means of service when his residence is in another county, or when neither his office nor his residence is known; and authorizes both the plaintiff and the defendant to leave their address with the clerk, and requires that notice served on them be left at or sent to such address.

Section 1013, C. C. P.

Directs that notices deposited in the postoffice be enclosed in sealed envelopes, and substitutes "thirty" for "ninety" in the last line.

Section 1015, C. C. P.

The amendment adds the last two sentences, and is intended to supply a mode of serving notices and papers when the attorney for a party has been removed or suspended, or has no known office within the State.

Senate Bill No. 204. Section 1069, C. C. P.

Substitutes "verified petition" for "an affidavit."

Senate Bill No. 205. Section 1067, C. C. P.

The change consists in the addition of the last two sentences, and authorizes the court to exact a new undertaking in any case in which it is shown that any surety on a bond has become insufficient, thus avoiding all possible doubt of the court's power in the premises.

Senate Bill No. 207. Section 1025, C. C. P.

Corrects a mistake in present section by inserting the word "recovered" after the word "property" where that word last occurs.

Section 1031, C. C. P.

Corrects a clumsily expressed section by inserting the words "or proceeding" after the word "action," in the first line, by inserting the article "an" before the word "express" and the same article before the word "action," and substitutes the word "proceeding" for the word "defense," at the end of the section.

Senate Bill No. 211. Section 997, C. C. P.

The words "not less than ten days" are substituted for the words "at any time" before the words "before the trial," to make the section consistent with the time allowed plaintiff for acceptance of the offer specified in the section. The words "after the offer" are added after the words "incurred," and the last clause is added to the section in order to enforce the change. The section as thus amended requires an offer of compromise to be made at least ten days before the trial, and entitles the plaintiff to costs up to the time of the offer, though he does not obtain a judgment for a sum higher than that offered.

Senate Bill No. 203. Section 1086, C. C. P.

Section 1087, C. C. P.

Excuses the clerk on issuing a writ of mandate from inserting therein the allegations of the petition.

Section 1088, C. C. P.

Requires a copy of the petition for a writ of mandate to be served with the alternative writ, or with the notice of application for the peremptory writ. This codifies what is the present practice, and makes it uniform instead of confining it to such Superior Courts as have embodied it in their rules.

Section 1089, C. C. P.

The form but not the substance of the section has been changed, and the sense made clearer thereby.

Senate Bill No. 201. Section 1110a, C. C. P.

This is a section added to the Code of Civil Procedure expressing substantially the rule upon the subject already enforced by the Supreme Court.

Senate Bill No. 202. Section 1103, C. C. P.

Section 1184, C. C. P.

Excuses the clerk on issuing a writ of prohibition from inserting therein the allegations of the petition.

Senate Bill No. 215. Section 749, C. C. P.

This section is hereby repealed because it has been made superfluous by the late amendments to Section 412 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Moreover, there are two sections 749 in the Code, one enacted in 1891 and the other in 1900. They do not supersede each other under the principle of Ex parte Ruffin, 119 Cal. 487. The superfluous one is here repealed, leaving the other in force.

Senate Bill No. 216. Section 740, C. C. P.

The word "real" is omitted before the word "property," the amendment thus extending the benefit of the section to all classes of property.

Senate Bill No. 217. Section 723, C. C. P.

The change recommended is the omission of the words "there being a rebate of interest where such rebate in the property" at the end thereof, and the limiting the same to the amount necessary to pay the principal and interest already due.

Senate Bill No. 218. Section 714, C. C. P.

The words "or in which he has a place of business" are added to the section, thus making it possible to examine judgment debtors in supplementary proceedings in those counties in which they have a place of business.

Section 717, C. C. P.

The word "and" is substituted for "or" after "judgment" and before "upon," to make the section conform to what was evidently the intent of the Legislature at the time of its passage.

Section 719, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in adding lines 7 to 10, inclusive, in the section, thus limiting the right of the judge or referee to order the delivery of property to those cases in which no adverse interest is claimed thereto.

Section 720, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in striking out the words "the court or judge may authorize by an order made to that effect," thus enabling the judgment creditor to sue for property to be subject to his execution without first obtaining an order of court.

Senate Bill No. 362. Section 599, Pen. C.

There are at present two sections 599 in the Penal Code, one referring to the killing of gulls and cranes, and the other referring to the killing of elk. The former is left intact, and the latter is repealed and reenacted as 599f.

Senate Bill No. 361. Section 526, Pen. C.

Senate Bill No. 219. Section 700 C. C. P.

The present Section 700 of the Code of Civil Procedure is split in two sections, 700 and 700a. All of Section 700 after the word "thereto," on line 5 of the printed bill, is an addition thereto, and declares the effect of a sale of real property under execution, and that, when supported by a judgment lien or the levy of a writ, the title of the holder relates back to the date of such lien or levy. This simply codifies the present law on the subject under the decision of the Supreme Court. The part of the section omitted is made a new section, to be numbered 700a.

Section 700a, C. C. P.

The only thing in this section is the requirement that the certificate of search shall include a statement of the date of the judgment and of the names of the parties thereto; the remainder of the change simply consists in recasting into more concise form what is clumsily expressed in the original section.

Senate Bill No. 210. Section 992, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in striking out the words "except a discharge from such liability by the statute of limitations," and the end thereof, and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "by reason of any defense existing at the commencement of the action." This removes the prohibition against the pleading of the statute of limitations if that defense existed at the commencement of the action.

Section 993, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in adding at the end of the present section the words "subject to the order of the parties to amend their pleadings as in other cases," thus entitling the parties to amend their pleadings as in other cases and changing the rule adopted in Waterman vs. Lippman, 67 Cal. 26.

Senate Bill No. 220. Section 681, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in adding all after the words "enforcement," in line 5 of the printed bill. The justice of the amendment is self-evident.

Section 687, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in the addition of the sentence included in lines 7 to 14 of Section 1 on page 2 of the printed bill. It is directed to those cases in which a judgment is entered in one county affecting property then situated in, or which may subsequently become a part of, another county. The section as amended supersedes the provisions of the Statute of 1873-4, page 365, respecting execution of final process.

Section 688, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in substituting the words "levied upon or released" for the word "attached," thus providing a mode of releasing a levy of execution. It adopts the method proposed for the release of attachments by Section 560.

Section 689, C. C. P.

The amendment strikes out the words "setting out his title thereto," which subserve no useful purpose, and also inserts the amount of the undertaking near the end of the section "in a sum equal to double the value of the property levied on," which is the usual custom of sheriffs any way, and recasts the last sentence so as to make it more intelligible, substituting for this part of the present section the words in lines 11 to 13, on page 3 of the printed bill.

Senate Bill No. 303. Sections 33 to 55, 65 to 69, C. C. P.

The recommendation is that these sections be repealed, because the matters intended to be expressed therein are contained in Sections 1 to 8 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State, and so far as these sections conform to that article they are unnecessary, and in so far as they depart from it they are invalid. The attempt to make a legislative statement of these provisions has already led to litigation and to some of the legislative expressions being declared unconstitutional, as in the Jessup case, 81 Cal. 403, and Merced Bank vs. Rosenthal, 99 Cal. 39.

Senate Bill No. 304. Section 115, C. C. P.

Repeal of section recommended, as it relates wholly to prosecution of public officers, and its provision should be incorporated in the Penal Code.

Senate Bill No. 305. Section 134, C. C. P.

The amendment recasts the section substituting the words "on any of the holidays mentioned in Section 10," instead of attempting to mention the holidays, which are always changing, and are designed to conform to the section in the Constitution. See Reclamation District vs. Hamilton, 112 Cal. 610.

Section 135, C. C. P.

The amendment changes the phraseology of the section to conform with Section 10 and the amendments proposed to Section 134.

Senate Bill No. 306. Section 139, C. C. P.

The change recommended is to strike out the words "for one week." Neither the sheriff nor the clerk can, under the Constitution, be authorized to adjourn court and thus close it for a definite time, other than from day to day.

Senate Bill No. 307. Section 144, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in the insertion of the word "county" in place of "city and county," where those words last occur in the section, and omitting the words "city and county" when they occur earlier in the section, they being unnecessary in view of the amendment to Section 17, adopted in 1903 (Stats. 1903, 134).

Senate Bill No. 308. Sections 156 and 157, C. C. P.

The recommendation is that these sections be repealed. They undertake to declare who shall be eligible to the office of Judge of the Superior Court and of Justice of the Supreme Court. Probably no tests of eligibility can be imposed in addition to those required by the Constitution (Page vs. Hardin, 8 B. Mon. 661; note to Blair vs. Ridgely, 97 Am. Dec. 264; Thomas vs. Owens, 4 Md. 223), but if it be possible to impose any such additional requirements, they should be provided for in the Political Code.

Senate Bill No. 312. Section 352, C. C. P.

Subdivision 4, creating a disability in favor of a married woman, whose husband must join her in commencing an action, is omitted, because she may, in all cases, sue alone.

Section 355, C. C. P.

The last sentence, being from lines 7 to 13, inclusive, on page 2 of the printed bill, is added to abrogate the rule of construction of this section, declared in Carpenter vs. Natoma W. & M. Co., 63 Cal. 616, that a title by prescription may be perfected during the pendency of an action, though judgment in both the lower and appellate courts was given in favor of the plaintiff.

Senate Bill No. 313. Section 387, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in adding the words on line 17 of page 2 of the printed bill "within ten days from the service thereof," thus removing any ambiguity respecting the time within which the complaint in intervention must be answered.

Section 388, C. C. P.

The words "and the individual property of the party or parties served with process," on lines 9 and 10 of the section on page 2 of the printed bill, have been added, thus avoiding multiplicity of suits.

Section 389, C. C. P.

The words "or to determine conflicting claims thereto," in line 12 of the section, on page 2 of the printed bill, have been added, thus authorizing the bringing in of new parties in actions to determine conflicting claims of real or personal property, and thus avoiding multiplicity of actions.

Senate Bill No. 314. Section 392, C. C. P.

The provision at the end of the section, that if in an action to recover real property, an injunction is at any time applied for, the proper county for the trial is that in which the defendant resides, is omitted. This provision is inconsistent with Section 5 of Article VI of the Constitution, requiring actions of this character to be brought in the county in which the property, or some part thereof, is situated.

Section 394, C. C. P.

The word "citizens" is stricken out and the word "residence" is inserted, in line 7 of the section, on page 2 of the printed bill, that having been the legislative intent in the original enactment of the section.

Section 395, C. C. P.

The last sentence, being lines 13 to 17, inclusive, of this section, on page 2 of the printed bill, have been added, and the amendment thereby made is intended to reach cases where a person has been made a defendant solely for the purpose of having an action tried in the county wherein he resides, thus taking away from the defendant properly joined and from the real defendants the rights of change of venue intended to be vouchsafed to them in other sections of the code.

Section 396, C. C. P.

The words "appears and" are omitted before the word "answers," as superfluous.

Section 397, C. C. P.

Sub-section 4 is so amended that there need not be any change from the place of trial, if there is any judge within the county not disqualified from acting.

Senate Bill No. 315. Sections 417 and 418, C. C. P.

These sections are added in order to codify the statute of 1871-2, page 533, entitled "An Act concerning libel and slander."

Senate Bill No. 317. Section 512, C. C. P.

The word "notice" is changed to "endorsement," line 14 of the section, page 1 of the printed bill, the preceding section having provided for an endorsement, but not for a notice.

Section 519, C. C. P.

The amendment omits the words "stating the grounds of such title or right," that being entirely unnecessary and to no useful purpose, and provides that the amount of undertaking to be given by the plaintiff must be equal to double the value of the property taken, such being the present practice.

Senate Bill No. 320. Section 566, C. C. P.

The words "of a party" are added in line 3 of the section, and the word "must" is substituted for the word "may" in line 8 of the section, page 1 of the printed bill, such changes having been made to conform the section to the intent of the Legislature in the passage of the original section.

Section 567, C. C. P.

The word "one" is changed to "two," on line 2 of page 2 of the printed bill, thus requiring two sureties, and the undertaking with respect to form is left subject to the control of Section 982 of the Political Code.

Senate Bill No. 321. Section 572, C. C. P.

The words "to the action" are added after the word "party," on line 4, page 1 of the printed bill, as in its present form the section is entirely misleading.

Section 573, C. C. P.

The amendment consists in consolidating Sections 573 and 2104, there being two sections covering the same subject, where only one is needed, and omits the first sentence of the former section, so as to remove any possible conflict between them.

Respectfully submitted.

WILLIS,

Chairman Sub-Committee of Judiciary on Code Revision Bills.

CODE COMMISSIONER'S REPORT ON CODIFICATION OF COUNTY GOVERNMENT ACTS.

SACRAMENTO, CAL., February 4, 1907

Judiciary Sub-Committee on Code Revision Bills.

GENTLEMEN: Though the County Government Act of 1897 has been in existence barely ten years, the law contained in it, and in the Acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, can at this time be found only in a small sized law library. Its codification into the proper title of the Political Code is almost an imperative necessity, unless we are to have, every other session or so, the reenactment of an enormously bulky and growing County Government Act. The Political Code has a title composed of many sections set aside for this purpose, but as it was originally enacted in 1872, and is mostly superseded by the provisions of the Constitution of 1879, and was thereafter abandoned, as far as amendatory legislation was concerned, until the Supreme Court should thresh out the legal questions involved in construing a special act with reference to questions of classification of counties, etc., the present sections of this title of the Political Code have been, almost since 1883, for the most part obsolete.

Since 1879 no attempt at a scientific codification of the provisions of the County Government Act of that year and of the Acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and the one or two others covering analogous subjects, has been attempted, except the Act proposed in the report of the Code Commission consisting of Messrs. Bulla, Caminetti, and Shanahan, filed in the office of the Secretary of State July 31, 1899. I have not hesitated freely to use their good work on the County Government Act covered by said report, in drawing the framework of the new title to the Political Code this day introduced in the Senate in the form of Senate Bill No. 586.

This title comprises the Act of April 1, 1897, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of county and township governments" (Stats. 1897, 452), hereafter in notes to this title referred to as the "Act of 1897," together with all acts to date amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto.

All changes therein, and additions thereto, have been noted. All sections of said Act of 1897, except Sections 11, 12, 13, 232, 233, and 234 have been inserted. Sections 11 and 12 omitted, as they properly form part of Chapter II in the preceding title to which they have been added in another bill heretofore introduced in the Senate at this session. Section 13 has been omitted because it has been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court (Ex parte Anderson, 134 Cal. 53). Sections 232, 233, and 234 are excluded as unnecessary.

Sections 4007, 4020, 4220, 4221 are respectively Sections 4007, 4107, 4273, and 4271 of the present Political Code carried into this title under the former numbers. Sections 4000 to 4347, both inclusive, now in Title II, Part IV of the Political Code, are repealed, as the subject-matters therein contained are fully covered by the said title as now reported.

By the insertion of the County Government Act into this Code, its reenactment at almost every session of the Legislature will be avoided, as amendments may be made after the passage of this Act by mere amendment of the respective sections of the Political Code herein contained.

The provision that all Acts or parts of Acts inconsistent therewith are hereby repealed, generally found in them, leave in their train portions of former Acts in force. The Supreme Court on the 23d of June, 1899, for instance, in the case of Davis vs. Post, 125 Cal. 210, decided "that Section 191 of the County Government Act of 1893, being a later expression of legislative will than Section 2641 of the Political Code, with which it is inconsistent, must prevail," and yet since the date that the Act of 1897 went into operation it was the Act governing the several counties, notwithstanding the County Government Act of 1893. How many more provisions of the various County Government Acts which have been heretofore enacted will be brought up as occasions arise in litigation it is impossible to say. In this state of affairs, it is recommended that after this revision of the title shall have been in force long enough not to affect incumbents holding under the old Acts, all County Government Acts enacted in other form be expressly repealed.

This bill is not new legislation, but is a codification to date of such former legislation on the subject as is still in force, and the Fee Bill Act of 1895, and a few other statutes which, it is thought, properly come within the scope of county government, have also been codified herein.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Senator McCartney asked for and was granted unanimous consent to have the following communications printed in the Journal:

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., February 2, 1907.

Hon. H. S. G. McCartney, Senate Chamber, Sacramento, Cal.

DEAR SIR: I have noted through the medium of the press that considerable opposition has been aroused to Senate Bill No. 98, regarding the acquisition of municipal light and water plants, which you introduced at my request.

I am not surprised at this, as the question is one upon which there is room for some difference of opinion, but I am surprised that you should in any way be criticised in regard to the bill. You introduced it entirely in courtesy to me, and had no interest in it whatever yourself, nor has any one beside myself ever suggested to you its introduction.

The matter is one which was considered at the last session of the Legislature, and the bill on the subject passed both houses. There were, however, certain objections to the form of that bill, and it did not meet with the approval of the Governor. In drawing the present bill, I attempted (and I think successfully) to remove all of those objections, and, in its present form, I believe that it would materially assist in the ultimate acquisition by the municipalities of the State of light and water plants. I would say, however, that it would not apply to the City of Los Angeles, nor the City and County of San Francisco, which are governed by freeholders' charters.

At some future time, I trust that the matter will be taken up and discussed on its merits, and a proper law on the subject adopted. In the meantime, I wish to say again that whatever may be the merits or defects of this particular bill, you should in no way be criticised for its introduction, as you introduced it solely upon my assurance as to its object and effect, and while some of the criticisms that you have received in regard to it may be somewhat distasteful at the same time, no one who has done as much as you have toward the adoption of beneficial legislation need have any fear of such criticism.

Very truly yours,

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CAL., February 2, 1907.

Hon. H. S. G. McCartney, State Senator, Sacramento, California.

MY DEAR SIR: In view of your action yesterday in withdrawing from the consideration of the Senate your Senate Bill No. 98, I feel that I owe you an apology for certain language used by myself in a reported interview with a newspaper reporter and published by the press. I believe that I was reported as saying in effect, that your offered withdrawal of the bill named was beyond your power to consummate; that such powerful interests were behind the measure that would prevent such action on your part. It gives me gratification to state that I was entirely mistaken in regard to my prediction, and as a prophet that I am without honor, though I trust that you will do me the honor to admit that this confession is in itself an honorable one to make. I wish to state further, that the grounds for making the statement purporting to come from me were not such as came from any knowledge of your character or from any suspicion that your motives in presenting the bill were other than honorable; but the statement was based solely on the past history of similar attempted legislation. I have recently had an interview with Mr. Treadwell, who drew the bill, and he assured me that the sole purpose of the bill was to correct an alleged abuse of power, and I wish that full credit be given to this statement.

The opposition of this organization to the bill, was not on account of the principle of arbitration, but that the scheme of arbitration provided was so compulsory that an injustice would be done which would be greater than the evil that was attempted to be cured.

Trusting that no injury will come to you from the statement so mistakenly made (and I trust that you will believe innocently), and giving you permission to use this letter as you may please, I beg to say that I am,

Very sincerely,

(Signed): H. A. MASON,

Secretary of the League of California Municipalities.

Constitutional amendment ordered transmitted to the Assembly.

EXPLANATION OF VOTE.

Senator Caminetti explained his vote as follows:

I voted for Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 3 because I am pledged on the subject. I favored amendment thereof in various ways to make it mandatory, self-acting, and more certain; also less liable to misinterpretation. Under the previous question some of these amendments could not be offered by me. In my judgment, the proposed amendment should provide for the election of Senators of the United States and members of Congress by the direct primary election plan.

Again, the proviso therein providing "that until the Legislature shall enact a direct primary election law * * * the present primary election law shall remain in force and effect," introduces an element not only of doubt, but of danger, for, should the Legislature, in case of its adoption by the people, fail for any reason to enact a direct primary election law, the present defective primary law would continue in force.

Hence, the reason for my amendment to make this proviso "subject to the right of the Legislature to amend, modify, or repeal the same." The adoption of this amendment would leave the Legislature free to enact not only direct primary election laws, but also legislate concerning the present primary election law.

Past experience in securing the present primary election law should impel us to use the utmost caution and care in acting upon an amendment to the Constitution on this important question.
